Thy fellowship we prize
Hold we thy precepts
E'er before our eyes.
Let from thy motto
Inspiration spring
May we be worthy
Thy fair name to sing.

FOREWORD

NU SIGMA NU, a fraternity conceived, created and evolved out of the need for cooperation and fellowship among medical men, has now completed its first half-century. From a modest initial group of five, it has grown to a proud stature, embracing within its ranks some twelve thousand followers of the cult of Aesculapius, and having at this time forty chapters in as many selected Class A medical schools of the United States and Canada.

The purpose of these volumes is to tell the story of that half century; to trace the origin and to portray the growth of the order. The aim of such an organization is essentially ethical; its tenets are peculiarly appropriate to a profession wherein sacrifice and selfless devotion to humanity have become traditional.

The half century of fraternity activities coincides in time with the evolution of medicine as a branch of human knowledge and skill from an art into something of a science. Perceiving this development, the publication committee decided to make a contribution to the story of medical progress, in addition to presenting a detailed record of the fraternity. This has been accomplished by introducing graphs of the growth and development of the schools with their written histories, side by side with those of the chapters, all profusely illustrated.

Further, we publish here for the first time a group of addresses by Nu Sigma Nu alumni, delivered publicly at the Semi-Centennial Convention at the University of Michigan on A Half Century of Progress in various fields of medicine; also addresses by two of the Old Guard: one, biologic, by Paul Barringer, the Nestor of the University of Virginia Chapter; the other, reminiscent, by Will Mayo, the only survivor of the original group of five.

These volumes represent an arduous labor, the fifth and, because of the ever increasing size, effort and cost, perhaps the last attempt on the part of the fraternity to publish her complete history together with the biographies of her Fellows.

The other publications were Nu Sigma Nu in 1899, 1901, 1903 and the quarter-centennial volume in 1907.

We gratefully acknowledge the helpfulness of chapter historians, of faculty and alumni fellows and of the Deans and alumni secretaries of our schools in having so generously responded to calls for information and for photographs. This material has made possible an almost complete representation of the fraternity personnel and of the histories of the schools as well as pictures of their chief buildings.

We are indebted to the following for generous co-operation in bringing the volumes up to date in form and style: Miss Mary D. Alexander of the University of Chicago Press; Mr. H. B. Colby of R. R. Donnelley & Sons Company, Chicago, and Mr. Roy D. Hickman of the Alabama Engraving Company, Birmingham, Alabama.

All charters known to be in existence are herein reproduced. Several have been burned. At least one has been lost. Any information regarding any charter not reproduced should be sent promptly to the Executive Council Secretary.

We are pleased that we can before closing the forms include the reinstated Nu Chapter at Southern California and the new Beta Tau Chapter at Ohio State University, thus bringing our total chapters to forty as we go to press, instead of the thirty-eight at the end of the semi-centennial period. All other data is of the half century of progress, except that addresses in the biographic section have been corrected to conform with the American Medical Association Directory published in August of 1934. Fratres in Facultate and Fratres in Universitate and the roll of membership are as of June 30, 1932.

The authors express the belief that the expenditure of time, thought and of money is justified by the comprehensiveness of the publication.

PART I
INTRODUCTORY

EVOLUTION OF FRATERNITY FEELING*

DOCTOR BARRINGER

The word fraternity is an evolution from the Latin frater, "born of one family." We are, however, in reality a guild, a distinctive and technical form of fraternity, which carries no less obligation. In the present depression in moral stamina, the fraternity and fraternalism are largely taking the place of religion, as may be seen by a study of the past two decades of American history. In this time have come the Rotarians, Kiwanians, Elks, Moose, Owls, and dozens of kindred orders representing nearly every animal under the sun. Long, long ago the Church saw this coming and resented it, remaining as long as it dared, anti-fraternal. Now little is heard of this except the official antagonism between Catholic hierarchy and Masonry. When, as biologists, we look back to see the origin and purpose of fraternalism, we find we have a long way to go. It is found in small measure or not at all in the fishes and in the amphibians. Amongst the millions of frogs hatched in a mud puddle, not one shows any relationship or association with any other. All simply cling together until a rain starts each on his own course. The same is true of reptiles when not viviparous. A young turtle hatched on the mound starts down hill without taking notice of his brothers and sisters coming from the sand at the same time. The average snake lays its eggs and then leaves the locality, seemingly forgetting the episodes of paternity and parturition.

When, however, we turn to the wolf pack, the flock, the herd, and the covey, there is fraternalism of a high order. It must, therefore, lie somewhere in the evolutionary process between these two, the reptile and the mammal. This we find to be true. When the dinosaurs were monopolizing the mud flats of our older continents, some small creatures of the same period were driven to the hills to live by their wits, being too small to be the prey of the carnivorous dinosaurs and too active to be trampled under foot by the others. These were the monotremes, those who paved the way for the future mammal. I will mention only two, the platypus and the echidnae.

As is known to all, the dinosaur laid its large foot-long eggs in the sand, patted them down, waddled away, and seemingly forgot them. There was no thought for the welfare of the future offspring, and with rare exceptions, as for a short time in the viviparous snakes, no care for the young. Then necessity brought about a change.

Some form of platypus, possibly like that now living in Australia and adjacent areas, was forced to lay its eggs in a nest burrowed in the ground and ultimately remote from the warmth of sunlight. This forced the mother to lie with her abdomen over the eggs in the manner now used by fowls in hatching their young. Thus the warmth of the body took the place of sunlight. To reduce this labor came a nest which was the first "home" or chapter house of subsequent fraternalism. It gave a locus.

Everyone familiar with the incubation period of fowls, knows that to get the full benefit of the warmth of her body, the mother sheds all the feathers on the abdominal surface. This monotreme, the platypus, does likewise with her abdominal hair, the period being seemingly longer than in the fowl. Now begins the marvel. When the young are hatched (and possibly before) a profuse flow of abdominal perspiration can be engendered by overlying the new born young. This became in time their source of water supply and nutrition. Later the mothers developed from the seviceous and simpler sweat glands a perfect food for the young, now known in the mammal as milk. Seemingly in the platypus the young simply licked this secretion from the smooth abdomen as a whole. In the echidnae the young seemed to concentrate upon bunches of residual hair, using these tufts of hair as teats.

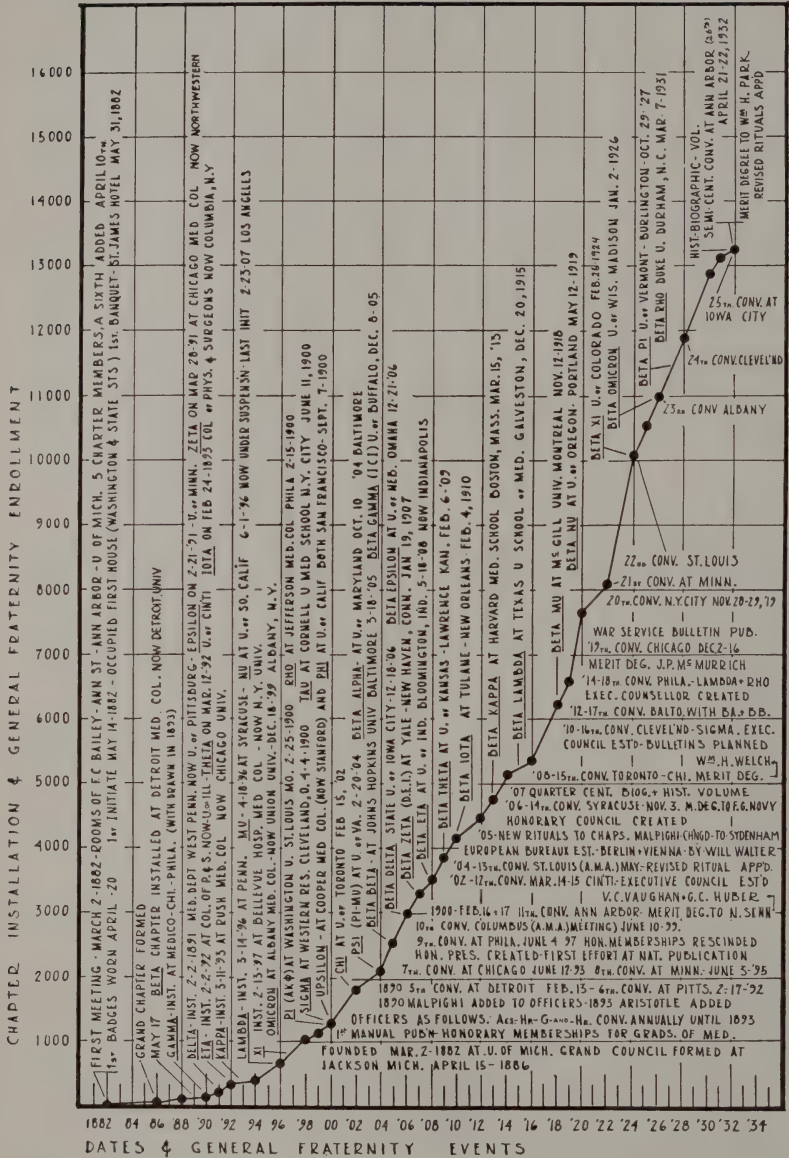

From the concentration of the young upon certain areas of the abdomen were developed the mammæ, marking the mammalian type. If these mammæ were developed far back we had the graminivorous and herbivorous types, if far forward the manatees, dugongs, elephants, and primates, including man. (The manatee rearing upright in the sea with rounded breasts gave us the name mermaid.) When the line of mammae extended fore and aft, the full length of the body, we had carnivora, rodents, etc.

I am bound to confess that in the carnivora we have seemingly the closest bond between brothers and sisters. In the lower forms, there is nothing like the rage against the outside, seen as amongst wolves and peccaries. Naturally, the higher forms of fraternalism are developed with psychic growth, and this brings us to another element of fraternity, namely, the difference between love and lust in creation. The reptiles have only lust, it being there a matter of temperature rather than temperament, but with the mammals, as also with birds, there is a distinct preparation made for the welfare of the coming young before sexual conjunction. Combine this with the psychic development of man and you have the true essence of fraternalism. Incidentally I will mention the fact that the whole of this evolution was dependent upon an anatomical change that took place amongst amphibians. I don't know how it is with others, but in that amphibian of the Mississippi basin, called the "hellbender" or "mud puppy", we have a perfect arterial development for the needs of even carnivorous mammae, formed by the anastomosis of the internal mammary artery and the recurrent epigastric. This is way down in life's scale well before the dinosaurs. Can you imagine what life on this earth would now be, had the dinosaurs become mammalian in structure and capable of carrying on in spite of climate? We would not be here tonight.

In conclusion, nature has seemed to love fraternalism. It is a natural affection with a stronger biological basis than theology. And it seems likely to replace it.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE TO PART II

The weaving of the threads of general fraternity history that have come to the author's loom for this volume is not in itself such a difficult task as their assembly.

Fortunately for him to whom the task has fallen, the records of the proceedings are fairly complete. Few organizations have had such historic continuity as is available for the last three quarters of the half century covered by this story. The same cannot be said of the first quarter of the period, however. In assembling the last biographic and historic volume, published in 1907 at the quarter century post, "Nu Sigma Nu in 1907", it was not possible for the author to complete the early history. He had not the assistance of such a searcher as Brother Graves, with whose able collaboration the whole story is now about as finished as it ever can be. Shortage, if any, is due to the failure of early alumni to furnish information.

At times things come to light to watchful eyes, however. So finally came the reminiscences of Will Mayo, one of the charter members, in the form of an address, and that has been inserted verbatim.

In the compilation of this volume the aim has been to assemble all available data in such form as to make the record complete and final. The known history is presented in three forms: first, a concise chronologic list with dates of happenings; second, a table in which the events are charted against the dates; third, the author's story of the high spots that have come to light from the records and from personal experience.

For errors of commission the author stands. For those of omission the blame must in general fall on the alumni for lack of response to repeated calls for help.

The author is glad to make this final contribution of effort to the fraternity, arduous though the labor has proven to be. It is one of several unfinished tasks which he hopes to complete in his attempted retirement from active medical practice.

WILLIAM J. MAYO*

DOCTOR MAYO

When a man is on the shady side of life, he begins to look back with new interest on the outstanding events of his early life. It may perhaps be relevant for me thus to review the conditions of education in the days of my youth.

My brother and I come from a long line of physicians. Our father was a physician, and from the time that we were old enough to be of any use, we helped him in his practice; grew up to be physicians just as boys on a farm grow up to be farmers. We began by doing the usual things, taking care of the horses, keeping the office clean, and as we grew older, riding about the country with Father on his calls. From the age of sixteen I was my father's first surgical assistant, and Charlie, when he was a lad of twelve in knee breeches, began giving the anesthetic, the old ACE mixture, alcohol one part, chloroform two parts, and ether three parts. He gave it by the drop method and gave it well.

I remember the circumstances which led to Charlie's becoming the anesthetist of the family at that early age. My father did the operating in that part of the country. His first operation for the removal of an ovarian tumor was performed as early as 1870. On this occasion he operated on a blacksmith's wife, using the extraperitoneal treatment of the ovarian pedicle by the clamp method, the clamp having been made by the blacksmith, the husband of the patient. Father did a number of these operation. Some years later, just as I had begun acting as his first assistant, he removed a huge ovarian cyst. Charlie was taking care of the sponges. The doctor who was giving the anesthetic had no surgical experience and under the nervous tension of the operation, he fainted as the base of the tumor was being pulled out of the abdomen. Father sent for a box and told Charlie to stand on it and give the anesthetic, which he did with perfect composure.

Father had a good microscope, purchased when I was a small boy under circumstances which I clearly remember. This instrument was to replace the small one which he had used for many years. It would cost six hundred dollars, and there were many discussions between Father and Mother about its importance and the necessity of putting a mortgage on the home to obtain it. The microscope was purchased with money raised by the mortgage and I may say that it was many years before the obligation was completely paid off. The difficulty of securing the microscope gave it an unusual value in our eyes, and perhaps for that reason Charlie and I, even as boys, became expert in its use.

Father taught us our osteology from the skeleton of "Cut Nose", a Sioux Indian Chief. In our great Sioux outbreak in 1882, Cut Nose was second in command, and he was one of thirty-nine Indians who were hanged afterwards. Father preserved the skeleton of Cut Nose and prepared it for laboratory use. It is still one of the proud possessions of the Clinic, as is also the microscope which was purchased at such a sacrifice. The fortieth Indian sentenced to death was Chief "Little Crow", who escaped the night before the hanging, but was shot two months later by a boy of sixteen who came on him while he was cooking his food in the woods.

At the time of the Indian war my father was the surgeon of the little force of soldiers and settlers at New Ulm, Minnesota, which checked the outbreak. My mother, back at the settlement at Le Seuer, my birthplace, organized the women. She had them put on men's clothing and armed them with fence pickets to the tops of which were fastened knives, forks, spoons or bits of tin, which glittered in the sunlight like bayonets as the women went through military maneuvers. The Indians believed that the little settlement had a guard, and this was the only reason that it was not attacked. This little community was on the Minnesota River about eighty miles west of Saint Paul at the head of navigation for small boats. Minnesota was a frontier state of the Indian fighting country, and has maintained the reputation gained in the early days for patriotic defense. The State of Minnesota sent the first regiment and the largest number of volunteer soldiers, in proportion to its population, in the three great wars, the Civil War, the Spanish American War and the Great War.

Father performed as many postmortems as he could, and Charlie and I always attended. When I was a small boy, too short while standing on the floor to see the details of the examinations, he put me on the head of the table, where I had to hang on to the hair on the head of the corpse in order to lean forward to see. When I was about sixteen, a man on whom Father had operated, died, and a postmortem examination was to be made. The body had been carried into an old abandoned tumble-down hotel, a remnant of frontier days, on the outskirts of town, and I went over with Father on a stormy November night to make the examination. After it was completed, about eleven o'clock, he said that he had a call to make, and left me to sew up the cadaver. I can hear yet the dismal creaking of the hotel sign as it swung to and fro in the wind.

My mother was American born, of Scotch descent. She was an excellent botanist and for that day, a good astronomer. When Charlie and I were lads, we were well taught in these two subjects although I must confess the only thing I have retained of my astronomy is that I can recognize the Milky Way and the Big Dipper.

After high school and two years in Niles Academy and one year in a private school for languages and science, I entered the Medical Department of the University of Michigan in the autumn of 1880. I graduated in 1883, when I was twenty-one. While attending medical school, I worked in a drug store summer vacations to help pay my expenses.

Father sent me to the University of Michigan because it had just opened a graded medical course of three years of nine months each, one of the earliest to be established on this basis. Up to that time, medical education had consisted of two years of four and a half or five months each, with instruction by courses of lectures, the lectures of the second year a repetition of those of the first year.

There were some great men on the faculty of the University of Michigan at that time. Corydon L. Ford was the best teacher of anatomy I have ever heard. I can see and hear him yet, as he stood before the class. He had a club foot and because of this disability carried an ivory headed cane on which he swung round as he demonstrated the anatomical details of the cadaver and the drawings on the blackboard.* By his forceful personality and his intense love of his subject, he made the too often dull study of general anatomy as interesting as a novel.

There was Donald MacLean, the surgeon, student of the great James Syme of the University of Edinburgh. MacLean was one of the great surgeons of his day. He was honored by being made President of the American Medical Association.

Another of whom I must speak was Palmer, Professor of Medicine. He was then a kindly old man of more than eighty years, a staunch Presbyterian, yet with a keen sense of humor and a merry twinkle, which was always manifest when some of the boys, after failing in his quiz, would take pains that he should see them going to the Presbyterian Church on the next Sunday.

Because I had had some training in anatomy, I was soon appointed volunteer instructor in the upper dissecting room, for which I have always been thankful.

The University of Michigan was striving to develop a good clinical hospital, and had succeeded in building for the purpose a small frame structure of somewhat less than one hundred beds, with a low amphitheater, which we entered by a short flight of stairs from the University campus. The clinics given regularly in the amphitheater of the hospital lasted about forty minutes, from twelve o'clock to a quarter to one, and all the students were welcome; attendance for the senior class was obligatory. I never missed one.

Perhaps the most brilliant man on the staff was George Frothingham, Professor of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology. In some way or other he had gained the reputation of being an atheist.

Toward the close of my junior year, in the spring of 1881, one of the students in the course of a clinic sent a note down to Professor Frothingham asking whether he and some others might be excused from attending Frothingham's next clinic to go to Detroit to hear "Bob" Ingersoll lecture. Ingersoll at that time was delivering lectures ridiculing the Bible and its teachings. Frothingham, on reading the note, said that in the first place he objected to speaking of a distinguished man like Ingersoll as "Bob". He said, "We hear Thomas Paine, one of the greatest constructive agents in the building up of the United States following the Revolution, called 'Tom', yet no one has ever heard Thomas Jefferson called 'Tom'". At that a red-haired, red-whiskered, medical missionary student, about forty years old, jumped up and objected vigorously to such atheistic teaching, and made quite a scene. He was sitting in front, in the second row from the platform. Some of you may remember that it was not uncommon for the boys to pick up a student on occasion and pass him from row to row over the assembly. Some one seized the missionary as he was haranguing, and started him on his way up over the amphitheater seats. The boys at the top failed to stop him and he went out through a window and fell into a lilac bush. He was rather badly scratched and I believe a bone in one leg was broken. The occurrence created a terrific amount of newspaper publicity which threatened to break up the medical school, especially as related to Frothingham and MacLean, but the school as a whole stood by them, because all of us who were there realized that nothing that Frothingham had said could be construed into what had been credited to him in the public press and in the churches.

A small group of the underclass men were very much concerned over the matter and we lent such aid and support as we could to establish the truth.

Out of the general excitement came the discussion of establishing some sort of medical fraternity that would be interested in scholarship, in the development of better teaching, and generally in raising medical education to a higher level—about the sort of thing one would expect of a group of immature young enthusiasts. This idea bore fruit in the following autumn, in the development of the Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity.

The six charter members of Nu Sigma Nu were Robert Stephens, of Texas; Charles Frye, of Massachusetts; Benjamin Strong, Fred Main and John Gish,* of Michigan, and myself.

Robert Stephens, the only one of the group who was a member of a university fraternity, supplied most of the sense in the constitution and by-laws, and I, it must be confessed, supplied most of the nonsense. Poor Rob Stephens! About two months before we were to graduate one of the members of Zeta

*Dr. Gish was not of the original group but was added to the list at the time of the institution of the chapter. He is still in practice at South Bend, Indiana, at the age of seventy-two.

Psi Fraternity from Texas died. Rob went back home with the body and died there from pneumonia.

In the autumn of 1882, in the beginning of my senior year, the society had acquired a fraternity house on rental and had grown to ten members. It seems a far cry to the early days of the Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity. So far as I know, I am the only one of the charter members alive.

The dreams and visions of youth, although based on hope and enthusiasm, seldom come true as did those of the founders of Nu Sigma Nu in the cherishing of their ideals. Nu Sigma Nu, the first medical school fraternity founded on the university basis, now (in 1929) has thirty-seven chapters, 1,301 active members, and 8,550 alumni, a total of 9,851 in its membership. It has among its members and alumni some of the most brilliant men in medicine in the world. It is not an aristocratic body, beyond that aristocracy of brains in which intelligent medical curiosity is the mainspring.

NU SIGMA NU'S EXECUTIVE COUNSELORS

Will Walter

Ernest Edward Irons

Continuity of policy and efficiency born of experience have characterized the administration of Nu Sigma Nu largely as the result of wise precedents established in the early years of the fraternity, tested over long periods and finally written into the constitution.

In 1914 the Grand Council created the office of Executive Counselor "in order further to retain the advice and counsel of men who have proved of exceptional value in service of the Executive Council." The Executive Counselor has no vote. His duties are purely advisory. He is elected for four years, or until his successor qualifies, at the closing session of the convention on unanimous recommendation of the then Executive Council. No one is eligible who has not served six years on the Executive Council.

Since this provision was made only the two men shown above have been elected to this office, Dr. Will Walter and Dr. Ernest Edward Irons. Each had previously served several terms as Executive Secretary and also as president of the Executive Council. Doctor Walter subsequently served as President of the Honorary Council and is now rounding out an unequalled service to the fraternity as senior editor of this semi-centennial history. At the semi-centennial convention his many contributions were fittingly honored.

During the regime of these two officers, the following important provisions were written into the constitution:

"Precedent No. 1. The office of G (3) being one which requires much time and experience to master, early in the history of the fraternity a resolution was passed to the effect that changes in this office should not be made except when absolutely necessary through incapacity or unwillingness to serve.

"Precedent No. 2. To free the convention from political intrigue as much as possible the G. C. have discouraged nominations for office by the chapters entertaining the convention. On the other hand, acknowledgment of the courtesy is customarily made by the nominating committee asking the hosts to name some man for the Honorary Council."

HIGH SPOTS IN THE HISTORY OF THE GENERAL FRATERNITY

MOTIVE

Having been asked to make historic record of the general fraternity from its inception in 1882 through the first half century of its progress, it seems wise first of all to emphasize the motives behind the urge to found such an organization. Without motive and without worthwhile ideals, such a community of effort would not have succeeded as has this fraternity. The social instinct of man dominates his actions in combined effort, but unless a worthy end is in view, little more than temporary cooperation results.

In a prelude to this volume, Brother Paul Barringer, the Nestor of Pi Mu Chapter at the University of Virginia, has made a brief study of the evolution of the family and of the fraternizing spirit, in a phylogenetic study of the mammary gland, the nursing contact, the personal responsibility for the care of offspring by parent. This was a development missing up to that time in the evolution of animal life.

In a story by the only survivor of the original group, Brother Will Mayo, head of the Mayo Clinic, we catch a glimpse of a motive, a purpose behind the organization. And in the motto adopted by this inspired group of five founders we realize the highly social, unselfish urge behind it.

As the fraternity has developed, other reasons for continued existence and for increasing growth have become manifest from time to time. These together with the high spots in that development, shall be the theme of this, our story.

HOLDING ITS STATUS

The first is the change from a proposed secret medical society, having roots in medical schools but branches in fields of practice, to a strictly medical college fraternity. The initial move against this spread of Nu Sigma Nu was in 1892, at the end of the first decade. It was however, not until 1897 that the acts were made official and final, and Nu Sigma Nu became, as it has remained, an undergraduate fraternity.

PUBLICATIONS

Another high spot was the unification of the inter-chapter relations through the development of the publications of the fraternity. Up to 1902 the only contact between the chapters had been the requirement of monthly inter-chapter letters. These, while possible with a limited number of chapters, were impossible with an increased number. As a matter of fact, such letters were never written with any regularity. A manual had been published in 1888 and another in 1891, in which the minutes of the meetings and the list of members, together with the constitution and by-laws, were printed, but there had been no chapter intercommunication; no news of events.

In 1897 the first strictly Nu Sigma Nu directory was issued, but it was not until 1902 at the eighth convention that a definite effort was made to unite the chapters by a publication. At that time a committee on publication recommended that the fraternity "publish an official organ; numbers to be issued as often as seen fit by the publishing board; that the board of trustees of the fraternity be an advisory board of the publication." Following this recommendation, at the ninth convention the fraternity became "subscriber to a journal to be known as the Intercollegiate Medical Journal to the number of at least twenty-five copies for each chapter, and one for each active member in excess of twenty-five active members." In other words, the fraternity sponsored and subsidized a journal to be under their advisory control, to contain medical-intercollegiate news, not only of schools in which we had chapters but of other schools as well. The plan called for a strictly fraternity part to be bound in the issues which went to members of the fraternity. This journal was edited jointly by F. Gurney Stubbs of Zeta and myself, with the collaboration of men in medical schools. It was fairly well patronized outside of the fraternity. But in 1899 at the tenth convention "the editors of the Intercollegiate Medical Journal report the necessity of discontinuing the publication with Volume II because of delinquencies on the part of three chapters against whom charges have been preferred, there being no authority for taking funds from other sources than the per capita tax which covered these subscriptions." Without the full subsidy of every chapter it could not go on.

There was then evolved an enlarged directory to be published biennially, beginning with Nu Sigma Nu in 1899. One was published in 1899, one in 1901, another in 1903, none in 1905, the fourth in 1907 under the name of "Nu Sigma Nu in 1907." This was the Quarter Centennial Edition and contained the history as known up to that date with biographies of all the then Fellows.

In 1910 at the sixteenth convention was founded the bulletin system practically as in use now, with geographic catalogs at two year intervals. From the monies set aside for publications there has gradually grown a fund which now makes possible this volume.

As a final means of stimulating interest, promptness and perfection in chapter letters for publication in the bulletins, it remained for Galen Graves to evolve and present to the Executive Council the trophy idea. His suggestion was approved by the Council and the Trophy authorized in 1921 for presentation beginning with 1920. It is known as the Bulletin Trophy; was designed and executed in the Tiffany New York Studios, and is a creation of dignity and simple beauty. It is held for the succeeding year by the chapter whose historian submits the best chapter history for the current year. As his reward the historian receives an order for a graduate fraternity badge, to be honored after he shall have received his M.D. degree. The award is made by vote of the chapters, but only those are eligible whose chapter material (letter, news items and photographs) is in the hands of the Council Secretary by January first of the bulletin year.

The first winner (1920) was Alfred Blalock, Beta Beta of Hopkins; the second (1921) Theodore H. Hauser, Pi (Alpha Kappa Phi) of Washington University in St. Louis. Next in order the winners were D. S. Ensign, Beta Delta, Iowa; John G. P. Cleland, Beta Mu at McGill, Montreal; R. R. Squier, Beta Beta, the second time for Hopkins; Wallace R. Bostwick, Beta Zeta (Delta Epsilon Iota), Yale; Granville F.

Knight, Iota, Columbia, New York; then Zeta, Northwestern, for two years in succession by Paul H. Wosika in 1929 and by Floyd E. Boys in 1930. It now rests with Alpha Chapter (quite appropriately at the time of the semi-centennial convention), the winning historian in 1931 having been Robert L. Brown of Michigan. There remain twelve plates to be filled, after which the plaque will rest with the chapter then holding the most places.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Another high spot was the gradual evolution of the Executive Council, which first came into being at the twelfth convention in 1902, followed later (1914) by the creation of the office of Advisory Counsellor known as Executive Counsellor. The Executive Council maintains a line of succession of experienced and interested Fellows, "being composed of the active president, two ex-presidents, the secretary of the Council and two others, to be known as directors." The office of Executive Counsellor was created in order that the advice and counsel of those who had served for long periods could be retained. It is a non-voting office; merely advisory.

FINANCE

The fourth, and in some ways perhaps the most important element in the fraternity's physical progress was the financial set-up, by virtue of which the fraternity has been able to carry on from the beginning without financial embarrassment. I look back upon my part in this with the utmost satisfaction, having always been opposed to any system which taxes the many for the benefit of a few; the inactive for the active. Alumni who wish may enjoy continued fellowship, without the payment of dues or assessments to chapter or fraternity.

Do the Alumni Fellows of Nu Sigma Nu appreciate that during the years of their memberships in this organization no assessment has ever been made against them since graduation? No alumnus has ever been called upon to pay even for the Bulletin of his own chapter, and this has been accomplished without undue burden upon the active men in the chapters; at the same time by our plan of finance, funds have always been available for the fraternity's needs. On occasion, chapters reluctantly ask pledges for building funds or other voluntary contributions, but no assessment is ever possible as such, and men who give to their parent chapters are after all only contributing to the development of homes for the boys, to which they themselves may return in later life to renew friendships and re-establish contacts.

DEGREE OF MERIT CEREMONY

A fifth development of importance was the foundation of a Degree of Merit ceremony. It was established at the eleventh convention in Ann Arbor in 1900. By this the fraternity seeks to honor Fellows who have rendered distinguished service in the science or art of medicine. From the beginning secrecy was carefully safeguarded, the recipient being unaware of his selection. No man can receive the honor who obviously seeks it. To be so honored, the candidate must be unanimously recommended by the then Executive Council of the Fraternity, and then unanimously approved by every living man who has previously received the Degree. Not more than an average of one Merit Degree a year can be bestowed, but the rare award of the degree so far has made the honor the more highly prized.

The ceremony for this Degree has now been perfected and will become a function of increasing interest with forthcoming conventions, where at the closing banquet session the Degree is conferred.

This Degree was first conferred in 1902 at the twelfth convention in Cincinnati upon Victor C. Vaughan and G. C. Huber of Michigan and Nicholas Senn of Rush Medical College. In 1906 at the fourteenth convention in Syracuse, it was conferred upon Frederick G. Novy of Michigan, in 1908 at the fifteenth convention at Toronto upon William H. Welch of Hopkins, at the nineteenth convention in 1916 upon J. P. McMurrich* of Toronto University, and in 1932 upon William H. Park of New York University at the Semi-centennial celebration at Michigan.

Nov. 5, 1916.

*Dear Dr. Walter:

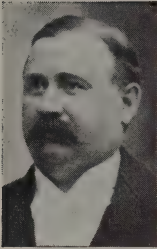

I cannot tell you how deeply I appreciated the concluding incident of the Banquet the other night and how much I feel indebted to you and the other members of the Executive for, it was, beyond question the pleasantest experience that has ever come to me in connection with my work. And it was all the pleasanter that up to the last moment I had no suspicion that it was myself that you were "gunning for."

I would be very much obliged if you could let me have a copy of the poem; it and the medal together would be among my choicest possessions.

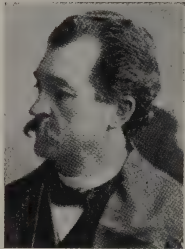

Yours very truly,

J. Playfair McMurrich.

RITUAL REVISION

The sixth, and one of the outstanding developments, has been the evolution of the so-called secret work of the society—an increasing amount of which is no longer a secret—by which the outstanding characters in the history of ancient, medieval and modern medicine are portrayed.

The story of the ritual is of interest as it has been evolved from a Masonic type of the early day to the medically historic type of the present. Something of this story appears in the proceedings of the semi-centennial convention elsewhere in this volume. The complete record of its development is contained in Scroll Number VIII. Suffice it to say that a revision was ordered in 1902 and that the first revised rituals were given to the chapters in 1905.

At the beginning of the organization, there had been four officers and four characters in the ritual; Aesculapius, Hippocrates, Galen and Herophilus. The character of Malpighi was added later, and at the first revision Aristotle was added; later Malpighi was changed to the present custodian, Sydenham.

The third and last revision was ordered at the twenty-fifth convention in Iowa City and was first employed at the semi-centennial convention. Reference to this may also be found in the proceedings of that convention.

The conception of the historic element was contained in the original ceremony and naturally bears the imprint of the academic fraternity Fellows. As it has evolved, these stereotyped forms have been replaced by a more original, instructive and educational content, particularly in the dramatization of medical history.

WAR SERVICE

The first American medical officer to sacrifice his life in America's cause in the great war was Lieutenant William T. Fitzsimmons of Beta Theta Chapter (Kansas), who was killed by a German bomb dropped in the hospital of the Harvard Unit with which he was in service.

The answer of Nu Sigma Nu men to the call of their country will ever be the glory of the fraternity. The hallowed memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice will endure as an inspiration for all time to those who follow. To record anything like a complete list of the brothers who answered the call would be too great a task. We know that every active member of Chi (Toronto) went overseas; that many of the chapters in the States gave more than half their members to service overseas or at home. It is hoped that someone may in time make a complete record of this service.

COOPERATION

In all of my experience with Nu Sigma Nu the spirit of cooperation has been dominant. To be sure, the executive management of such an organization tends to be a one man affair. Committee work in most societies of which I have knowledge, is generally done by one individual; one assumes responsibility. He may call for advice and counsel, but in the end, and particularly in such far flung and widely separated groups as a fraternity presents, it generally falls to the lot of one to carry on fairly alone.*

Nu Sigma Nu has been managed thus, except in the first part of the early decade when the men were closely associated in the new venture; good counsel and fine cooperation have always been forthcoming in our fraternity, however. To this end, frequent conventions have been an aid and the early provision, that the Grand Council should always be in session so that action could be taken at any time by mail, has proven most valuable.

John Irwin, who took the reins toward the end of the first decade, had more of a Masonic than an undergraduate fraternity background, so naturally, in his great enthusiasm, he swung to the Masonic form. Lyster, on the other hand, was a conservative and through close association with both Beta and Alpha undergraduate groups, hung on until the tide turned. Thaddeus Walker was a Fellow of ideas. It was hard to keep up with him after "the turn" landed the job on me.

As I recall my regime, there was no friction in the years of my close association. Naturally there were differences and many times the conservatives had to put on the brakes.

It is a pleasure to pay tribute to these men and to others as well who made like contributions; to acknowledge the generosity of counsel manifested by such Fellows as Christison of Epsilon, Stubbs of Zeta, Hyndman of Theta, Novy, Edmunds and Huber of Alpha. Mention should also be made of Kerr of Cornell and Stiles of Alpha (now with Mu), who were ever helpful. Prentiss from Xi, affiliated many years with Beta Delta, was an inspiration. He brought us something different. The work of Irons in co-ordination was masterly. He was the connecting link between my one man era and that of his successor; at that time the steering was somewhat difficult, requiring a steady pilot.

Now with the turn of the half century we find again the one man responsibility, and it is a pleasure to pay tribute to the way the job has been done since Irons' time and is now being carried on by Grand Galen Graves.

The fraternity now closely woven should go far, and should bring benefit to schools of her election, to the men who make up her fellowship and to the cause of medical education everywhere.

SOME DETAILS OF THE STORY

BEGINNINGS

We shall quote freely from the stories of the pioneers as recorded in the old publications, in order that the reader may absorb the feeling as well as the fact of those early days. It seems that not only every member, but many of the first group of initiates, contributed something of value to the fundamental organization, either in the phrasing of preamble (Bailey), of secret work and badge (Stephens, Strong and Frye, and later Main), of mythologic history (Main), constitution and organization (Frye and Mayo), finance (Gish), all more or less aiding in the many forms and details incident to such a development.

CHARTER MEMBER FRYE

The manual of 1888 contained a preface by Charles M. Frye, a charter member, from which we quote:

"It was in the spring of 1881 that a few members of the medical department of the University of Michigan came to realize the necessity for some tie that should bind together the best elements in the profession, a tie that should be stronger than any code, for it embodied the idea of a family of brothers, a fraternity.

"The men who conceived of this were Robert D. Stephens,* Ben G. Strong of Michigan, and (with pardonable pride) the writer of this early history.

"Robert D. Stephens has been admitted to a higher fraternity which knows of no separation of its members, but his influence and impress on the organization of Nu Sigma Nu remains with us, and shall ever be remembered and honored. He died in discharge of duty while accompanying the remains of a Zeta Psi brother to his last resting place.

"The idea, once conceived, began to multiply by the enlistment of others in the project. Each brought to it some characteristic of his own, these becoming so interwoven that they formed a compact body.

"The closing of the college year 1880-81 checked the growth of the new idea and the seed lay dormant until the next year, when it manifested new life. From notes in my possession the exact date of the organization of Nu Sigma Nu is found to be March 2, 1882. On that evening five men met in the room of F. C. Bailey on Ann Street. There were Bailey, B. G. Strong, R. D. Stephens, W. J. Mayo and C. M. Frye.

"Meetings were held from time to time and a good deal of work accomplished. On March 13 the badge was decided upon, and on March 30 Messrs. Mayo and Frye visited the firm of Roehm and Wright, Detroit, and ordered a sample. The first Nu Sigma Nu badge was received by the fraternity on April 5. It was inspected by the members and an order was sent the same day.

"On April 10, at the room of W. J. Mayo, John L. Gish was admitted to the fraternity. As we had no pins and had manifested no life to the outside world, Gish was admitted without initiation, and is, therefore, enrolled as a charter member.

"On April 20, 1882, badges were worn in public and the existence of a new fraternity, Nu Sigma Nu, was announced. The first man initiated was F. W. Main. This was on May 14, 1882, the ceremony occurring in the house on the corner of

*Biography taken from the Semi-Centennial Biographic Catalogue (Xi Chapter) of Zeta Psi Fraternity, N. Y. 1899, p. 566: Stephens, Robert Douglas, M.D., son of Moor and Katherine (Traver) Stephens; b. 1860, Nov. 5. Mount Clemens, Mich., prep. Mount Clemens High School; Lit. Dept. Univ. of Mich., 1878-79; Dept. of Med. and Surgery, Univ. of Mich., 1879-83; the degree of M.D. was conferred by the Faculty at commencement, 1883, after his death; initiated 1873, Oct. 5; died before completing his college course of pneumonia contracted from exposure attending the burial of Ralph Kuechler, '84, in Austin, Texas; d. 1883, Feb. 19, Galveston, Texas. (R. Kuechler died in Ann Arbor, Feb. 3, 1883.)

Washington and State Streets. (See illustration in Part IV.)

"It would seem that this first initiation was prophetic of the growth and character of the fraternity, for the new member brought to it a zeal and enthusiasm that was excelled by none, and in the modeling of the secret work of the fraternity, he has been indefatigable. 'In unity there is strength'; not merely physical, but mental and moral.

"Each member of Nu Sigma Nu has more responsibility because he is a component part of a body that has a standing and wields an influence. The fraternity has ever been an incentive to study, in order that its reputation might be sustained and advanced, and in the intimate knowledge each of the other the characters of all have been rounded, polished and brought to a higher development.

"In closing this little sketch of the genesis of Nu Sigma Nu, I can do no better than to quote the sentiment of the first toast of the first annual banquet of the fraternity, the response being by the brother gone:

*'We few, we happy, we band of brothers,
For he today that sheds his blood with me
Shall be my brother.'*"

CHARTER MEMBER BAILEY

Other interesting things have come to light in a discourse by another charter member, Frederick Bailey, number two, in fact, on the list of charter members, taken from the report of the Syracuse convention in 1906, as follows:

"To return to Nu Sigma Nu. The last year (1883) with us was full of storms and excitement, the storm center being largely with the faculty; and yet it passed all too soon. Nu Sigma Nu was born, a thriving infant, too; but her future was shrouded in darkness and doubt. Would she survive, and if so, what would be her destiny? Today, the answer is easy; but then we could only hail her, and in Longfellow's words exclaim:

*'O child, O new-born denizen
Of life's great city! On thy head
The glory of the morn is shed
Like a celestial benison! Here at the portal thou dost stand,
And with thy little hand, Thou openest the
Into the future's undiscovered land.'*

"Does someone inquire what motive inspired the organization, what excuse there was for the existence of the fraternity? I answer, it was not all for social life; not all for knowledge; not all for college politics; not any for notoriety. But it seemed to me, when I wrote the preamble* to the constitution, and, as I believe it was there somehow expressed, that the greatest weakness of the medical profession was its lack of thorough organization and of a friendly, supporting and protecting fellowship."

"Doctors have failed to limit the use of their knives to operations upon their patients, till some medical wag has said he did not know whether his neighboring physicians were his bitterest friends or his dearest enemies.

"Now, Nu Sigma Nu is not a panacea for all this; but she is a power, or should be, to keep worthy men in touch.

"The enthusiasm shown by the fraternity during its first year of existence was really remarkable, and has rarely been paralleled in this history of Greek-letter fraternities. As shown above, badges were adopted, ordered and worn publicly, and the first initiation was held, all within seven weeks. The date of the first initiation was March 14, 1882, at which time one initiate, F. W. Main, of Jackson, Michigan, was enrolled. Two of the most prominent members of the then medical faculty, Professors Donald MacLean and George E. Frothingham, were elected to 'honorary membership'; and on the evening on May 31 the first banquet was held in the parlors of the old Saint James Hotel, the full chapter, nine members, being present.

"The year 1882-83 began auspiciously, since all of the active members returned and entered upon the work of strengthening the fraternity, without any loss of their former zeal. During this year seven new members were initiated, and the organization became established upon a firmer foundation. On the evening of June 2, 1883, the second banquet was held at Hangsterfer's Parlors, at which thirteen active members and the two honorary members, the full chapter, were present. With the ending of this year, four seniors graduated and left college to enter upon their life work. During the year the fraternity suffered a great loss in the death of R. D. Stephens, which occurred while he was away from college in the month of February, 1883. The chapter felt his loss keenly, as he was one of its strongest members, and perhaps the most instrumental of all the founders in the starting of the society.

*The actual phrasing of the preamble to the constitution, which it seems that Bailey drew up, was as follows:

Believing that a lack of association and organization constitutes the greatest weakness among both students and graduates of medicine, our chosen and the noblest of all professions; and desiring by all honorable means to further the best interests of that profession, as well as to add to the sum total of our individual good, by the closer binding of old and the formation of new friendships and affiliations, by the possession of that strength which union gives, and by the cultivation of those manly virtues and graces so essential to the true physician—therefore we do hereby organize this fraternity and adopt the following constitution.

"The following year, 1884, also was one of continued prosperity. During this session six new active members were enrolled, and Professor George A. Hendricks was admitted to honorary membership. That the members of the fraternity during the year 1883-84 were among the best men in their classes is seen from the fact that four of them were acting as assistants to the various members of the faculty of the medical department. Scholarship has always been one of the things of which Alpha Chapter has been justly proud, and it is worthy of note that the tendency was so early developed."

THE GRAND CHAPTER

From 1884 to 1886 the history of the fraternity was one of constantly increasing growth and prosperity. The grand chapter organization was completed at Jackson, Michigan in the year 1886, with the following officers; G. Ae., F. W. Main; G. Hp., G. A. Haynes; G. G., S. H. Culver; G. Hr., J. L. Gish.

FIRST CONVENTION

The first grand chapter convention and banquet were held at the Hawkins House, Ypsilanti, April 15, 1886. The following preamble to the constitution was adopted at this time:

ARTICLE I —This body shall be known as the Grand Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity.

The Grand Chapter shall consist of three alumni of the fraternity and two delegates of each chapter.

The Alumni shall be known as the Council.

The members of the Council shall serve for a period of four years. At each annual meeting of the Grand Chapter an alumnus shall be chosen by a two-thirds vote to fill the vacancy caused by the retiring member.

Each officer of the Council shall hold his office until the Secretary receives the written acceptance of the newly elected member to succeed him.

ARTICLE II —The object of this body shall be the governing of all bodies of the fraternity and the promotion of the best interests of the whole order by all means within its power.

ARTICLE III—The Council of the Grand Chapter shall be the executive head of the fraternity.

The Council shall have the power of granting chapter charters upon the order of the Grand Chapter.

ARTICLE IV—The officers of the Council shall be the same as the officers of the chapter, with the prefix Grand before the officer's name, and the duties shall be similar to the duties in the chapters.

ARTICLE V—The annual convention of the Grand Chapter shall be held during the month of November.

ARTICLE VI—A motion to establish a chapter may be made by any member of the Grand Chapter, and established by a unanimous confirmatory vote of a convention."

Then follow the conditions of authorization; fees required, the list of supplies to be furnished; instructions to delegates to conventions; all very complete and fundamental.

FURTHER PROGRESS

The following is a quotation from the pen of Charles A. MacGregor of Dayton, Ohio (Alpha 1889), on the subject of "Further Progress":

"In the year 1886, the year of my matriculation, the University of Michigan required for entrance in the medical department either a diploma from a very restricted list of first class high schools or an examination. The present four-year course, with two years of pre-medical education, was not established for many years. The classes were known as Freshman, Junior and Senior. The course of instruction was largely by didactic lectures, together with a maximum of time devoted to laboratories. Clinical material at that early date was rather limited.

"In some of the classes both the Freshmen and Juniors were in attendance the full year, the subject being covered but once in the two years. Both classes were quizzed together in one of the large amphitheatres—in the year 1886 some two hundred and seventy-six students. This was a severe test for both, since the Freshmen thought that the wise Juniors, not having studied the subject since the previous year, had had plenty of time to forget. This was especially true of anatomy. It was so embarrassing a situation that I have seen men crawl on their hands and knees up the aisles to escape as the quiz master neared their names.

"The 'Palladium', the fraternity publication of the year 1887, lists as Fratres in Urbe the following members of the faculty as members of Alpha: George E. Frothingham, Professor of Materia Medica and Ophthalmology; Donald MacLean, A.M., M.D., Professor of Surgery; George A. Hendricks, M.S., M.D., Assistant in Surgery.

"In 1885 Victor C. Vaughan, Ph.D., M.D., afterwards Professor of Hygiene and Physiological Chemistry, became a member. An amusing incident concerning Dr. Vaughan occurred during the year 1889-90 at Columbia University, New York, where the writer was then a student. Professor Chandler, who was lecturing on 'Shallow Wells', said: 'There is a man out in Michigan who says he has found typhoid germs in well water; but I think the man in Michigan does not know a typhoid germ when he sees one.' This statement seemed very strange to me, having been taught throughout my Michigan course that infected water was the main cause of typhoid.

"During my active membership, I never knew of any quarrel or dispute of any kind arising among the Brothers. We were a happy congenial group; like one large family. There were no jealousies or cliques among us. I think fraternity life in Nu Sigma Nu at that time was a much more pleasant experience than in any fraternity today.

"Initiation was completed in one evening, and after the fun was over, we were all Brothers alike. After initiation there were no chores for Freshmen, nor were they again expected to run errands for upperclassmen."*

EXPANSION

At a meeting held May 4, 1889, which was the Third Grand Chapter Meeting, at Homer, Michigan, the institution of Beta Chapter at the Detroit College of Medicine was authorized, and on May 17, 1889, Beta was instituted. On March 26, 1890, Gamma Chapter was instituted at the Medico-Chirurgical Medical College at Philadelphia.

On May 28, 1890, the Fourth Convention was held at Detroit, and here the fifth officer, to be known as Malpighi, (Custodian), was added.

1891 was a year of expansion in which three chapters were instituted, to-wit: Delta on February 2 at the then Western Pennsylvania Medical College (now Pittsburgh) in Pittsburgh; Epsilon on February 21 at Minnesota, and Zeta on March 28 at the Chicago Medical College (now Northwestern).

The first manual, printed in 1888, contains a revised, amplified constitution with amendments made in 1889 affixed. As amended it became the third known constitution.

The Fifth Grand Chapter Meeting was held in Detroit on February 13, 1890. In 1892 two more chapters were instituted, namely: Eta on February 18 at the Chicago College of

*Details of the second Grand Chapter meeting have not been found.

Physicians and Surgeons (now Illinois); Theta on March 12 at the Medical College of Ohio in Cincinnati (now University of Cincinnati).

THE FIRST TURN

The Sixth Grand Chapter Meeting was held on February 17, 1892, at Pittsburgh with Delta Chapter, and was, I think, the turning point in development.

At this, the end of the first decade, eight chapters had been installed, one of which had been put under suspension. Two of the remaining seven were in schools inherently weak at that time. The one under suspension, Medico-Chirurgical, was withdrawn within the year. The two weak ones have since developed into robust chapters and the schools raised to rank with other grade A schools.

My first experience in the Councils of the fraternity was at this meeting. I was serving an internship in Philadelphia when I received a call to represent Alpha as delegate. Waldo Clark, the Alpha man who had instituted Beta, and Thaddeus Walker of Beta, were Beta delegates. This was one of the high spots in the fraternity development; at this time its course was radically changed; rather, it was returned to the original channels.

First, many amendments to the constitution were there recommended, in effect a new constitution, so numerous were the changes.

Second, some restriction was placed upon membership. From the beginning faculty men had been divided into active and what was then called "Honorary Membership."* A plan was in process of evolution in the Grand Chapter to include graduates of medicine in general practice in order to spread the fraternity membership beyond the confines of the schools in which chapters were placed; virtually to admit men anywhere who might prove of value—particularly to the men going out into practice. Thus a sort of medical Masonry was being promulgated by the then acting heads of the fraternity.

*Those elected were merely notified of their election and often by mail, a custom which led to much embarrassment in later years when men were often nominated to Honorary Membership without previous solicitation and afterwards found to be fellows of other like orders.

It is interesting to note that it was largely through the initiative of another Zeta Psi Fellow, Thaddeus Walker, that the action against this movement was promulgated. Brother Walker was the only Fellow of an academic fraternity in Beta, as Stephens, also a Zeta Psi, had been the only undergraduate fraternity man in the initial Alpha group.

This scheme received its death blow at this, the Sixth Convention—a fitting close to the first decade.

Third, at this convention two sizes of badges were made official.

Fourth, a resolution was passed to hold conventions biennially instead of annually, beginning with 1893 at Chicago, where the World's Fair was to be held.

Fifth, at this time the Grand Chapter was changed to the Grand Council, to be made up of "its own elective officers; the Ae. and one delegate from each chapter, and an alumnus to be chosen by each chapter." (See charts and photographs at end of this narrative.)

FURTHER EXPANSION

Two more chapters were added in 1893; first, Iota on February 24 at the College of Physicians and Surgeons (now Columbia) in New York, and Kappa on March 11 at Rush Medical College.

The Seventh Convention was held on June 12, 1893, in Chicago, under the auspices of the Chicago chapters jointly. At this meeting the Gamma Charter was withdrawn and all members expelled but one. At this convention also the Grand Council meetings were finally fixed to be held biennially, which brought the eighth convention in 1895. Further action was the addition of another officer in the person of Aristotle (Historian).

The Eighth Convention was held on June 3, 1895, with Epsilon as host.

1896 witnessed the advent of three more chapters, the first being Lambda on March 14 in the University of Pennsylvania; Mu on March 18 at Syracuse University, and Nu on June 1 at the University of Southern California.

On April 27 of this year the Articles of Incorporation were filed with the Department of State in Michigan in the following form:

THE IMPORTANT NINTH CONVENTION

My first experience in an executive capacity for the fraternity was in 1897 in Philadelphia, where the Ninth Convention of the Grand Council was assembled.

(1) At this meeting a new constitution was adopted by the terms of which the fraternity was made for all time a strictly undergraduate body and election to honorary membership was discontinued. Since that day every candidate, either in active under-graduate work or on the faculty, has been duly initiated.

(2) The Honorary Council was created, through the medium of which faculty men could be honored and their advice made available. (See charts and photographs at end of this narrative.)

(3) This was the beginning also of a real association of chapters for the promotion of the general welfare of the fraternity. Up to this time, except for an occasional manual, there had been no chapter intercommunication. The Intercollegiate Medical Journal was authorized as the official organ of the fraternity at this convention.

(4) Xi Chapter was instituted on February 13, 1897 at New York University Medical College, New York City. This is now New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College.

The following is a brief outline of the period of continued expansion:

1899. The Tenth Convention, June 10, was held during the American Medical Association meeting at Columbus, Ohio. Iota was here suspended.* Omicron Chapter was authorized for installation on December 18 at Albany Medical College, Albany, New York (now Union). The Intercollegiate Medical Journal was discontinued after Volume II, through non-support.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT CONVENTION

1900. The Eleventh Convention was held February 16 and 17 in Ann Arbor and Detroit, at which a Committee on Revision of the Ritual was appointed. Pi (Alpha Kappa Phi) was authorized to be instituted on February 25 at Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri; Rho Chapter to be installed at Jefferson Medical College on February 15; Sigma Chapter at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, April 4; Tau Chapter at Cornell University, New York on June 11; Upsilon Chapter at Cooper Medical College (now Stamford) and Phi Chapter at the University of California were installed on September 7 in San Francisco.

The Merit Degree was established and conferred upon Brothers Victor C. Vaughan, G. C. Huber and Nicholas Senn at this convention.

Lastly, a biennial publication was authorized.

In 1902 Chi Chapter was instituted, February 15, at the University of Toronto, Canada.

At the Twelfth Convention, March 14 and 15, in Cincinnati, several matters of importance were given attention. First, red and white carnations were constituted as the official flowers of the fraternity. Second, the fraternity yell was adopted.

*Re-established in 1904.

Nu Sig—Nu Sig—Nu Sig Nu
Nu Sig—Nu Sig—Nu Sig Nu.

Third, the one size badge was made official. Fourth, a trial presentation of the revised ritual was given. Fifth, a list of the approved schools to which extension could be made was voted favorably. (In all of these schools chapters were later established.) Sixth, it was recommended that arrangements be made with Alpha for the use of her vault for the storage of archives, for which a contribution to the building of Alpha Chapter House was later made. Seventh, the publication of a catalog directory every second year with bulletins on occasion when material offered and funds allowed, were authorized. Eighth, the Executive Council as now constituted was then created.

In 1904 Pi Mu (Psi) Chapter was instituted on February 20 at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

The Thirteenth Convention was held on May 6 and 7 at St. Louis where the American Medical Association was in session. The revised ritual was approved. Iota Chapter was reinstated at Columbia University, and Beta Alpha was instituted, October 10, at the University of Maryland, Baltimore. The convention date was fixed finally for the Thanksgiving recess, biennially, from 1906.

In 1905 Beta Beta Chapter was installed, March 18, at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. The revised ritual was here first used, after which the scrolls were distributed to the Chapters. Beta Gamma (I. C. I.) Chapter was instituted December 8 at the University of Buffalo.

In 1906 The Fourteenth Convention was held with Mu in Syracuse, November 30 and December 1. The Merit Degree was conferred upon F. G. Novy at this convention.

Beta Delta Chapter was instituted December 18 in the University of Iowa, Iowa City, and Beta Epsilon, December 21, at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

In 1907 Beta Zeta (Delta Epsilon Iota) Chapter was installed January 19 at Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut.

This year the quarter centennial volume, "Nu Sigma Nu in 1907," was published.

This brought to a close the first period of expansion and upbuilding of the fraternity, twenty-nine charters having been issued, one of which had been withdrawn and one suspended.

Under the influence of the Bulletins, development was accelerated along all lines, particularly in the chapter inter-relations and in the perfection of details of supervision and mutual cooperation. Quality and not quantity became even more the watchword, coincident with the marked raising of standards of admission both as to the entrance of students of medicine in the schools and as to fellowship in Nu Sigma Nu. More and more, scholarship became the prime requisite. Expansion was henceforth by election upon petition only.

In 1908 on May 16 Beta Eta Chapter was instituted at Indiana School of Medicine, Bloomington.

The Fifteenth Convention was held on November 28 and 29 at Toronto University with Chi Chapter. The Degree of Merit was conferred upon Professor William H. Welch of Beta Beta at this convention.

In 1909, on February 6, Beta Theta Chapter was instituted at the University of Kansas School of Medicine, Lawrence, Kansas. Nu chapter was suspended November 22, 1909, because of the school's financial difficulties.

In 1910, on February 4, Beta Iota Chapter was instituted at Tulane University, New Orleans.

The Sixteenth Convention was held with Sigma, Western Reserve, Cleveland, Ohio, November 25 and 26. Authority was now given for the publication of regular Bulletins. At this, the sixteenth convention, the Executive Council as now constituted was established and the publication of a geographic catalog every second year was authorized.

In 1912 The Seventeenth Convention assembled November 29 and 30 at Baltimore with Beta Alpha of Maryland and Beta Beta of Johns Hopkins as hosts.

In 1913 Beta Eta Charter of Indiana was transferred by order of the Executive Council from Bloomington to Indianapolis on January 1. Beta Kappa Chapter was instituted on March 15 at Harvard Medical School.

In 1914 The Eighteenth Convention met on November 27 and 28 with Lambda (Pennsylvania) and Rho (Jefferson) Chapters in Philadelphia. The office of Executive Counsellor was created at this convention, an advisory, non-voting office, designed to retain the counsel of Fellows long experienced in the fraternity's executive affairs.

In 1915 Beta Lambda Chapter was instituted December 20 at Texas University School of Medicine, Galveston.

In 1916 The Nineteenth Convention met on December 1 and 2 at Chicago with Zeta Chapter (Northwestern), Eta (Illinois) and Kappa (Chicago) as hosts. The Degree of Merit was conferred at this convention upon James Playfair McMurrich.

In 1917 Ernest E. Irons, Secretary of the Executive Council, began active service in the Medical Corps of the United States Army, June 1. All funds and records were transferred to Will Walter, Executive Counsellor, on December 7 by Secretary Irons.*

The Twentieth Convention, due to be held in 1918, was postponed by the Executive Council because of war conditions, on recommendation of the Executive Counsellor.

In 1918 Beta Mu Chapter was instituted November 12 at McGill University, Montreal.

The records for 1919 show that "on nomination of Will Walter, the then Executive Counsellor, the chapters by mail elected Lieutenant Colonel E. E. Irons president of the Grand Council and Brother Stuart Graves secretary to succeed Brother Irons."

Beta Nu was instituted on May 12 at the University of Oregon Medical School, Portland.

The postponed twentieth convention was held on November 28 and 29 with the New York Alumni Association, Iota Chapter of Columbia, Xi of New York University and Bellevue Hospital, and Tau of Cornell in New York, acting as hosts.

In 1921 the Tiffany Bulletin Trophy was authorized by the Executive Council on November 27.

In 1922 The Twenty-First Convention was held on December 1 and 2 with Epsilon Chapter of Minnesota and the alumni of Minneapolis and St. Paul acting as hosts, followed by a program and banquet given by the alumni of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester on December 4 and 5.

This marks the end of the fourth decade, at which time there were thirty-four active and two inactive chapters.

*The creation of the office of Executive Counsellor proved a wise provision when this emergency arose (1917) and it fell to me, because of my familiarity with affairs through maintenance of contact as Executive Counsellor, to carry on. Fortunately I was able to do this since a broken shoulder had kept me from service. Irons is now Executive Counsellor. My suggestion is that every living Executive Counsellor remain in that capacity during his life. This provision, in conjunction with the plan of succession in office on the Executive Council, should insure safety in future emergencies. (W-W)

In 1924 Beta Xi Chapter was instituted February 26 at the University of Colorado School of Medicine, Boulder.

The Twenty-second Convention met on November 28 and 29 with Alpha Kappa Phi of Washington University and the St. Louis alumni.

In 1926 Beta Omicron Chapter was installed on January 2 at the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine at Madison.

The Twenty-third Convention assembled on November 26 and 27 with Omicron Chapter at Albany and Albany Alumni at Albany, New York.

In 1927 Beta Pi Chapter was instituted October 29 at the University of Vermont School of Medicine, Burlington. Delta Mu, a local fraternity antedating Nu Sigma Nu by two years and without doubt the oldest medical fraternity in any regular medical college, was absorbed.

In 1928 The Twenty-fourth Convention assembled, November 28 and 29, with Sigma Chapter of Western Reserve and Cleveland alumni. The Grand Council here adopted a constitutional amendment fixing the previous policy by officially providing for the granting of charters only to approved four-year schools. As hosts of this convention Sigma Chapter invited the delegates to assemble on Thanksgiving the day before the opening session for dinner, and entertainment such as perhaps a football game or a dance—a get-together idea. They established a precedent and the custom has since continued with success.

In 1930 The Twenty-Fifth Convention on November 27, 28 and 29, met with Beta Delta Chapter and Iowa Alumni at Iowa City. This proved to be a rousing convention with full representation. The third revision of the ritual was here authorized. A model initiation in which all parts had been memorized was an outstanding event, the portrayal being done in the lounge of the chapter house without use of a stage.

On March 7, 1931 Beta Rho Chapter was chartered at Duke University School of Medicine, Durham, North Carolina, with fine prospects.

THE SEMI-CENTENNIAL CONVENTION

The semi-centennial (twenty-sixth) convention was held on April 21 and 22, 1932 with Alpha Chapter and Michigan Alumni at Ann Arbor, Michigan. This was a fitting close to the half century of progress. Full details of the proceedings are published at the end of this volume. The Degree of Merit was awarded to William Hillock Park at the semi-centennial convention banquet. The third revised ritual and the new Merit Degree ceremony were both approved as used in the convention program. My revision of the ritual and my arrangement of the Merit Degree ceremony in verse, both as contemplated originally, were completed for presentation at this propitious time.

The charters issued during the half century totaled forty, of which one, Gamma, was withdrawn, from Medico Chirurgical College of Philadelphia (now the post-graduate department of Pennsylvania). The other, Nu, stands suspended with prospect of re-instatement.*

CONCLUSION

In the tables and in the charts, as well as in this summary, record has been made of high spots in developments up to this time. In chapter histories may be found details of their formation and progress, as well as evidence of individual characteristics. No two chapters ever have identical outlooks or interpretations; hence accomplishments vary. This is both necessary and valuable.

In an organization such as this, one way to progress is through the study by each chapter of outstanding accomplishments of other chapters. These are now available through the medium of the annual Bulletins and the Biennial Convention: both become foci for the dissemination of ideas and ideals. It is reasonable that individual chapters should conceive of definite improvements. If these can be passed on to other chapters, as is possible through these media, an increasing measure of progress may result.

Finally, to those of us who have watched the development and have seen representative delegates at conventions from time to time, the uniformity of type, the community of interest and the serious application to problems in hand, have been surprising. Like ideals create like tastes, leading finally to a great fraternity which is the best prospect for the future brotherhood of man.

SIR WILLIAM OSLER

M D., McGill, 1872. NEN, Johns Hopkins, May 8, 1909.

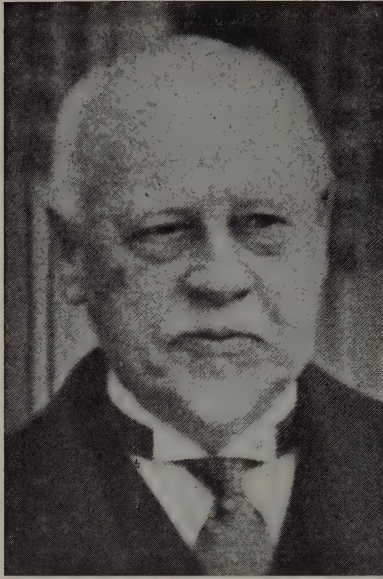

Osler's Badge is one of the most treasured possessions of Nu Sigma Nu. It was issued to him when he was initiated by the Beta Beta Chapter at Johns Hopkins on May 8, 1909. After his death Lady Osler gave it to Dr. W. W. Francis of the Osler Library at McGill while Dr. Francis was in Oxford. Dr. Francis has presented the badge to Beta Mu Chapter at McGill, Sir William's Alma Mater, "so that it can be borrowed if it is ever wanted for an exhibition in the Osler Library." The badge has been mounted on a bronze placque. Osler's library and his heart now rest at McGill and his Nu Sigma Nu badge is safely guarded by Beta Mu.

M.D., Columbia, 1875. NEN, Johns Hopkins, November 9, 1906

To have stepped, in the prime of life, into a position of acknowledged intellectual leadership in the profession of his choice; to have occupied that position, albeit unconsciously, for those forty years which have seen the most rapid strides in medical progress of all times; to have had such influence in the furtherance of the medical sciences in this country as to turn the tide of students seeking opportunities for higher education from the Old World to the New; to have been as ready in countless unrecorded ways to share his time and thought with those who were inconspicuous as with those who sat in high places; to have been no less universally respected for his great learning than beloved for his personal charm and companionability; to have stood knee-deep in honours unsought and to have remained seemingly unaware of them; to have rounded out with distinction two successive university positions and, with enthusiasm undimmed, to be now well launched on a third which he is no less certain to adorn—To have done so much, in so many ways, for so many years, and to have aroused no shadow of envy or enmity on the way, betokens not only unselfishness of purpose but that fineness of character which always has been and always will be an inspiration to mankind.

*This tribute to Dr. Welch was written by Harvey Cushing and was published anonymously in the proceedings of the celebration held on the occasion of Dr. Welch's eightieth birthday, April 8, 1930.

PREFACE TO PART III

The chapter histories have been written with the consciousness that important items may have been omitted. Both the author and the Grand Galen have made repeated efforts to obtain complete information. Barring possible errors in transcribing, all worthwhile data received have been inserted somewhere.

It is obviously impossible for an author to sense the atmosphere pervading each chapter and its individual characteristics without direct contact. Many things that seem noteworthy to the active fellows do not register beyond chapter walls.

Often plagiarism may be suspected. This is inevitable to an extent, memory processes being what they are; the intention has been always to credit the source. Apologies are due any who may feel slighted.

The chapter histories from Beta Kappa on have been contributed by our collaborator, Galen Graves, under whose regime these chapters were installed. The details of their formation and early activities are more fresh and vivid to him than are those of the dim, distant past to contributors to the early chapter events. The annual Bulletins have become more informative with the years.

The chapter histories are covered in three forms: first, a concise table of growth wherein events in the chapter and school are charted against the dates; second, a running story of each chapter in some detail; third, half tones of groups at about four year intervals, affording a cross section of chapter fellows through the years. By this means a picture of nearly every active fellow should appear somewhere.

Future historians will be grateful for correction of errors of omission or of commission, whether historic or biographic. All such should be sent at once to the Grand Galen, in whose office the fraternity records are kept on file.

In order to comply with our plan of covering histories under specific headings such as School, Chapter, et cetera, it has been necessary at times to break up the co-ordinated stories of generous contributors. Some curtailment of their contributions also has been necessary at times for lack of space.

Details of physical and faculty changes at the schools during the half century, with some of the accomplishments and contributions of alumni, may be made the subject matter of special publications by the chapters in line with the proposed new plan of fraternity publications calling for specific treatment of the chapters in the order of their semi-centennials. Before long then, Alpha should tell her story in more detail. Beta should come next in 1939 when her semi-centennial is celebrated; Delta and Epsilon in 1941 and others in order. The publication committee is developing this idea.

Under chapter activities, emphasis has been given to worthwhile innovations in chapter routines such as the choosing, coaching and initiation customs as well as social affairs and scholastic attainments. This should prove profitable to actives and interesting to alumni. Every chapter should be familiar with the ways of other chapters and should adopt such as appeal to them.

Some chapters always consult faculty alumni, either individually or through an alumni committee of sponsors, before extending bids. By this means they get not only first hand opinions on eligibility, but also gain the good will and co-operation of alumni. Many chapters have alumni committees who are advisors on finance, housing, etcetera. In at least one chapter an alumni initiation team gives the first two acts of the ritual, leaving only the third act to the active team. This custom tends to maintain the interest of graduates. One chapter reports inviting the initiates of a sister chapter to conduct the ceremonies on one occasion, providing added interest in that way. Most of the chapters record their social and educational programs, some of which are worth imitating. Two or three chapters publish bulletins for distribution among alumni to maintain contact. In at least one chapter an examination on fraternity history is a prerequisite to fellowship. Hitherto no complete history has been available, but with this volume in hand and with an outline of medical history also provided, it is hoped that chapters will universally require pre-study of the former with later examinations upon the latter. That was our hope when we put the story of the healing art into verse as a real aid to memorizing.

We recommend the reading by each chapter of the activities of other chapters as contained in this section to broaden the view and extend the benefits of chapter life. Accomplishment of these ends will alone justify the efforts of the publication committee.

Herein are the records of the years that are past. May the most be made of them in the years to come!

W-W

For the histories of Nu (Southern California, revived in 1934) and of Beta Kappa (Harvard) and the chapters which follow, the executive secretary must take responsibility. These lack the unique reminiscences which color most delightfully the stories of the older chapters. What these latter histories lack of such vivid recollections we hope is compensated for by the greater fullness and accuracy of the records pertaining to the founding of the younger chapters. Their period really covers the second quarter century of Nu Sigma Nu, beginning with the 1906 convention. Since that time the author has enjoyed the privilege of serving the fraternity continuously in chapter or council.

ALPHA

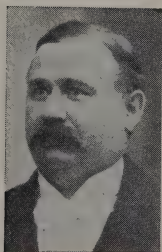

The story of Alpha, as Alpha Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu, really began in 1886 when the fraternity became a national organization. The first three years of Alpha are therefore a part of the history of the general fraternity and have been covered under that heading. To save repetition, the reader is referred to the first part of that record.

Of the original fellows only two are known to be living at this time, (1932): William J. Mayo, of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, and John L. Gish of South Bend, Indiana.

It was not until 1889 that the second chapter, Beta, was chartered in the Detroit College of Medicine. The details of that installation will be found in the story of Beta.

THE SCHOOL

DOCTOR VAUGHAN

In 1817, the Governor and the Judges of the Territory of Michigan, which then had a population of less than 7,000, passed an act establishing the University of Michigan with thirteen professorships, one of which was that of iatruca or medical sciences. It was the germ of the idea of a medical school. A new act was passed in 1821, repealing the former one and creating a University of Michigan in Detroit. The Trustees of the new University did little more than to secure from Congress the grant of valuable lands for its support, some of which they very promptly sold at a very low figure.

On January 26, 1837, Michigan was formally admitted as a State into the Union. The legislature of the new state, on March 18, passed the Organic Act establishing the University of Michigan, and two days later another Act located the University at Ann Arbor. In the first act it was specified that the University was to consist of three departments: The Department of Literature, Science and Arts; The Department of Law; and, The Department of Medicine. The first of these departments was opened in September, 1841.

The Department of Law, perhaps, should have been the next to be established, but in January, 1847, a petition was presented to the Board of Regents asking for the organization of the Medical Department. Owing to an adverse legal opinion no action was taken at the time. However, a year later the Board formally adopted a report whereby the School was established, money was appropriated for a laboratory building and professors were appointed. After some delay, due to the lack of funds, the Medical Building was finally completed, and when its doors were opened to students in the fall of 1850 a faculty of five professors were on hand to give instruction. The Law Department was not established until 1859.

The Medical Department was the first professional school established at the University. The example of Michigan in providing for higher education was taken up, largely by the newly-formed western states. At the present time thirty state universities have medical schools.

The new medical school started out with a course of two years of six months each. In those days the term of instruction in the medical colleges of the country, almost without exception, extended only over four months. The apprentice system was in vogue and since the instruction was given largely by lectures and recitations it was required for graduation that the student exhibit evidence of having pursued the study of medicine and surgery for the term of three years with some respectable practitioner of medicine (including lecture terms). This preceptorial system lasted for more than three decades.

In 1878 the course was lengthened to two years of nine months each, and in 1880 to three years of nine months each. This increase in time was brought about by the introduction of laboratory courses and hospital instruction. In 1890, the course was extended to four years of nine months each, thus permitting the further development of a graded course for the teaching of the rapidly growing basic sciences.

Another step taken at this time was the establishment of the first combined course in Arts and Medicine. This combination, though criticized at the time, has since then been very generally adopted by our universities.

The entrance requirements for the medical school in 1850 were much the same as those for entrance to the Literary College.

In 1890 the requirements for admission were advanced to a diploma from the classical course of an approved high school, but in 1896 the stress was placed upon having certain required languages and science subjects.

In 1909, the minimum requirement became two years of collegiate work; in 1929, this was increased to seventy hours and in 1931 it was advanced to ninety semester hours.

The school which opened in 1850 with five professors now maintains a staff of twenty-six professors, fourteen associate professors, twenty-nine assistant professors, sixty-nine instructors and seventy-five assistants, or a total of 213.

Laboratories were not a conspicuous part of the medical schools of 1850. True, rooms for dissection were provided, but the other sciences were either in their infancy or as yet unborn. At Michigan some laboratory chemistry was at first given in the medical building and with such success that it led in 1856 to the construction of the first chemical laboratory in a state university, if not the first in the country. The original small building was repeatedly enlarged and finally in 1909 the present chemical laboratory was completed and occupied. It was in the old chemical laboratory that physiological chemistry developed in the seventies. The first chairs in this subject were filled at Yale (Chittenden) and at Michigan (Vaughan) at about the same time.

In the eighties and early nineties the old medical building, which no longer exists, brought forth laboratories in anatomy (McMurrich), in histology (Huber), physiology (Sewall, Howell), pathology (Gibbes, Warthin) and pharmacology (Abel, Cushny). In 1888 the Hygienic Laboratory was built and the first systematic instruction in bacteriology given in this country was begun (Novy). The beginnings were small, but today the Medical School is provided with three large and commodious buildings for instruction in the basic sciences.

Of clinical instruction during the first two decades there was little. Private patients were brought into the lecture room, operated upon, if necessary, and removed to a boarding house. In 1869, the beginning of a hospital was made when one of the professor's houses on the campus was fitted out for that purpose. In 1875, the legislature appropriated a small sum of money for a wooden pavilion hospital of the type used during the Civil War and this was connected with the former building. This hospital remained in use until 1892 when a new brick hospital was erected on the hill overlooking the Huron River. In the following years repeated additions and extensions were made, but the conditions became far from satisfactory. In 1925, the present new hospital with a capacity of 835 beds was opened. Some of the old buildings have been retained so that the entire University Hospital has a capacity of 1312 beds. It is essentially a teaching hospital and as such it is unique.

A state psychopathic hospital was erected on the hospital grounds in 1906. It was the first University hospital for psychiatric teaching to be established in this country. It has a capacity of sixty-two beds and in the near future will be enlarged to provide ninety beds.

At the time of the opening of the medical school in 1850, the faculty elected one of their members as president who held this title until 1871, when he became dean (A. Sager). He was succeeded by A. B. Palmer in 1875 and after his death in 1887 the position was held by Corydon L. Ford (Alpha initiate 1889), followed by Victor C. Vaughan (Alpha initiate 1885), who was dean from 1891 to 1921 when he retired from service. It was during his administration that the school assumed its preeminent position. From 1921 to 1930 the deanship was held by Hugh Cabot. A change in the method of administration was then put into effect. The office of Dean was vacated and the administration was placed in the hands of an executive committee of five who were designated as Directors and later as Executives. The Committee consists of Frederick G. Novy, (Alpha), Executive for pre-clinical Departments and Chairman; Udo J. Wile, (Alpha), Executive for Clinical Departments; James D. Bruce, Executive for Post Graduate Medicine; Harley A. Haynes, Executive for Hospital; and Arthur C. Curtis, Secretary of the Medical School.

EARLY GROUPS OF ALPHA MEN

ALPHA CHAPTER, 1888-89

OLD CUT OF FOUNDERS GROUP, HANGING IN ALPHA'S CHAPTER HOUSE

This innovation in administrative methods gets away from a one-man control and, being a representative form of administration, it has proved a most harmonious and effective means of directing the Medical School.

THE CHAPTER

For the first fifteen years of her existence Alpha had no competition at the University. Since 1897 other medical fraternities have established chapters on the campus and their presence has served to stimulate Alpha to increased effort in securing high grade men. As a result of the increased entrance requirements to the school the student body is well prepared and good men are available for all of the fraternities.

For many years it has been the policy of Alpha to choose men who, primarily, will bring scholastic credit to the chapter. The result appears in the scholastic standing of Alpha as shown in the tabulated records of the University. For a period of seven years, beginning with 1920, Alpha held the highest scholastic average among the professional fraternities, and in 1929 it stood second in rank among some ninety fraternities in all the colleges of the University.

Much of this success is undoubtedly due to the close contact of the undergraduate and faculty fellows and to an earnest effort on the part of the undergraduates to do good work and bring credit to the chapter.

Alpha appropriately held the beautiful Tiffany plaque at the time she was host to the Semi-Centennial Convention, the trophy having been awarded to her 1931 historian, Robert L. Brown, who was the first winner for Alpha.

In 1930, Alpha announced the establishment of the Irwin Library. By the will of the late John L. Irwin, (A '89), the chapter was given the sum of one thousand dollars to be used for a library in the chapter house. The old chapter room on the first floor has been set aside for this purpose and has been furnished in a most pleasing manner. The library now has on its shelves the standard systems of medicine and surgery, several medical periodicals, and such other reference works as are useful to the fellows. Additions are made to the library from the income of the unused principal. The room offers a quiet retreat for browsing and study. Altogether, the Irwin bequest forms an invaluable nucleus for future development.

Alpha has entertained the Convention (not counting the early days) on two occasions, both of which are memorable. The first was the Eleventh Convention held on February 15 and 16, 1900. That convention is recalled as being one of the most unique gatherings in the experience of the participants, due to the unusual enthusiasm and spirit manifested. Some of the details of that convention have been incorporated in the general history. The second was the Semi-Centennial Convention which is recorded in detail in Part IV of Volume Two.

It appears that the members of Alpha have enjoyed from its very inception those privileges of fellowship that accompany living and co-operating together. The first initiation was held in the Goodrich house, at the southeast corner of State and Washington Streets, which is pictured in Part IV. According to one of that early group this took place in 1882-83. From that time on, until the completion of the house, Alpha perforce had to be contented with rented buildings.

During the first ten or twelve years of its existence it is unlikely that the chapter rented and managed an entire house. At that time there were not many houses in Ann Arbor that could accommodate more than six or eight students,— the University was still small, having less than 2,000 students. In the absence of any definite information it must be assumed that a fair sized group of the fellows engaged all the rooms in a house which thus became nominally the chapter quarters, though managed, as customary, by a landlady. Such quarters would be inadequate for a full gathering of the fellows and hence it became necessary to rent a down-town hall for that purpose.

The Ann Arbor Directory for 1892 lists a "Nu Sigma Nu Hall" as being on East Washington Street near Main Street. This is the only directory record of Nu Sigma Nu until 1895 when the chapter occupied a house on the southeast corner of Ingalls and Washington Streets. Of this place an alumnus writes that "this house was located perhaps a half block west of what was then an abandoned cemetery, since converted into a park.—I believe this park goes under the name of Felch Park. It lies directly in front of the present commodious Nu Sigma Nu Chapter House on Huron Street. So the old chapter house was almost within a stone's throw of the present one. It had two floors and an attic and looked like a residence. The attic was fitted up for lodge purposes. There the initiations and meetings of the fraternity were held. At that time both rooms and board were very good and inexpensive. There are today two buildings, standing side by side, which greatly resemble the old building, unless they have been torn down within the past year. According to my recollection, they are on the land we formerly occupied. I suspect that one of the two houses now standing there was our chapter house at that time." This house no longer exists, having been removed to give land for the Michigan League.

In 1896, the chapter house was located on the east side of North State Street between Ann and Catherine Streets. At this time because of increased membership it had to seek for a larger place and in 1897 and 1898 it occupied the Rathbone house on North Division Street (No. 114). During the following two years it rented a large house on East Huron Street (No. 715) to the east of the Unitarian Church. From 1901 to 1903, its home was on the northeast corner of Ann and State Streets. In the fall of 1903 it rented the Cornwell residence at 1009 Cornwell Place, of which an alumnus writes: "a house on a hill commanding a fine view of the valley and river. This accommodated fourteen men for rooms and twenty-five for meals". At the end of two years, the Chapter moved across the street to No. 1008, where it remained until its own building was completed. As far as the writer knows, the Chapter occupied seven different houses from 1895 to 1907, thus completing as a tenant, the first twenty-five years of its existence. During the past twenty-five years it has been in its own home.

For the chapters who do not own houses, a brief resume of the plan by which Alpha came into the occupancy of her present home will be of interest and of value. The sound financial basis upon which the house rests is largely due to the earnest and continued efforts of faculty alumnus Frederick G. Novy; its execution is due to the good spirit of all men of the chapter.

The idea of building a fraternity house was first put into tangible form in November, 1895, on the occasion of an initiation and banquet held in the old Hangsterfer Hall located on the southwest corner of Main and Washington Streets. The faculty members present subscribed $1,725 and the undergraduates signed pledges each to pay $125 in nine installments, the first of which was to be due on the January following the receipt of the medical degree by the subscriber, and the others following annually. The first two payments were to be $5 each; the next two $10 each; the following two, $15 each; then two of $20 each, and the ninth payment $25.

Articles of Association were signed on December 16, 1895, and duly filed and recorded on May 14 and June 9, 1896. The corporation is known as the "Alpha Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity". A Board of Control, consisting of seven members with F. G. Novy as Secretary and C. G. Darling as Treasurer was duly elected and an active campaign was started.

At the second meeting of the Board of Directors held October 12, 1897, Dean Vaughan moved that the Whitman lot be purchased provided the legal questions involved could be cleared up and the needed funds were in hand. The active chapter in 1901 raised $420 and this, together with the subscriptions which had been paid made it possible to go ahead with the contemplated purchase. On December 26, 1901, the corporate body voted to buy the Whitman lot, and this action was ratified, after all legal matters had been straightened out, by the Board of Directors on March 18, 1902, and the actual cash purchase for $1,900 was effected on March 20.

Inasmuch as the original subscription forms, in time, did not appear to insure sufficient funds for the house fund, the active chapter in 1904 instituted a system of notes signed by all members and initiates. Ten notes, each for $12.50, were signed by the members and delivered to the Secretary of the corporation, upon whom devolved the task of making collections. This procedure proved to be more satisfactory. Taken as a whole, the notes were cared for very well, payment never being urged where it would seem to work a hardship on the signer.

DOCTOR EDMUNDS With the possession of a clear title to a very desirable lot, quite naturally the desire for the house became accentuated and at the Annual Meeting of the Corporation held on March 11, 1905, it was voted to authorize to proceed with building operations. The question of finance, however, was not solved at the time. At the next annual meeting, held on May 19, 1906, Dr. C. W. Edmunds as Chairman of the House Committee reported on the terms under which a loan of $15,000 would be made by the Farmers and Mechanics Bank. The latter proposed to float a bond issue for this amount at five per cent interest, provided the Alumni members of the Corporation guarantee the payment of the first $3,000 (This guarantee was given later by thirteen Faculty members). Dr. Edmunds presented a resolution authorizing the Board of Directors to borrow the sum mentioned for the construction of the chapter house and to execute a trust deed as security for a loan of $15,000, payable in installments of $500 annually at the rate of five per cent per annum. The final cost was $17,000. The contract was let on July 9, and the house was occupied by the Chapter in April 1907.

The liquidation of the mortgage was made possible (1) by the collections from the graduates on the amounts subscribed or for which they had given notes, and (2) by the rental for rooms which was collected by the active chapter and delivered to the Secretary of the Corporation. In 1919, the last bond was retired and the mortgage redeemed. Since then the Corporation has been free of debt and the rental income has been sufficient to meet all taxes, renovations and alterations.

Alpha has occupied her present home continuously since 1907, with the exception of the War period (1918-1919) when it was used as a nurses' home. During that period the active chapter rented rooms over a store at 521 East Williams Street between Maynard and Thompson.

The house accommodates twenty-eight men and it has been fully occupied almost every year. In the original plans a room was set aside in the basement for a chapter lodge but it was not finished off because of lack of funds. In 1923, Will Walter undertook to raise money for this purpose and it was through his untiring efforts and the generosity of other alumni that this room was decorated and completely outfitted in 1924, thus providing an ideal place for chapter meetings and for initiations.

To single out any of the fellows for special praise as guardians of Alpha seems hardly fair. It may truthfully be said that all have contributed to her success. The feeling that pervades the whole atmosphere is inspiring; active members, recent graduates who are internes, associates on the faculty, and alumni in local practice vie with one another in the realization of good cheer and true fellowship. The House has set aside one night each week as "guest" night for which occasion the social committee invites a small group of alumni. They find these evenings very enjoyable and the custom has proven worthwhile. Other chapters undoubtedly enjoy a similar family life but it seems somehow to be more possible in strictly college towns where there is less of outside entertainment and fewer individual interests.

As this is about to go to press it is learned that Novy has been given the rank of Dean and is to continue as Chairman of the Executive Committee, a well merited honor. We are indebted to him for the final reading of Alpha Chapter and for added data on both the school and the chapter. More than usual space is allowed Alpha both in the school and the chapter section because the story of the development in teaching and in research at Michigan, which Dr. Novy has outlined in detail, is paralleled in many respects by that of the older schools, and this school may well serve as an example of progress in the teaching of medicine during the fraternity's half century.

Excluding the very early period when obviously all officers were men of Alpha, Alpha has furnished to the fraternity Council five honorary presidents, Victor C. Vaughan, 1897-1900, George Dock, 1916-19, Will Walter, 1924-26, C. W. Edmunds, 1928-30, and Frederick Novy, 1930-32; five presidents of the Council, John L. Irwin, 1893-99, Will Walter, 1908-10, Henry W. Stiles, now Mu, 1912-14, and Mark Marshall, 1916-18. Alpha men have held other offices on the Councils. C. W. Edmunds was Honorary Hippocrates, 1922-24, Carl Huber is the present Honorary Sydenham and Will Walter was Grand Galen from 1897 through 1908. All have been consistently active in the government of the fraternity.

BETA

For the early history of Beta we thank Charter Member Frederick W. Robbins who wrote an illuminating story covering not only details of fraternity life of his day but coordinating the growth of chapter, school and city. Much of the contemporary atmosphere is contained in his contribution.

Faculty Alumnus Blain has given the final reading and furnished additional needed data.

THE SCHOOL

The Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery claims the distinction of being the only school of medicine in the United States conducted by the Board of Education of a municipality. It has been in existence since 1868, and has performed no small part in medical education in Michigan and in the country at large. Previously known as the Detroit College of Medicine, it was reorganized under a new charter as the Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery in 1913 and conducted by a board of trustees until July, 1918, when it passed under the control of the city*

A new medical building constructed in 1889, Beta's birth year, with an addition in 1892, was burned in 1896, but was restored without delay. Coincident with the taking over of the school as part of the municipal education system in 1918, a new six-story building was constructed. An appropriation of a large annuity made at this time was part of a move for a "Greater Detroit." From this move plans were later developed for a real medical center in units that have been constructed at a cost of over a million dollars, and occupied since 1930, as follows:

Three medical school buildings, one on St. Antoine and Mullett Streets, the others fronting on Mullett Street. In the first are the laboratories of anatomy, histology and embryology, pathology, bacteriology, materia medica and pharmacology, the College offices and several recitation rooms.

*Corporate name changed to Wayne University College of Medicine in 1932.

A second unit houses the laboratories of physical therapeutics and photography, with extensive facilities for the conduct of research in the medical sciences. The third unit contains the laboratories of operative surgery, biological chemistry and physiology, the medical library of the City of Detroit and a large auditorium. All are conveniently near the center of the city and adjacent to St. Mary's Hospital, the Department of Public Health, and the Municipal Receiving Hospital.

The College has clinical affiliations with St. Mary's, the Herman Kiefer, Municipal Receiving, and Children's Free Hospitals and Dispensaries, and the Wayne County Asylum. The Receiving Hospital, the General Hospital of the City of Detroit, has 756 beds and has, since July 1921, been conducted under the direction of the City Welfare Commission. The Children's Hospital of Michigan, founded in 1886, contains about 250 beds. The Herman Kiefer Hospital, under the direction of the Detroit Department of Health, has 1,100 beds and provides adequate facilities for the care of the acute infectious diseases. One of its units with 500 beds, opened in 1928, provides the most modern facilities for the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis.

Besides these the Wayne County Hospital and the Infirmary at Eloise, sixteen miles from Detroit, furnish abundant material for the psychiatric and neurological clinics.

The Medical Library of the City of Detroit on the third floor of the new College unit fronting on Mullett Street, is maintained and administered by the Library Commission of Detroit, another feature of the school.

The admission requirements have shown slow but definite tightening, from an examination or high school diploma in 1889 to one year of college work in 1914, three years in 1929 and now a full college course covering specified pre-medical subjects. An added requirement is a provision that every student before admission must secure endorsement from the State Board of Registration in Medicine without which no student is legally eligible to pursue the study of medicine in the state of Michigan.

At the date of Beta's institution there were sixty-three men on the faculty; now there are 175.

In 1924 a scholarship fund for post graduate study was established. The enrollment for the last session was 378 against 142 in 1889. Some further details of the college development are contained in charter member Robbins' history of the early days of the chapter.

THE CHAPTER

DOCTOR WALKER

Beta of Nu Sigma Nu has grown up with the Detroit College of Medicine, which in its turn has developed with the marked growth of the city of Detroit. Dr. Frederick W. Robbins, who has now retired from practice to live in Pasadena, California, has given us some idea of these changes. The following quotation is from his recollections of the early days of the Detroit College of Medicine and of Beta:

"When Beta Chapter was formed May 17, 1889, Detroit, Washington and Milwaukee were the same size. Now Washington and Milwaukee have each about six hundred thousand, and Detroit, one million, five hundred thousand. At that time the doctors' offices were located in private homes and small office buildings within a half mile of the city hall. Also at that time every doctor of any standing knew every other, and when money was to be raised for any medical purpose a committee of three could very accurately say who would and could give, and how much. There were no high medical charges. Not over a dozen men received two dollars a visit or ten dollars consultation fee. I suppose that up to 1900 there had never been more than a dozen surgical fees of five hundred dollars collected in the state of Michigan. On the other hand, professional ideals were high and the doctor worked hard. It was common to hear of the number of calls made in a day, the number of horses tired out, but never how much money the physician had made. We had very little laboratory data to help in making a diagnosis, but many doctors were very jealous of their diagnostic ability, of which many were rightly proud. At that time many streets in Detroit were unpaved and sewerage systems entirely inadequate. As a result typhoid and diphtheria were endemic. The surgery of that day was not the surgery we now know. Imagine a clinic in which one never saw an appendectomy, a thyroidectomy or a prostatectomy, and very rarely the abdomen opened for any cause.

"What of the college before the Detroit Board of Education began its experiment in which we have been so interested and the results of which we have been so proud? The small college, hard put to it for money, had many of the essentials for turning out good, practical, honest, hard working doctors. The chief of these was the personality of the faculty members, making a strong impression on the mind and character of the student. In such a college began our medical fraternity.

"In 1889 Dr. Waldo E. Clark, a Nu Sigma Nu from Ann Arbor, gathered together a little group from the younger teachers in the Detroit College of Medicine. This group organized and petitioned to become a second chapter of a broader organization. This petition was granted, and thus Nu Sigma Nu began as a national, to become later an international, fraternity, with the following as charter members: Waldo E. Clark, Donald L. Campbell, James Ferguson, Augustus W. Ives, Theodore E. Regeen, Frederick W. Robbins and Otto Scherer.

"It is interesting to note that the Detroit College of Medicine in process of evolution had recently come into existence by amalgamation of the Detroit Medical College and the Michigan College of Medicine. Previous to the amalgamation some of this group had been with one institution, some with the other. It was largely due to Nu Sigma Nu that this group became fast friends. Four of this group, Campbell, Ives, Robbins and Scherer, after over forty years of practice, are well and happy, Robbins living in Pasadena, California, the others in Detroit.

"Beta Chapter was installed by a band of brothers from Alpha at the home of Dr. Waldo E. Clark, May 17, 1889. For a long time the group met in offices and were particularly interested in building up a strong body of undergraduates, and by the addition of a goodly number of the older members of the faculty to Beta almost every election offered an acceptable faculty member. The boys had great fun seeing to it that their initiation experiences were such as would not be forgotten. In the early days the faculty members were much interested in the development of the fraternity. They always entered with enthusiasm into its social life, but they always demanded that their men should stand a little higher than those outside her influence. All now agree that the high standards worked for by early members, both faculty and student, have placed our fraternity in a position to which new fraternities have aspired but none surpassed."

A glance at the chart shows how the school has developed during its forty-three years as well as the high spots in the chapter's growth.

Beginning in 1919, Beta tried to raise the scholastic standing of the chapter by initiating no men who had one or more conditions or whose general average was under seventy-five percent. At this time the only fraternity in Detroit to adopt this rule, Beta hoped to insure her scholastic standing and protect the general fraternity from the possibility of having non-graduating members. Several alumni contributed sums for local research work, notably James Potter with a gift for research in pathology. It is noted that at this time Beta led the school fraternities in scholarship.

To maintain the chapter's place scholastically, the preceptor system was instituted at about this time. An upper classman was assigned one of the academic subjects in which, by means of quizzes, demonstrations, lectures or personal tutorage, he strove to maintain the standing of all men in his subject. Through careful selection of men, success in scholarship was further assured. The 1926 historian reports that, as a result of all these efforts, Beta men had then won for three successive years the Alumni graduation prize for scholarship. The system of group study has proven an invaluable aid in maintaining the chapter's place at the top. Eligibility for membership in the fraternity at the present time calls for the completion of one term of work and a satisfactory scholastic record in all subjects. In 1932 we find that "entrance to Pi Alpha Kappa evidences high fraternity scholarship at the Detroit College of Medicine. Only juniors are eligible and, of twelve Beta juniors, seven were elected."

Not only all of the early records of the chapter but the charter as well were lost in the burning of the Wayne County Medical Building, the then headquarters of the chapter. This limits the authenticity of the story of those days. We know however that early meetings were held at the offices and residences of the faculty fellows. In 1916 the Kresge Building was the meeting place; in 1917 the Wayne County Medical Building; in 1918-19 the office of Alumnus Blain and in 1920-25 the Addison and Wolverine Hotels and Police (!) Headquarters. These meetings were featured by talks by alumni.

Since many of the fellows of the chapter were residents of Detroit the need of housing was not felt in the early days; in fact, the matter was not seriously considered until November, 1925, when an alumni association was organized to further the interests of the chapter, including the housing feature. With their cooperation, Beta "hoped soon to attain the long dreamed of home." The 1926 Bulletin reports the incorporation of the Nu Sigma Nu Alumni Association of Detroit with Brothers C. G. Jennings as president and C. F. McClintic as secretary-treasurer. The 1927 Bulletin cites that "the first definite steps toward raising money were taken at the annual banquet where a committee with Dr. Alexander W. Blain as chairman was appointed. And later: "through the determined efforts of the active chapter and the whole hearted cooperation of alumni and the Alumni Association we have been successful in securing a beautiful fourteen-room house centrally located at 436 Putnam Avenue, in the art center of Detroit. We are very glad to report a full house at the present time. Seventeen men are accommodated, the social life of the chapter has been improved, the spirit of brotherhood has been enhanced, group study developed and monthly talks instituted, all resulting in a harmony and uniformity of purpose never before attained in Beta Chapter. To Thaddeus Walker belongs the utmost praise for the success of this undertaking."

In 1930, Beta began the assembly of photographs of alumni and of chapter groups to adorn the walls of her new home.

Beta's "Pledge Chapter" organization which had begun to function in 1928 continues to be of value. Pledges are required to dine with the chapter on meeting nights, holding side meetings of their own while the chapter business is going on. They are instructed in this history and general routine of the fraternity organization as a prelude to their initiation; thus the neophyte knows early that he is headed for a real fraternity. In addition each freshman is under the supervision of an upper classman who helps him over the rough spots. Group meetings and chalk talks are also a part of the plan and reports on the freshmen are made at intervals to the chapter.

In 1921-22 a movement was instituted by the alumni for entertainment of the active chapter once a month either by an individual alumnus or a group. This was inaugurated by a sumptuous dinner at the Wayne County Medical Dining room by a faculty alumnus, a good suggestion for alumni in other college cities.

On one occasion Beta entertained the initiation team of Theta Chapter who had been invited to "put on a full-robed initiation." This served further to stimulate the interests of both chapter and alumni. (A plan worthy of emulation).

In 1922 for the first time a suite of rooms was rented for meeting and social purposes; at this time all but two of the actives were residents of Detroit. Later began a series of informal dances with a formal dinner dance (1924); these with weekly dinners at informal places tended to fill the place of a chapter house.

Beta has an annual Decoration Day outing, usually at some outlying resort where outdoor and indoor sports are enjoyed by actives and alumni, and ending with a dance in the evening. Occupancy of the new home at 436 Putnam Avenue has served to stimulate both social and educational programs; the former through frequent informal dinners and dances, the latter through increased cooperation of alumni in giving informal talks. In 1930 Beta inaugurated what is known as the "senior party," a compliment to the seniors by the chapter.

The war record of Beta Chapter is a story in itself. Only a few items of note appear in the Bulletins at our disposal. We note that Faculty Alumnus Burt Shurly was commander of the Detroit Medical College Base Hospital No. 16 in France and that the Harper Base Hospital was under Faculty Alumnus Angus McLean.

Beta joined Alpha in the entertainment of the memorable eleventh convention in 1900. All delegates and alumni were Beta's guests the afternoon of the final day on a special street car train covering points of civic and historic interest in Detroit, including a visit to the pharmaceutical plant of Parke

Davis and Company. The unique closing session and banquet at the then Hotel Cadillac was also under their supervision.

COLONEL LYSTER

The history of Beta would not be complete without recording the important part taken in the upbuilding of the fraternity, particularly in the formative period, by two of her alumni: William Lyster, now and for many years in the army medical service and at last accounts Lieutenant Colonel, M. C., U. S. A., Military School Tactics, Cambridge, Massachusetts, who served as Galen at a critical time (1895-97), and Thaddeus Walker, Galen for two periods (1895-97) and Custodian for one period (1906-08). Walker gave time unstintingly through the other intervening years also when the details of ritual and regalia were being perfected. Now we find that he has been the man most responsible for the successful housing of his parent chapter, Beta. He has ever been a generous and enthusiastic worker and we are glad to pay this tribute to him.

DELTA

Delta's history is in some ways unique, as is the story of the school in which she was chartered in 1891. For the early history we are much indebted to Charter Member Todd, '91; for the intermediate period we thank Alumnus Frederick Jacobs, '13, who has been both an inspiration and a generous contributor to Delta's success, and to the historian of 1930, Active Pearson, our special thanks are due for cooperation in digging for data.

THE SCHOOL

The University of Pittsburgh was founded by charter from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as Pittsburgh Academy in 1787. The Western University of Pennsylvania became the legal successor of Pittsburgh Academy with the granting of a second charter in 1819. Not until 1890-1892 did the University expand by organizing and affiliating professional schools, and in 1908 purchased the present Oakland campus, changing the name to the University of Pittsburgh. From its beginning, 144 years ago, it has been supported jointly by the state and the public-spirited citizens of Pittsburgh.

The fore-runner of the medical school was the Western Pennsylvania Medical College, organized in 1886. In 1908 this became an integral part of the University of Pittsburgh, and was removed to the Oakland campus in 1910.

The requirement for admission to the medical college was a high school diploma or by examination until 1911 when it was raised to one year and in 1914 to two years of college. The result of this was a temporary lowering in enrollment, but the course was much improved.

At the suggestion of the faculty, the students organized a Medical School Society in 1916 to bring about closer personal relationship and to stimulate interest in things medical. This Society continued to function through the years, and by 1925 was holding quarterly scientific meetings at the Pittsburgh Academy of Medicine and also sponsoring an annual reception to freshmen, a dinner-dance, the medical school year book and a student loan fund.

The generosity of individuals and clubs have made available a number of fellowships and scholarships for deserving medical students and graduates.

War time depleted seriously the teaching staff of the University. The University of Pittsburgh Base Hospital Unit occupied an old monastery in Angers, France, to receive the American wounded. Its medical staff chosen from Pitt's faculty included Dean Arbuthnot and Professor Miller. With fifty-five per cent of the staff in active war duty, college standards were maintained with great effort. Delta's men rendered distinguished service throughout and when demobilized returned to the greatest period of expansion and promise in the history of the University.

In 1918 was completed the new wing of Mercy Hospital and the clinical laboratory of St. Francis, and in 1920 the University of Pittsburgh took over the Elizabeth Steele Magee Hospital to conduct as a general University Hospital. Much progress and many benefactions are recorded in 1922: Alumni Hall was completed; a large plot of ground was given to the University; Mercy Hospital Association, with the University, received an endowment from the Frick Estate. Pittsburgh's "Cathedral of Learning," a fifty-two story building costing ten million dollars, which occupies a distinctive place among present-day educational institutions, was erected in 1926.

At the same time plans were announced for Pittsburgh's new Medical Center, to be erected about the School of Medicine and Presbyterian Hospital as the keystone of the group and with several special hospitals in affiliation, the whole project to cost between fourteen and eighteen million dollars and eight distinct units to be grouped into one enterprise. The site is a ten-acre tract bordering the University campus. Elizabeth Steele Magee Maternity Hospital, to which is devoted the entire estate of Mr. Magee, is adjoining.

To carry forward plans for the Medical Center, a two-week drive in January, 1927, raised six million dollars in funds. The Falk bequest for a dispensary and library and Ex-Dean Edwards' gift for a laboratory wing followed shortly, as did a state appropriation for the Medical School Building. The Children's Hospital, opened in 1928, is the cornerstone of the new Center. In 1931 work had been started on three of the main projects, and the remaining units are expected soon to be under way.

The Medical Center represents the greatest project of its kind ever attempted in this part of Pennsylvania, and in some of its aspects it is unique throughout the world. Here the student encounters disease in its early stages in hospital and institution, with research and clinical laboratories in immediate relationship to the wards, thus bringing into direct association the physician, his patient and the laboratory scientist.

At present the Medical School has affiliations which provide every form of clinical teaching for the third and fourth years, through Mercy, Allegheny General, Eye and Ear, Elizabeth Steele Magee, Children's and Municipal Hospitals, The Tuberculosis League, and the Pittsburgh Free Dispensary.

An innovation in the form of a modified preceptorial system was adopted by the Medical School in 1929, whereby every senior spends six weeks working in towns of Western Pennsylvania under a practicing physician, or "preceptor." The entire senior class goes out at one time, teaching activities being suspended for that period. The plan gives a broadened view of medicine and has been so well received by seniors that it bids strongly for a permanent place in the curriculum.

THE CHAPTER

From all accounts the charter group was an enthusiastic one. Here were no alumni or faculty sponsors, but later on men of the faculty were taken in who in turn became enthusiastic, remaining so throughout all the years of Delta's trials. The convention of 1892, to which Delta was host, seemed to add to their spirit, proving of value as the entertainment of conventions of Nu Sigma Nu has always done—benefitting the hosts as well as the guests.

The medical department of West Penn was embryonic but developed with increasing alacrity from about the time of Delta's inception. Delta kept pace with the front ranks as the spirited accounts of Todd and Jacobs bear witness. Charter Member Todd has given this generous story of the early days:

"During the month of January, 1891, while attending the West Penn Medical College located at Pittsburgh, I was a member of a quiz class conducted by one J. B. Borland, M.D. This class numbered about a dozen young men, many of whom were members of the senior class.

"Some one of this class started the inquiry, why do we not have a fraternity, such as are found in universities and colleges? The subject at once enlisted the interest of nine of the class. Their names were as follows: Thomas E. McConnell, Samuel C. Milligan, John K. Sterrett, Frank L. Todd, John W. Boyce, John W. Elder, James B. Wood, J. Morehead Murdoch and Moore S. McKennan.

"One of our number, J. K. Sterrett, had been called to render assistance at the Allegheny General Hospital where he met an interne by the name of Rodgers, who was a fellow of Nu Sigma Nu.* He immediately became interested in our cause and carried out all the correspondence required to procure a charter for the chapter. All was accomplished in a remarkably short time. Dr. Rodgers was appointed to institute the chapter and initiate the charter members, which he did on February 2, 1891, at the residence of Dr. J. B. Murdoch (father of one of our members), situated on what is now the campus of the Cathedral of Learning, about one hundred yards east of the Cathedral. Dr. Rodgers continued to meet with us until we were able to 'stand alone' and rendered much valuable service.

"We were far too poor in pocket to enjoy the luxury of of a chapter house and so held our meetings in the room of some one of the members, sometimes in one place, sometimes at another, meeting often twice a week and always once.

"The organization of Nu Sigma Nu caused quite a flurry in the student body of the college. If the faculty paid any attention to it they kept it all to themselves for we never heard anything from them. With the students it was different. Many of them would have gladly welcomed membership but were outspoken in their disapproval of anything going on in which they had no part. We were under much restraint in order to maintain at all times a dignified, though friendly silence. This enmity soon lessened when a number of the malcontents banded themselves together to form a new fraternity, the appearance of whose badges served to draw the fire from us.

*This was probably R. E. L. Rodgers, Alpha 1888, whose address has been unknown for many years. He was at this time a Grand Chapter Officer. (Ed.)

"The first initiate was J. Hartley Anderson, the initiation taking up the night that remained after ten o'clock, which is intended to intimate to the reader that Hartley was most thoroughly and entirely 'initiated'.

"On April 1, 1891, three of our members, John K. Sterrett, J. Hartley Anderson and Frank L. Todd, were chosen members of the 'Resident Staff' of the old West Penn Hospital. Anderson and Todd remained in the hospital for the prescribed year, while Sterrett resigned at the end of six months to go into private practice.

"April 1, 1892, saw four of our number—Elder, Wood, Murdoch and McKennan—Resident Staff members of the West Penn Hospital, while Boyce went to Mercy Hospital where he served with great credit. Sterrett for a while engaged in general practice, then turned his attention to the specialty of nose and throat diseases. Milligan early in his career became a Military Surgeon and held a high position during the Spanish-American War. From the time of their interneship, both Todd and Anderson chose surgery as their special fields. McConnell after graduation went to Parnassus, Pennsylvania, entering general practice. Later on he became a specialist in nose and throat diseases.

"After their year of interneship, Doctors Murdoch and Elder elected mental and nervous diseases as their chosen field, and both went to Dixmont Hospital for the Insane. Later on Dr. Murdoch went to Polk, Pennsylvania, where he was superintendent of the institution for feeble minded children, covering a period of thirty-five years. Elder went to Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Wood to Oakland, California, where he soon became chief health officer. Later he was elevated to the chair of professor of chemistry in one of the medical colleges of that city. McKennan spent his life in general practice.

"Of the charter members all are now living except Boyce, McKennan and Wood."

From the pen of Alumnus Jacobs, '13, we learn that "the old West Penn Medical School was housed in a very old brick building in Brerton Avenue with the Kaufmann Clinic nearby and a vacant lot between where interclass battles were held to save damage to the building. The various fraternities were housed in store rooms and other parts of frame houses; quarters that were used only for social and business gatherings and initiations. Roman holidays were Sunday School picnics compared to these functions. Though the ritual has remained the same, the pre-ritual functions have changed, much to the benefit of the incoming neophyte."

Jacobs tells us of the housing in the early days: "Nu Sigma Nu was early quartered in an apartment above the local drug store. The personnel was small, as were the dues; as no boarders increased the income, better quarters were out of the question. The rent and the honorarium to a janitress constituted the principal overhead. The janitress was the wife of a chronic habitue of the workhouse and if stories of her morals and loves, her light fingered habits in regard to smaller objects of furniture, are true, she should have accompanied him on his periodic visits of alleged reformation.

"The alumni frequently made small donations for much needed replacement of furniture. In the course of a few years they began to believe that a hotel was being equipped, the reasons being, first, the rough and careless manners of the stalwart youth of those days; second, pre-Volstead social affairs were always made successful by a container of beer known as a Keg, the size being governed by the amount of cash on hand, and keg-parties are notoriously hard on furniture; lastly, the previously mentioned caretaker. However, life was gay in those days and empty kegs could be used for chairs in times of need.

"About a year later the quarters were moved to a first floor storeroom on Bigelow Boulevard at 33rd Street; a dank and dismal spot.

"A year later the 'Gipsy Delts' once more took up the trail and camped in the basement of the Bellefield Apartments on Centre Avenue near Craig Street. This was a sumptuous apartment but much better suited for a cabaret, which it later became. Shortly before this time a piano had been acquired by a small down payment and a contract to pay sums of a certain size when, as and if we were discovered by the collector. This piano, though an old time upright of the middle Grand Rapids period, was destined to become famous, at least with the members of Delta. It and the collector followed the roaming chapter for years, and always when the threat was made to confiscate because of nonpayment, the treasury being depleted, Brother Frank Righter would generously rush in to save the 'old homestead', or rather piano, from the mortgage shark. This piano should have borne his name along with the rings left by wet glasses.

"Shortly thereafter an apartment on the second floor of an old dismal building on the corner of Atwood and Forbes housed Delta.

"In spite of most unattractive quarters, the personnel of the chapter maintained its standing both socially and scholastically, though politically the fight was uphill.

"Then another apartment; this time on the fourth floor at the corner of Halket and Forbes Streets, but under a wise and foreseeing house committee who banned all ardent spirits and malt beverages. There were casualties, even when the double-decker beds were installed in this high spot. J. H. Wagner resided here and C. G. Richey was treasurer. Between them they managed to meet not only the rent and other charges, but also to pay the usurers in the guise of piano collectors.

"The next descent was terrible as Delta found herself quartered in an abandoned Turkish bath on Forbes Street near Atwood. Some few brave boarders were quartered in cubicles of dungeon-like appearance. The gymnasium was useful for the more athletic members as well as for initiations. Many a neophyte those days will carry to his grave the memory of having been thrown blindfolded into the cooling plunge of this bath house.

"A representative of the national chapter suggested that this entire menage lacked dignity, and once more Delta was forced to move its Lares and Penates, but this time the signs were propitious. A house on Fifth Avenue near Lothrop Street was rented and what it may have lacked in modern conveniences it had in dignity and comfort. Members took up their abode and at last the term 'house' was more than an empty word. Life was serene and pleasant for all concerned and the chapter thrived. A medical society was formed and many alumni met in this 'home' at monthly intervals much to the advantage of every one concerned. Active members were proud to invite friends to visit and the older members were pleased to attend gatherings here."

In 1918 Delta was housed at 344 Melwood Street. The next move is not recorded but in 1921-22 definite plans were made to provide funds for a permanent home. Actives were pledged, each for one hundred dollars in ten yearly installments; a gift of five thousand dollars from Alumnus Vaux, '05, proved a fine start, and by the end of the term eleven thousand dollars was in hand. In 1927 the Alumni Association of Pittsburgh agreed to finance the proposition whenever the chapter felt able to support it.

In 1928 the chapter rented 239 Darrach Street premises and since 1931 they have occupied what they hope will prove their permanent home at 4818 Baum Boulevard, the homestead of Brother Jacobs, '13, whose generous cooperation with chapter and alumni has made the project possible.

Because most of its members being local residents, commuting to school, Delta has always had a serious problem in chapter house maintenance. A plan of letting rooms to non-medical graduate students has helped to carry on.

In 1931 Delta seems at last to have found a solution for its financial difficulties by installing a budget system with a flat charge to actives for the entire year, including dances, instead of charging monthly dues and summer assessments with dances separately as heretofore.

The actives of Delta were seriously disrupted during the war years. Fifty Delta men responded for service. Among the alumni, four served with the Base Hospital, six with the B. E. F., three were in the Naval Service, and sixteen with the U. S. Army Medical Service. All were fortunate in escaping serious injury excepting McGregor, Delta '09, who lost both legs in action at the great spring offense of 1918. His was among the most exciting and interesting stories told at the post-war reunions of Delta Alumni and Actives. Release from war duty found Delta losing no time in reassembling her forces. A most inspiring and enjoyable occasion was the banquet in May, 1919, with every undergraduate and fifty alumni present. At the first fall post-war smoker it was decided to hold joint smokers every two months, with some light form of entertainment to supplement the exclusively scientific programs presented heretofore.

Delta made a notable step in 1919 in establishing a monthly news bulletin called the Nu Sigma Nus, gotten out principally by undergraduates but with alumni contributions as offered. This bulletin has become a permanent and valuable monthly treat to every Delta. At the formal each spring the "NEWS" comes out in a glorified way printed on colored paper and containing cartoons and quips about prominent faculty men and alumni.

Delta initiates no freshmen but keeps them on pledge for one year until they have passed off their year successfully. Each freshman is assigned to a sophomore who in the capacity of a "big brother" extends help in any way needed. Thursday night quizzes and noon hour sessions conducted by the upper-classmen help the freshmen over the hurdles. At get-togethers of alumni and actives in December it is the custom to have the pledges put on a program of music and stunts. This helps to enlist their active interest in fraternity matters from the first. But particularly is Delta's high scholarship standard emphasized to all new men. It has been truthfully said that the pledges who live in the house never fail.

It is worth noting that about half of Alpha Omega Alpha chapter at Pitt are Nu Sigma Nus, and that in 1931 Delta had the largest representation in Alpha Omega Alpha in its history.

Many alumni are on the faculty and the undergraduate class leaders are usually Nu Sigma Nu.

Delta was honored by the election of H. E. Miller to the Honorary Council, 1910-12, and again at the Semi-Centennial Convention in 1932.

EPSILON

The story of Epsilon is one of growth and development, in its way paralleling that of the school of her election, the University of Minnesota Medical School, which has ever kept abreast of new needs and methods in education and equipment.

THE SCHOOL

It is creditable that the medical department of Minnesota, by absorbing four other colleges, has become the only medical school in the state of Minnesota. Organized in 1883 as the University of Minnesota College of Medicine and Surgery, it was reorganized in 1888 by absorption of St. Paul Medical College and Minnesota Hospital College. In 1908 the Minneapolis College of Physicians and Surgeons, and in 1909 the Homeopathic College of Medicine and Surgery, were merged. The present title was assumed in 1913. The graduate school has been expanded through opportunities offered by the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research, at Rochester, Minnesota, which offers vast facilities and material for clinical study, in addition to all that is available in the Twin Cities. Thus Minnesota has come to take its place as an outstanding medical center, and promises to continue its forward march in the van of medical progress.

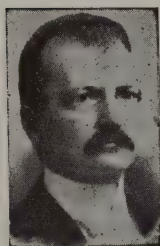

The improvements and physical changes since the installation of Epsilon in 1891, are briefly: the erection of the Anatomy Building and the Free Dispensary in 1901, of Millard Hall and the Institute of Anatomy in 1912, and the gradual assembling of the University Hospital in its present form through gifts and memorials. The units included are: the Elliot Memorial Building, the Christian Memorial Cancer Institute, the Todd Memorial Pavilion, erected in memory of Dr. Frank Todd, Professor of Ophthalmology and Oto-laryngology, who died in the army medical service in 1918, and lastly, the Eustis Memorial Hospital for Disabled Children. The medical library, considered one of the best in the country, is housed in the General Library Building.

Affiliated for the purposes of clinical teaching are: Minneapolis General Hospital, Ancker Hospital of St. Paul, a city and county institution, Gillette State Hospital for Crippled Children, the Hennepin County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, and a number of charitable and community institutions used for elective section clinics.

Minimum entrance requirements at Minnesota are two years of specified college work, and since the incoming class in the fall quarter is at present limited to one hundred, candidates are accepted in the order of their scholastic rating and by aptitude tests as determined by the Students' Work Committee of the Medical School, subject however to recommendations as to character, ability, and personal qualities.

A radical change was made in the system of examinations in 1930, with the adoption of the Comprehensive System. It consists of comprehensive examinations at the end of each year's work, so that no examinations are given during the school year. These comprehensives are graded simply either pass or fail. So far the only difference noticed by the students is that more time is available for other things, with no quizzes staring them in the face.

THE CHAPTER

DOCTOR HENDRICKS

The best story we have of Epsilon's early days has come from James T. Christison, a charter member and one time president of the fraternity's Executive Council. For the intermediate period we are indebted to Ray Knight, an initiate of 1906, and for the late story to a recent historian, Theodore Stebbins.

Epsilon was installed on February 13, 1891, by Professor Hendricks, who was an alumnus of Alpha Chapter. The chapter should therefore celebrate her half century in 1941. The council officers signing the charter were Waldo E. Clark, G. Ae., R. E. L. Rodgers, G. Hp., Don M. Campbell, G. G., and F. W. Robbins, Hr.

The history of Epsilon chapter's founding must ever be associated with the name of George A. Hendricks, who came to Minnesota from Michigan to assume the duties of Professor of Anatomy with the opening of the college year, 1890-1891.

Christison well remembers his first introduction to this truly great anatomist, when a freshman at Ann Arbor in 1887. This stern-visaged gentleman entered the lecture room with a market basket containing a heterogeneous collection of bones. Without any preliminary remarks he tossed these to the students in various parts of the amphitheatre, and when the supply was exhausted asked each student to stand at his call and define the bone he held as best he could. When one member of the class named his as the Sphenoid bone, Hendricks retorted like a flash, "Oh, damn the Sphenoid bone; sit down." After a more intimate acquaintance which developed during an assistantship in anatomical demonstration, Christison asked Hendricks why he had thus offended the budding intelligence of a freshman. His reply was, "The Sphenoid bone is the most difficult in the body to describe, and as I did not know all about it myself I considered that any freshman who could even recognize it ought to be given the mark of ten without further questioning."

The affection of Hendricks for the fraternity was always in evidence, and it was at his suggestion that plans were made to form a chapter at Minnesota, the result being the Chapter's installation as Eta of Minnesota. The name was later changed to Epsilon when it was discovered that the application antedated both the Northwestern group, which took the name of Zeta, and the Physicians and Surgeons Chicago group, which became Eta.

The charter members were: J. T. Christison, J. T. Rogers, E. S. Boleyn, W. M. Thompson, C. A. Erdman, T. C. Gibbs, C. J. Ringnell and G. E. Senkler. Of these, four are still engaged in active practice; namely, Rogers, who is specializing in surgery, Senkler in internal medicine, Christison in pediatrics, and Boleyn in general practice. Erdman is Professor of Anatomy in the medical school. Thompson left school and later took up homeopathy. Gibbs and Ringnell have died.

The first initiation banquet was held March 11, 1892, at which time Dr. Parks Ritchie, Dean and Professor of Obstetrics, C. A. Wheaton, Professor of Surgery, C. Eugene Riggs, Professor of Nervous and Mental Diseases, J. F. Fulton, Professor of Ophthalmology and Otology, J. E. Moore, Professor of Orthopedic and Clinical Surgery, A. E. Senkler, Professor of Clinical Medicine, and F. A. Dunsmoor, Professor of Operative Surgery, were admitted to fellowship. All of them continued for many years to take an active interest in the chapter.

During the college year of 1891-92 there were nineteen initiates and one faculty member added to the roll. The latter was Max P. Vander Hoeck, Professor of Dermatology, who maintained an attachment for the fraternity to the time of his death.

According to Knight, at the time of his active fellowship and in fact during the next two decades, the chapter occupied a most enviable position. Though there were no requirements of academic work, a large percentage of the students held arts and science degrees.

It was then the custom to select the group they wished to pledge, to invite them to an evening meeting with the chapter and inform them that the chapter took no freshmen as they could not pledge them until they had made good by passing satisfactorily all of their first year work. Though the other medical fraternities initiated freshmen, there were few men thus approached who did not wait the bid of Nu Sigma Nu. By this means the chapter was able to keep well within the top level of the students. This custom, so far as we know, is still in force. It is noteworthy that Epsilon has always maintained this scholarship requirement for active membership, which probably accounts for the large number of her alumni, even from the earliest years, serving upon the teaching staff of the University. In 1932, these numbered ninety-four.

Regular meetings were held in the early days in the old Masonic Hall on Washington Avenue; gatherings which are still referred to by the old guard as "blessed memories." In 1901 the chapter occupied rooms at 310 Twelfth Avenue S. E., and there began the formation of a library. In 1911 we find plans being made looking toward a permanent home. It may be of interest for other chapters to learn the method pursued. A committee was appointed and several alumni were asked to cooperate. All were enthusiastic. A general meeting of the alumni was called, resulting in the formation of the Epsilon Alumni Association and their incorporation for the purpose of securing a site and building a chapter house. The first board of trustees was made up of M. Russell Wilcox, '97, J. T. Christison, '91, C. A. Erdmann, '93, Earl Hare, '00, and Arthur Mann, '96. In the bulletin of 1917 we find the chapter occupying their new home at 429 Union Street S. E., one block from Millard Hall, the Medical Building, and directly across from the University Hospital. The house has been extended and extensively remodeled. Much credit is given to Dr. Frank Wright, '96, for his untiring efforts in bringing this about.

1928 found Epsilon hoping and planning for a new and more suitable home; with alumni help success seems assured. The latest report is that land has now been purchased for the new home, so the future is bright for the realization of the chapter's dreams.

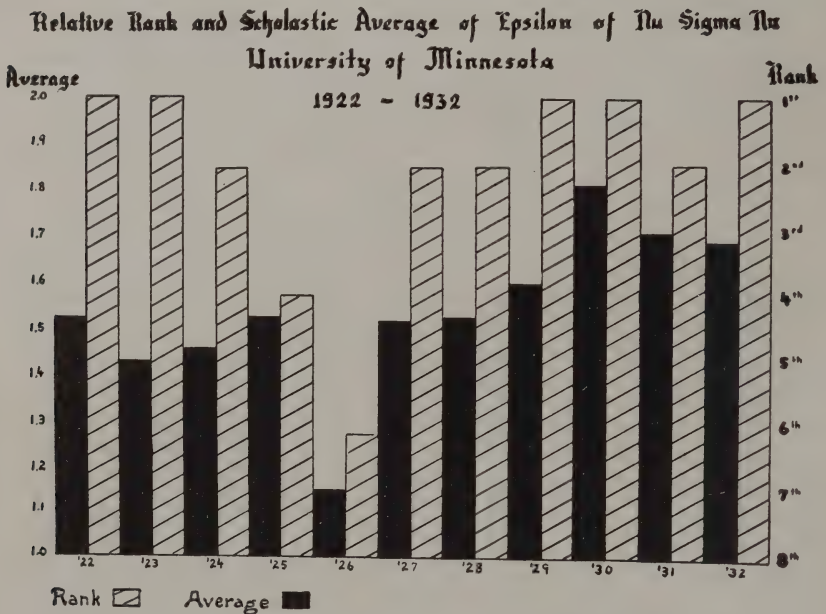

During all of these years Epsilon's graduates have been making excellent records in private practice and in group work, both in the Twin Cities and elsewhere in the country. It would be unfair to single out individual accomplishments, but much research and original clinical observation may properly be credited to the men of Epsilon.

No sketch of this chapter would be complete without mention of those who served their country in time of war, notably Law, Ritchie and Dennis, who saw active service both in the Philippines and in the World War. Note should also be made of Todd who died in service; of Burch's notable work at Camp Dodge; of Dennis' achievements in brain surgery among the wounded; of Hall who saw active service with the British troops, and of Kent Nelson of the class of 1900, who is now a Colonel in the regular Army of the United States. Add to them the work of Jay Durand in Red Cross; of Greene, former Professor of Medicine, who in spite of physical disability carried on in the Surgeon General's Department in Washington; of Paul Ashley, class 1905, who distinguished himself during the influenza epidemic at Camp Overland in Saint Paul; of the outstanding achievements of Wallace H. Cole, class of 1910, in orthopedic and reconstructive surgery among the wounded and disabled, and others.

The activities of Epsilon Chapter in war time did not begin until January of 1919, owing to the fact that the entire membership was on active duty with the Students' Army Training Corps of the University of Minnesota. The fall term did not open until October 11 and the work of transferring the medical students from the Reserve Corps to the S. A. T. C. was completed on October 22. From that time until December 14, all men were living in barracks, and since the chapter house was off the reservation and time was fully occupied by military duties and school work, no meetings were held. Pledging was done, however, and the spirit of the group kept up, so that when released from the army regime, chapter work was entered upon with enthusiasm, and has been carried forward since with increased zeal.

Epsilon feels that her most notable accomplishment was in the year 1930 when an all time record was made for scholarship. The chapter standing is graphically shown in the accompanying chart taken from the current Bulletin.

From James T. Christison has come the information given below on Epsilon's social and other activities.

"The social consciousness of Epsilon Chapter has kept pace with scholastic attainments. The annual banquet is of course the culminating festivity of the college year and always brings out a large number of the alumni from all over the state. There are several functions more or less permanent such as the spring informal and the formal. These affairs, held at various country clubs, are well attended, offering such varied forms of entertainment as cards, dancing, etc. There are also two or three so-called freshmen stags for the new pledges.

During the autumn and winter, gatherings, formal and informal, are held at frequent intervals, usually at one of the more commodious fraternity houses about the campus, which courtesies are greatly appreciated. Not the least of the enjoyable events is the 'Hunters Club' dinner to which prospective candidates for initiation are invited, this particular function partaking of the nature of the Gridiron Club. Epsilon has also taken active part in interfraternity athletics and has several well earned trophies on display in the chapter house.

"Much to the regret of the board of trustees of the Alumni Association plans for a new house are still in abeyance but it is the hope of everyone that ere long activities looking to the fulfillment of that much to be desired object will be under way. The present house is to be thoroughly renovated this summer, a new heating plant installed and some new furniture and rugs added to make a more homelike atmosphere for another year. In the meantime everyone is doing his bit taking account of the present situation."

Epsilon has furnished two of the sixteen Honorary Presidents in the persons of Charles A. Wheaton, 1904-06, and S. Marx White, 1922-24. Christison was honored by office in the Honorary Council (1932-34) at the Semi-Centennial Convention. He also served in the Executive Council continuously from 1893 through 1900, the last three years of which he was Council President. F. Wesbrook, another Epsilon fellow, was elected to the Honorary Council at the fifteenth convention 1906-08 and C. N. McCloud was similarly honored at the twenty-second convention, 1922-24.

For assistance in assembling this account of Zeta we are indebted to Charter Member Dudley, '91, for the early days and to Galen Feldt, '33, for information on the later growth of the school. From both of these fellows we have paraphrased and quoted freely. Other information has been gleaned from chapter letters in the bulletins. Among chapter historians to whom special credit is due are Paul H. Wosika in 1929 and Floyd E. Boys in 1930, both of whom won for Zeta the Tiffany Bulletin Trophy. We are indebted to W. R. Cubbins, '00, for the final reading and approval of Zeta's story.

THE SCHOOL

A conspicuous name in the early history of Northwestern is that of Nathan S. Davis who, associated with seven other doctors, established the medical department of Lind University (now Lake Forrest) in 1859. Dr. Davis, always a champion of higher standards and ideals, put into practice here methods of medical education which were soon adopted as standard all over the country.

The Civil War made deep holes in the ranks of both students and faculty. Lind University could no longer help in the support of the medical department. The faculty, assured that their system was of the right type and worthy of preservation, incorporated, purchased land, erected a medical building and opened in 1863 the Chicago Medical College. Under this name it became loosely affiliated with Northwestern University in 1869; a beneficial and happy union since the students could then get the desired pre-medical work at the same university. In 1891 the name was changed to the present one, Northwestern University Medical School, and when in 1905 the University assumed complete control of the medical branch it became an integral part of Northwestern University.

Until 1926, the school building was located at Twenty-Sixth Street and Prairie Avenue with other units nearby, on what is now Chicago's famous—or infamous—south side. Shortly before the turn of the century two new buildings were erected: Davis Hall, housing the out-patient department; the other a commodious laboratory building. The first Wesley Memorial Hospital was soon built near the medical school. By 1903 the laboratories had been enlarged and a modern surgical amphitheatre constructed at Mercy Hospital which had long been affiliated with the medical school.

Capacity registration in 1920 showing the urgent need for expansion, a plan was made for moving the medical, law and dental schools to the north side of Chicago. The property chosen for a site was located near Chicago Avenue and Lake Shore Drive. The University found itself unable to finance this project, but all difficulties were swept away when Alexander McKinlock gave the purchase price as a memorial to his son; hence the site has been named The McKinlock Campus. To fulfill the University's fondest dreams for buildings and equipment came Mrs. Montgomery Ward's magnificent gift to the medical and dental schools of eight million dollars for buildings and endowment. The evolution of the plans are described by Feldt.

"After careful consideration by the faculty and architects, plans were drawn providing numerous small laboratories and class rooms for limited groups of students, in addition to the several large lecture rooms and laboratories.

"It was not until 1926 that the medical school was moved to its present location on Chicago's near north side. This splendid advance in physical equipment was made possible by the generous gift which provided for the erection and maintenance of the Montgomery Ward Memorial Building, an imposing and beautiful structure. The first three floors are given over to the out patient department, while the next four floors and the fourteenth and fifteenth provide ample space for instruction and research.

"Among the special facilities of the Montgomery Ward Building, the Archibald Church Library conveniently placed on the ground floor is prominent. This library contains over fifty thousand volumes, including in addition to the personal library of Dr. Church, gifts from alumni, faculty members and friends. Mention should be made of the important gifts of books and collections from Doctors Otto L. Schmidt, Robert B. Preble, Isaac A. Abt, Hugh T. Patrick, Charles A. Elliott and Will Walter.

"The library regularly subscribes to over three hundred periodicals. Portraits of men famous in the school's history now line the walls of this library.

"On upper floors are the museums. The Frederick Robert Zeit Museum of Pathology of four thousand specimens is especially valuable for instruction and study. The Anatomical Museum containing over one thousand items, including models, dissections, and an embryological series, is without precedent for teaching value.

"The Medical School has been long affiliated with Wesley Memorial and Cook County Hospitals. In 1929 Passavant Hospital was built on the medical campus and is controlled by the medical faculty. A serious attempt was made to depart from the stern lines and appointments of most hospitals, and in a physical way Passavant is more like a beautiful hotel than a hospital. In addition, clinics or clerkships for students are available in Evanston, Michael Reese, St. Luke's, Chicago Fresh Air, Municipal Contagious and Children's Memorial Hospitals. The Edward Sanitarium and the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium are also affiliated. The Chicago Lying-In Dispensary offers a valuable service to students and patients alike. Here senior students spend two weeks in actual obstetrical practice."

A new feature was introduced in 1927 into the student body of the medical school in the form of a Student Council. This organization, comprising one representative from each fraternity and two representatives from the non-fraternity group, was formed in the hope of bringing the faculty and student body into closer cooperation.

THE CHAPTER

The idea of a medical club at Northwestern University Medical School originated in 1890-1891 with a group of six freshmen. After much discussion, it was decided to petition Nu Sigma Nu for a charter. This being duly granted, the installation took place on March 28, 1891, at the old Southern Hotel, Wabash Avenue and Twenty-Second Street, Chicago, with Executive Officer John L. Irwin of Detroit conducting the ceremonies. The charter members were the original six who started the movement: Joseph de Silva, Lewis W. Dudley, F. G. Stubbs, J. A. Walker, J. R. Sievers, and R. B. Oleson. (According to latest reports all are still living except Stubbs, who died in Chicago in 1910. De Silva is in general practice in Rock Island, Illinois, Dudley is superintendent of the Wisconsin State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Walker is in general practice in Dupont, Washington, Sievers is practicing surgery in Butte, Montana, and Oleson is an internist in Lombard, Illinois.)

Several prominent faculty men became "honorary" members of Zeta during the first year of her existence, namely: Billings, Zeisler, Dudley, Webster and Morgan. These outstanding medical men were always active in promoting the ideals of the fraternity and rendered great aid in the early days.

The first meetings of the chapter were held in members' rooms and in the old Odd Fellows Hall on East Twenty-Second Street. Zeta had quarters for two years at Indiana Avenue and Twenty-Second Street.

"The meetings of the chapter were still being held in the members' rooms, those of Murray Washburn, on 20th Street, east of Michigan; in the apartment of Hollister and Cubbins or A. W. McClave; and later in the Chicago Charity Hospital, 2407 Dearborn Street, where I was a student resident. The first house was organized in the summer of 1899 in the Chicago Charity Hospital and we leased the place at 2346 Calumet Avenue, first apartment, Hollister signing the lease with me. The members of that house were Hollister, Dye, Wiley, Lehnhoff, Brandt, Bunyan and Cubbins. We remained in this apartment for one year and then moved upstairs to the top apartment, 2344 Calumet Avenue." (quoting W. R. Cubbins).

Here a valuable reference library was begun which in the course of years has been greatly augmented, as will be seen later.

In 1902 the chapter moved into a house at 2414 Prairie Avenue, which through alumni and faculty aid had been made comfortable and excellently adapted to its purpose. Here Zeta's home continued until 1910, when she took a house at 2180 Prairie Avenue. The need of a larger and better house, and generous help from alumni, prompted her to move in 1917 to the corner of Twenty-Ninth Street and Prairie Avenue. Increased costs were more than compensated for by the greater number of men accommodated; a new financial plan of paying a flat rate of thirty dollars a month for room, board and dues, was found to be successful. Many contributions to the library were made at about this time, including the complete library of W. D. Flack, given by his estate,—a valuable asset to the fraternity.

When the school was removed to the north side in 1926, the chapter was prepared to go also, moving into a rented house on Rush Street temporarily, awaiting the development of plans for financing and building a permanent home on land to be furnished by the University in the vicinity of the medical school, for a group of fraternity houses. Due greatly to the efforts of the new faculty committee in securing the lease, Zeta was able to move into a more suitable and commodious house at 674 Rush Street in the fall of 1929. This was located conveniently near the campus, housing twenty-eight men at the outset, eleven of whom were pledges occupying the top floor.*

In 1900 Zeta joined with Eta and Kappa in a memorable smoker which saw also a large representation of faculty men from all three schools. This was the forerunner of other tri-chapter events, notably the 1907 banquet, made possible through the combined efforts of the then Grand Galen, Will Walter, and a committee from Eta, Kappa and Zeta. This was an outstanding event and described as "one of the most enjoyable social functions ever participated in by any of the three chapters here in the city". It drew prominent men from in and out of the city, and "space and words are wanting to record the interesting talks and witty expressions given by the many able speakers present". The records show that such tri-chapter get-togethers have since had repetition, particular mention being made by Zeta's 1917 historian: "The annual tri-chapter banquet was attended by practically every member of the three chapters and by many alumni of the three schools".

*Since the writing of this story, Zeta has taken over the former McCormick home at 25 East Erie Street, diagonally across from the home of the American College of Surgeons. The house is wonderfully well adapted to the chapter purposes and luxuriously comfortable, with commodious parlors and ample space for chapter needs. This fine house is illustrated on page 259.

Throughout later years, the alumni tri-chapter dance, being the annual round-up of all Nu Sigs of Chicago and suburbs, has become the big social event. In addition, Zeta holds bi-monthly dances at the chapter house; occasional smokers relieve the strenuous work of class-room and laboratory.

To promote closer relationship with the faculty, Zeta in 1916 set aside Friday as "Faculty Day" at the chapter house; finding the response insufficient, they soon "found that a more successful plan has been to invite faculty and wives to Sunday dinner, and in this way an increased attendance has been noted." (Historian 1917).

Zeta, Eta and Kappa were joint hosts to the nineteenth fraternity convention, including Home-coming in 1916. At this time Zeta gave the model initiation and a smoker to the visiting delegates.

In 1920 the chapter adopted a plan of having a team of sophomores conduct the initiation, this to carry on for three years, thus obviating the difficulty of breaking in a new group each year.

Zeta's roll of honor in the great war, published in 1918, carried the names of sixty-five fellows, led by Majors Kanavel, Besley, White and Hogue. To this list should be added the names of Brothers William G. Stearns who served with the Army Medical Advisory Board, E. Persons, since deceased, who was in command of the U. S. Hospital Service in Italy, and Ralph Mendelsohn who was in Red Cross Service in Serbia before the United States entered the war. There are no war-time casualties recorded.

The reaction of Zeta men to the grievous war years is described by the historians of 1919 and 1920: "The days of army life are still subjects of eternal damnation—a nightmare", and "the assimilation of military practice and of medical education are in an inverse ratio. The climax came with the final government pay-checks * * * Neither had the then chapter house been spared, for it had been converted into a barracks and nearly ruined."

Scholastically, Zeta has ever striven to do credit to Nu Sigma Nu. The 1901 historian relates that, "in scholarship, the high standard of previous years is being maintained, and the chapter continues to observe the precedent of initiating freshmen only at the end of their year's work when their desirability has been established." This rule seems to have been modified somewhat in later years, since in 1918 we learn that, "starting with this year's class, we initiate no men who have not completed one semester's work with a minimum of seventy-five per cent, and in this way we hope to raise the scholastic standing." That these regulations have brought results has repeatedly been shown in the many scholastic honors won by Zeta men. When the school published the average standings in 1921, it was found that Zeta led all the fraternities with a chapter average of 85.49 per cent. Her ambition to keep up this standard has been frequently fulfilled in the years that have followed. That in 1923 one-half of the men elected to Alpha Omega Alpha were Nu Sigma Nu is but one example of the many honors earned for Zeta by her sons.

To promote interest in things medical and fraternal, a new feature was instituted in 1920 whereby outstanding medical men were brought in once a month to give informal after-dinner talks at the chapter house; in 1930 this became a bi-monthly event. The first visitor was Grand Galen Graves with a talk on the fraternity; many noted men have followed with discussions of their respective fields; of such may be mentioned Huber of Alpha, Elliott and Davis of Zeta, our Dean Cutter, and many others of note.

In 1931 we find Zeta prominently represented on the teaching staff and in student activities and organization: sixty-seven Nu Sigma Nus listed on the faculty; Zeta with an officer in each of the four classes.

ETA

The history of Eta concerns itself with a development wherein a commercial enterprise, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, became a part of a great state-supported educational enterprise, the University of Illinois. The growth of Eta has kept pace with her school; hers is a history of continuous progress, numerically, scholastically, and in the achievements of her alumni.

We are grateful to Dr. Ernest S. Moore, Eta '03, for the final reading of Eta's story.

W-W

THE SCHOOL

DOCTOR STEELE

The history of the University of Illinois College of Medicine goes back to 1882, when the College of Physicians and Surgeons was organized as an Illinois corporation in Chicago. From the beginning its prestige was assured, principally through the efforts of Daniel A. K. Steele (a fellow of Eta), one of its founders and incorporators, whose death in 1931 recalled his lifelong services and accomplishments for "P and S" and for medical standards in Chicago. In addition to occupying the chair of surgery from the foundation of the school to his death, he was at first secretary, then president, in which latter capacity he took an active part in securing a lease of the College to the University of Illinois in 1897.

The American Missionary College of Battle Creek, Michigan, had been absorbed in 1910. In the following year there were 514 students enrolled in the college, in spite of the fact that over 100 applicants for admission to the freshman class had been turned away that fall as lacking in entrance requirements. All the large hospitals of the city were included in the list to which the College of Physicians and Surgeons graduates were eligible, except such as were integral parts of other medical schools; outside hospitals were also available. Among various hospitals directly connected for clinical teaching was also Cook County; the West Side and University Hospitals were in direct connection. The dispensary was a great pride, each department being in direct charge of a faculty member. In 1910, 21,000 patients were cared for here.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons became an integral part of Illinois University in 1910 when the trustees undertook the active supervision of the medical department. Through a legal technicality whereby legislative appropriation was annulled, no financial support could be given by the university to a private corporation such as the College of Physicians and Surgeons still was. For two or three years the affairs of the school were therefore in a very unsettled condition, while its officers, led by Dr. Steele, set about to remedy the situation. Their efforts were directed toward inducing the stockholders to donate their individual holdings to the university, the idea being that "if the university owns the stock it will also own the school". Through the generosity of the alumni, ninety-three per cent of the stock was secured after two years of unceasing labor, the largest individual donation having been made by Dr. John B. Murphy (Eta-Zeta). The students pledged sums to cover the purchase of the remainder; on March 6, 1913, the official transfer was made with elaborate and formal ceremonies and the school came under the direct supervision of the university authorities. This step was necessary to assure the future of the school; increased requirements and standards could not be met without financial support other than that derived from tuition fees. With such a recognized institution as the University of Illinois to safeguard its welfare, the medical school was ready for the upward trend in medical education: entrance requirements were raised; more salaried men were put on the faculty; necessary equipment was added. Eta's Alma Mater was taking her place in the ranks of Class A schools. A period of expansion followed and the increase in registration was such that in 1916 the freshman class was four times that of the previous year.

It soon became obvious that the physical plant was inadequate, and in 1920 the state appropriated five million dollars for a new hospital. The plans were further expanded and the next year foundations were laid for the first unit of the new clinical buildings which were to comprise a hospital devoted to general medicine and surgery, an eye and ear infirmary, a psychiatric institute, a surgical institute for children and a pediatric hospital, the site for the unit being the old Cubs Park. This imposing group, the Research and Educational Quadrangle, had further additions in 1929 and 1930, when the legislature appropriated two million dollars for the erection of the Medical and Dental Laboratories and for the completion of other units.

In 1931 the long sought for goal of the College of Medicine was attained with the completion of the new Medical Laboratory Building at a cost of one and one-half million dollars. Plans for the Dental Laboratory Building were under way and in 1932 new buildings were available for all classes except pathology and bacteriology. Present facilities provide for an enrollment of two hundred in each class, which makes possible one of the largest medical schools in the country. The curriculum has been revised from time to time to keep pace with the best in present day medical education. Needless to say, the opportunities for clinical teaching are endless in Chicago.

In the present faculty, Nu Sigma Nu fellows number twenty-four.

THE CHAPTER

Familiar and beloved of all Eta men is the name of A. M. Harvey, "the father of the chapter." He was a Knox College graduate with fraternity experience and had attended Michigan University the previous year, when he entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1891. His associations with members of Alpha Chapter had impressed him with the good work done and with the enviable position held by Nu Sigma Nu. He proposed that communication be opened with the governing body with a view to obtaining a charter. Working with him at this time was his old college friend, O. M. Lanstrum; encouragement came also from the faculty, particularly through Bayard Holmes.

The following men from the classes of '93 and '94 were chosen as additional charter members by Harvey and Lanstrum: Charles I. Hardie, Otto W. Henssler, William R. Livingston, W. S. Brown, E. S. Day, O. H. Donaldson and A. A. Foster. On February 2, 1892, members of Zeta Chapter delegated with authority from the Grand Chapter performed the initiatory ceremonies in the Vendom Building at the corner of Ogden Avenue and Madison Street. According to Charter Member Harvey, "the initiation ceremonies were held in a building seven stories high, started after office hours in the evening, and were held all the way from the third to the seventh story and down again from the seventh to the third story."

At first the new chapter was subjected to much criticism from the student body, but as Eta soon became a valuable adjunct to the medical school no invitation to membership was ever refused.

Among prominent faculty men who early became members of Eta chapter and gave valuable assistance the following deserve special mention: William E. Quine, Bayard Holmes, T. H. Hardie and Daniel A. K. Steele. (Quine died in 1922, Holmes in 1924, Steele in 1931. Hardie is practicing in Chicago. Of the charter members, Harvey is living in La Grange, Illinois, Henssler in Riverside, Brown in Elgin; Day is in Earlham, Iowa, Donaldson in Detroit, Michigan, Livingston in Oxnard, California. Hardin died in 1898 and Foster in 1899.)

Eta had no chapter house in the early years. Meetings were held in the rooms of members and were not as regular as might have been desired. The fellows had a strong fraternal feeling, however, and did the best they could with conditions as they were. With the acquisition of a house in 1900, social affairs became more frequent: special mention is made at this time of the "Kneippe" held with Zeta and Kappa chapters—a very enjoyable affair—and the forerunner of many future tri-chapter events. In later years tri-chapter dances have become traditional with Eta, Zeta and Kappa.

The chapter has always maintained a high standard of scholarship. New members must comply with Eta's requirements for scholarship, manliness and good fellowship. Until 1911 a full year's work was a prerequisite for eligibility, but in that year it was changed to one semester's work. A committee of two faculty men passed on the scholarship and standing of all men before they were accepted. As a result many honors were won for the chapter: in 1911 several men received appointments to Cook County Hospital—the greatest prize any graduate of a medical school in Cook County can obtain. Eta men were well represented on the faculty of the medical school. In 1916 was begun the custom of having one faculty member speak at the house every second Tuesday on a medical subject or on medical work.

Eta joined with Zeta and Kappa as hosts to the Nineteenth National Fraternity Convention in 1916, starting off with a joint smoker at the Zeta house on the first evening. The convention was a great success throughout.

In war time all active members and pledges of the chapter were enlisted in the Medical Reserve Corps of the Army or the Enlisted Hospital Reserve Corps of the Navy. Of alumni and faculty in the service who deserve special mention were: Major D. A. K. Steele who was appointed head surgeon in charge of the new Base Hospital at Lakewood, N. J.; Majors C. S. Williamson, F. B. Earle, A. H. Halstead, Joseph C. Beck; Captain John C. Weatherson and Lieutenants F. E. Senear and L. H. Mayers. W. C. Hammond was a member of the medical advisory board and D. H. Singer was on the war committee of the Chicago Neurological Society. The alumni service record was so large and the chapter so out of touch with many of the older men that it was impossible for the active chapter to tell with completeness who had served with the colors and who had not; that every man had done his part wherever most needed was certain.

Eta has a real business way of recording and filing information on the background and medical progress of every alumnus who will furnish the desired material. With "Eta Nu Sig News" record cards are at times enclosed, to be filled and returned to the chapter files.

The social affairs of Eta were never numerous, the alumni dance and the tri-chapter dance being the only required annual functions. W. P. Tippet, Eta '24, in a letter dated 1925, tells that "dances were well patronized affairs during my years in school. We made it a policy to have at least one general fraternity dance a semester, and a tri-chapter dance, Eta-Zeta-Kappa, which served as a uniting link between the chapters.

"At the close of each year the customary banquet was given by the underclassmen to the seniors, many of whom responded with speeches." This banquet event is always a jolly party and a warm send-off to the graduating class.

In 1928 Eta greets us with the announcement that "this business of learning to be a doctor is rather strenuous for most of us, but we can still enjoy a few things beside a case history and a rodent ulcer. The chapter is keeping up its old record in athletic, social, scholastic and rushing competition."

The great annual feast is the Thanksgiving Dinner with turkey for a large part of faculty, alumni and friends in the city. Since 1922, it has been a part of Eta's regular program, looked forward to and relished by all. Other events calculated to promote beneficial contacts have been promoted. The 1930 historian writes: "We are instituting this year a series of alumni-faculty dinners. We hope to arrange an advisory council for the chapter composed of these men. We have also enjoyed a few exchange dinners with other medical fraternities this year."

Eta has adopted the plan of designating one class to take charge of the initiation ritual, continuing throughout its sojourn in the medical school. Memorizing the ritual leads to a more impressive and perfect ceremony. Initiation is held in February as soon as the semester's grades are verified, no pledge being accepted who has not passed all his work with an average of seventy-five per cent. Eta holds that admission to Nu Sigma Nu is equivalent to making an honorary fraternity.

In 1924 a movement was set on foot to provide through the local Inter-fraternity Council some recognition for scholarship. A beautiful silver cup was purchased to be awarded to the fraternity showing the highest average. It was Eta's pride to be the first winner of this cup and to continue to hold it for six consecutive years; evidence that she was standing first scholastically among the fraternities at the university during those years. The cup was lost in 1931 to a Jewish fraternity, even though at the time Eta was a whole point ahead of every other Gentile group of competitors.

As further evidence of scholastic merit, attention is called to the fact that Eta has had at least one man elected to Alpha Omega Alpha each year, in addition to other honors won.

In the early days of Eta, according to Charter Member Harvey, "chapter meetings were held in the rooms of different members—we had no chapter house." The records reveal nothing further until the 1901 historian tells us that "last year Eta Chapter was housed in comfortable quarters easily accessible to the college. Fourteen men, including Professor Evans, live at the house." Then, following the example of Alpha, a house fund was started, each member pledging himself to pay into the fund in the course of five years following his graduation, the sum of one hundred and twenty-five dollars for the special purpose of building a house for the chapter.

A house at Adams and Laffin Streets was taken in 1901 and filled to capacity by the fellows. Need for more spacious and suitable accommodations prompted Eta to move in 1911 to 1628 West Jackson Boulevard. Here rooms were available for fourteen men and a large chapter room on the first floor was adapted for regular meetings and for initiations. A house steward was in charge, and with board at four dollars a week, the income exceeded the expenditures. At this time was begun the interesting task of making a collection of pictures of prominent faculty men, alumni, and chapter groups. The years have brought many additions to this gallery which now covers all bare spots and gratifies the desire to look at predecessors who have weathered the storms of medical college.

In 1915 Eta moved to a new house at 1458 West Jackson Boulevard which alumni had helped to furnish and which was at once filled to overflowing. With a large ball-room on the third floor, dances and other social events could conveniently be given at the chapter house. Worthy of mention was the charity party given near Christmas, 1916, for fifty poor children from the slums of Chicago's West Side. The children were furnished transportation in automobiles and were treated to a large Christmas tree with gifts of wearing apparel and toys for all. In this same year was begun the custom of having a faculty member speak at the house on a subject relating to medicine. This plan was developed further after the war in the hope that actives might know better the men in whose footsteps they were to follow.

In 1925 a new and ideal home was acquired near the new school building, and a great change in the attitude of the men was immediately apparent following this move. It proved so satisfactory that in 1931, after investigating real estate conditions in the locality, the chapter decided that their then location at 626 South Ashland Boulevard was the best obtainable, and hence another three-year contract was signed for this house. This is where Eta now resides and continues to prosper, and here she always extends a welcome to all visiting brothers.

THETA

This school history has been abstracted from the bulletin of the University of Cincinnati. We have added to this an interesting account of the school at the time of Theta's installation contributed by Faculty Alumnus Edmund Baehr ('01).

Interesting details of the early days of the chapter have come from the only surviving charter fellow, Frank Southgate, now at Fort Thomas, Kentucky. Abstracts from the fraternity publications have furnished the remaining chapter data.

THE SCHOOL

The College of Medicine of the University of Cincinnati is the lineal descendant of the Medical College of Ohio which was chartered by the Ohio Legislature in 1819. The early history of the college centers about one remarkable man, Daniel Drake, the first Cincinnati to receive a medical diploma, this degree having been conferred upon him by the University of Pennsylvania in 1816. Drake became a member of the faculty of the first western medical college, Transylvania University, founded in 1817, but resigned after one year, returning to Cincinnati to found the Medical College of Ohio in 1819.

In 1852, the year of Drake's death, the Miami Medical College was founded. It was a vigorous rival of the Ohio Medical College until the two were united in 1857. They separated in 1865, to reunite in 1909, as a part of the University of Cincinnati. This College became the present College of Medicine of the University of Cincinnati in 1917.

Edmund Baehr, '01, of the faculty, has contributed the following letter relating to the school, particularly during the early years of Theta.

"In 1892, the year of installation of Theta Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu, the Medical College of Ohio had been holding its sessions forty years in the beautiful Gothic structure on Sixth Street near Vine in down-town Cincinnati. This was considered at the time and for some time to come, the finest and most practical medical college building in the country. In addition to appropriate quarters for classes and for laboratories, libraries and clinics, it contained two immense amphitheatres each capable of seating six hundred students. Here was so often heard the vociferous applause for the giants of those days (so says Dr. Juettner in his book 'Daniel Drake and His Followers'), Blackman, Wright, Bartholow, Graham, Whittaker, Conner and Reamy.

"In 1896 The Ohio Medical College surrendered its charter to the University of Cincinnati and in 1897 the medical school held forth in new quarters, the former McMicken University building on the Clifton Avenue hillside when the University proper moved into its new edifice in Burnet Woods. Twelve years later occurred the important amalgamation between the Ohio Medical College and the Miami Medical College, the latter abandoning its old quarters on Twelfth Street.

"It became evident soon afterward that 'Old McMicken on the Hill' would prove inadequate for housing the growing classes. When, therefore, the new General Hospital was planned, it included provision for a modern and appropriate structure for the medical college on the hospital grounds on the hilltops and that building we now occupy as the College of Medicine of the University of Cincinnati."

This grouping, accomplished in 1918, gave Cincinnati one of the most efficient teaching systems of the day. A director placed in charge, was made responsible for all the work in his service in school, hospital and clinics.

The elective system, by means of which a wide range of credit subjects were available in all four classes, was offered for the first time in 1923, and proved very successful.

In 1920 the medical school lost its revered dean, Dr. Christian R. Holmes, whose singular devotion and remarkable accomplishments will long be remembered. In recognition of his services the Carnegie Foundation set aside a fund for the permanent endowment of the Chair of Surgery. In his honor the Holmes Deanship was also endowed and in 1928 the Holmes Memorial Hospital constructed adjacent to the College of Medicine. A truly philanthropic gift, this modern institution caters especially to the private patients of the college faculty members.

The College of Medicine has been the recipient of many magnificent gifts and endowments. Contributions in 1923 from the Carnegie Foundation, the General Education Board and the citizens of Cincinnati amounted jointly to over one million dollars; the Kettering Laboratory for applied physiology with funds for its maintenance, came in 1930 from the General Motors Corporation; the Pediatric Foundation, for which two and one-half millions were provided, from Colonel Proctor, also in 1930.

The citizens of Cincinnati proved their generosity again in 1930 when they issued bonds to cover the cost of building and equipping a new out-patient dispensary. This was opened in 1932 when, due to economic conditions, there was the greatest need and demand for its services.

Many other gifts and endowments have come to the medical school in recent years to help equip and expand its physical plant and its faculty to the present state of perfection. The material equipment consists of the College Hospital group, comprising the Cincinnati General Hospital, the Pathological Institute, the College Building, the College Dispensary, and the Holmes Memorial Hospital; the Hamilton County Tuberculosis Sanitarium and a number of other teaching facilities made available through various social and other agencies, notably important being the Children's Hospital with the Pediatric Foundation, the Bethesda, and several other hospitals.

In 1892, at the inception of Theta Chapter, the faculty consisted of fourteen professors, of whom four (Hyndman, Cilley, Reamy and Zinke) later became members of Theta. In 1931-32, there were eighty-eight professors, twenty of whom were Nu Sigma Nu.

Of the Old Guard, Otis Smith, C. L. Bonifield,* Mark Brown, Kennon Dunham, Emmerson North and William Mithoeffer are still listed on the faculty roll.

Admission to the school when the chapter began (1892) was by examination. In 1898 a high school certificate became the requirement, in 1910 an additional year of science and language and in 1912 a college pre-medical course of two years were added. In 1934 three years of pre-medical college work will become compulsory for entrance.

THE CHAPTER

Through the efforts of Charles N. Dodd, an early initiate of Alpha, at that time teaching ophthalmology in the Ohio Medical College, the nucleus of Theta, the eighth chapter of Nu Sigma Nu, was organized. The officers of the Grand Council who came to institute the chapter were: R. E. L. Rodgers, Fred W. Robbins, John L. Irwin, Don M. Campbell and Benjamin Strong.

*Dr. Bonifield died April 23, 1932.

Dr. Frank H. Southgate, only surviving member of the charter group, and located in Fort Thomas, Kentucky, has given us his recollections of the installation and the early men and days of Theta as follows:

"In the year 1892 a group of medical students, under the leadership of one John Macready, decided that the Medical College of Ohio needed a good medical fraternity. These boys, with one or two exceptions, were members of College Greek letter fraternities and realized the value of such an organization.

"After many discussions of ways and means, it was decided to write for information to Ann Arbor, where at the University of Michigan, some ten years before, the Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity had been founded. The application for a Cincinnati chapter being granted, men from Alpha Chapter came to conduct the installation. This gala affair took place in the Faculty Room of the Medical College of Ohio, then located on Sixth Street on June 12, 1892.

"Those initiated were John H. Macready, Harry C. Hays, Frank D. Askew, Milton H. Mack, Frank H. Mary, Basil Creighton, Roscoe N. Doyal, Samuel H. Caraway and myself (Southgate), nine in all. Macready was the outstanding figure among those who formed the nucleus of this organization. He had a delightful personality; he was a good student and a good sport, and we expected under his leadership to grow by leaps and bounds.

"We overlooked certain facts pertaining to the student body however and soon found ourselves less popular than we had hoped. Most of the medical students of that day were men twenty-five years of age or older, who had received their preliminary education in country schools. Many had taught school to provide funds for their medical education and nearly all were serious minded men intent on getting the most out of their studies. It was not surprising that they looked askance on an organization which seemed to them purely social, and which many of them felt they could not afford. Thus was the purpose of our fraternity entirely misconstrued.

"Even the faculty members were not greatly in sympathy with our undertaking, the one exception being Professor James Hyndman, Secretary of the College, who did everything possible to promote interest, and later became an 'honorary' member of the chapter and Grand Aesculapius, followed by service in the Grand Council for several years.

"We had no real meeting place for the first year and were knocked about from pillar to post, but we met faithfully and frequently, sometimes in the drug room, surrounded by dusty and decadent vials; sometimes in the waiting room of one of the clinics still reeking with odors of the day's patients. It was all the same to us, we enjoyed the fellowship and we took ourselves very seriously, whether anyone else did or not.

"Near the end of the second year we established our quarters in the old Emery Hotel, and from that time on things went better. We took in students who represented the best the college had to offer and who were more than able to carry on the work. A few years later we were permitted to initiate men who had already graduated and in this way secured some of the best medical talent in Cincinnati.

"Of the nine charter members, I believe that I, perhaps the least conspicuous of them all, am the only one living. It can be readily understood that at the age of sixty-three I find it a bit difficult to remember details of meetings held so many years ago. There were minutes, of course, but they seem to have gone astray during the forty years since they were written and I have been able to touch only the high spots—to give merely impressions as I remember them—of how Theta Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu came into being."

Remote early quarters of the fraternity prevented many alumni from attending meetings. The apartments so long occupied by Theta were therefore abandoned in 1901, for more commodious quarters in the Palace Hotel building which alumni had assisted in obtaining. In two more years the membership had grown to 128 of whom nineteen were actives, necessitating another move in 1903 to apartments in the Emery Hotel. Our next information, from Historian Casey of 1907, is that the chapter "has not yet obtained the dignity of a chapter house, and we are living humbly yet happily in Room W., Bradford Block. - - - We count it not so much our home as a place of communion for all 'Fratres in Arte'." In the 1916 bulletin we find: "We have very comfortable quarters opposite the college building and have regular meetings every Saturday night. We also meet every day for lunch, cards, or music, as the spirit moves us."

The acquisition of a home in the spring of 1919 established the chapter at a great material advantage. The common interests dictated by the residence of all the brothers in one abode during the school term led to a movement to purchase a Nu Sigma Nu Chapter House, with the result that on April 20, 1920, there was incorporated in the State of Ohio with a capital of $25,000 the Theta Realty Company, an organization composed of the alumni and active members of the chapter who had subscribed to stock at $10 a share. A Board of Directors, composed of four alumni and three active members, each of the latter being from one of the three upper classes, carried on the business. The Theta Realty Company purchased and furnished the house on the northwest corner of Harvey and Kasota Avenues.

In 1920, with the opening of the school, seventeen men moved into the house, a three-story stone structure, fully equipped for comfortable living. The Nu Sigma Nu Dames furnished curtains and other articles making for beauty and comfort. Leather chairs for the music room were given by Mrs. Hyndman, widow of Brother James G. Hyndman. On Sunday, November 7, 1920, the formal opening of the house was held in the form of a tea with fully a hundred alumni and their wives present.

The interest of the mothers and wives of the brothers of Theta led to the formation of a subsidiary social chapter in 1920, established as the Nu Sigma Nu Dames of Theta Chapter. Coincident with the acquisition of the new home, this organization came at a very opportune time, to supervise the furnishing of the house. The Dames entertain regularly once a month at the house, the program consisting of a business meeting for the discussion of the needs and welfare of the men, followed by a social hour for mutual interest and acquaintance among mothers, wives and visitors of the members. In each subsequent year the gratitude of Theta Chapter has been feelingly expressed for the unfailing interest, loyalty and helpfulness of the Dames; draperies and rugs, a piano and chairs, and other attractive additions too numerous to mention have been furnished by them. The bridge parties and teas sponsored by them have not only been delightful social occasions, but have earned substantial sums of money for supplying the needs of the chapter house. The appreciation of the brothers is again voiced in 1932: "The Nu Sigma Nu Dames have been most generous in their gifts and most helpful in that kind of advice which can come only from a mother's experience in domestic management. In social activities, they have given their annual tea, a great success, and a spring card party at which over one hundred dollars was earned for the house."

Theta chapter has always been active socially, and to these social events the alumni have given generous support. In the early days meetings were held every Saturday evening, the last one of the month being of a purely social nature. This side was given a further impetus in 1909 when the alumni organization was established, serving to bring together more frequently alumni and actives and to keep fresh and strong the spirit of Nu Sigma Nu. Three meetings a year were held, of which only one, in January, was given over solely to business. Of the others, one was in the nature of a "rushing stunt" for the purpose of inspecting prospective candidates, the other a "stunt," held in the spring to bring the academic year to a rollicking close; both events designed to give an outing to the active chapter.

Dinners, dances and stag parties have been regular features of Theta's social life, hospitality being the keynote. In 1925 the fourth annual Nu Sigma Nu Minstrel cleared $350, a sum utilized in making various improvements in the house. The following year Theta presented a play, an innovation which drew a large and enthusiastic audience.

Theta alumni have always contributed generously of their time and knowledge. Talks on professional and fraternity subjects before the regular chapter meetings became early a point of contact with alumni whereby available information and encouragement was given to the younger men. This pleasant feature of fraternity life is commented upon by the historian of 1918, and again in 1924, when the occasion had become a dinner meeting held once in two weeks at the new Theta House. Many prominent speakers, both members and non-members, appeared before the chapter at various times, among whom may be mentioned Dr. Edmund Baehr, '01, Dr. Sexton, '82, Dr. Frank Southgate, '92, charter member, Dean Bachmeyer, and many others. The Speakers' Bureau, established in 1930, has functioned with praiseworthy efficiency, and the speakers and the committee who secured them have received the enthusiastic interest of the entire chapter. In 1932: "In October, Dr. C. L. Bonifield, the grand old man of Theta, white haired, affable, addressed us. In December, Dr. Will Walter, former Honorary National President, visited us. We are interested in his ideas for revising the ritual and producing a fraternity song record. Last spring, speakers who were non-members as well as members addressed us, notable among them Dr. Gustave Eckstein, author of the recent popular biography of Noguchi."

As part of the furnishings of the new house, Theta Realty Company donated a beautiful mahogany wall bookcase to be extended around the four walls of the reading room. The class of '28 increased the library with a set of Nelson's Loose Leaf Medicine and Modern Surgery; the hope is to fill it with books that will be of scholastic aid to the future student.

The war took away a great many men from the school, and Theta Chapter was not overlooked in that regard. The 1919 historian has described the trials incident upon those years. The Cincinnati Medical School opened in 1918 only to be closed in one week's time as a result of the influenza epidemic. All members of the school immediately did all in their power to mitigate the sufferings of those afflicted. The upper classmen did the work of graduate physicians, going from house to house and visiting the City's poor; the under classmen spent their time in laboratories, helping out the bacteriologists, searching for the flu bug and the anti-serum.

The last week in October, although the city was still under strict quarantine, the students were inducted into the service of the United States, placed in barracks hurriedly built on the grounds of the University, and returned to their classes as soldiers and students. All worked under difficulties trying to harmonize military and medical curricula. Weekly meetings were forbidden on account of the S. A. T. C.; but the Nu Sigs, having heard beforehand of the ban, hastened to hold their initiation at Brother John D. Miller's country place outside of Cincinnati, on a hill out of reach of the influenza bacillus and the City authorities. After this, Theta hibernated until on the twentieth of December the S. A. T. C. was disbanded and "we were again just ordinary 'Misters,' not Majors and Colonels."

From the first the members have striven to keep Theta at the head of the honor list. In 1907, the historian writes: "Each year has seen a good proportion of our men enter the hospitals by competitive examination, and this year our worthy seniors bid fair to outclass all other contestants." In 1921 Theta was the only medical fraternity one hundred per cent of whose members were allowed to return to school. Each succeeding year the scholarship of Theta was recognized by desirable interne appointments, elections to honor societies, and student positions on the staff. In 1921, "Presidents of three classes and secretary of the fourth are represented in the fraternity, as well as the presidency and treasurership of the Undergraduate Pediatrics Society."

In school activities at least in recent years, Theta has also taken a prominent part. The 1931 historian reports that:

"It is greatly due to the hospitality of Theta at our dances, the donation of the Chapter House for an all-Sophomore party, and the organization and management of an inter-fraternity baseball league by Brother William R. Chambers, that there exists an excellent feeling of friendliness among the various fraternities of the medical campus."

Systematic help for the pledges was instituted in 1929 with a system of preceptors for the first year men, each freshman being assigned to an upper classman who became responsible for his scholastic standing. In addition, upper classmen who were especially proficient in first year subjects, met the freshmen once in two weeks for a review and quiz session.

Theta has an unusual and elaborate rushing program in which the Nu Sigs of Cincinnati join, the program varying from year to year. A rush committee is first appointed by the chapter to supervise and promote its interests by dinners, speakers' evenings and dances at the chapter house. The 1931 chapter letter tells of the rush program of 1930 which will serve as an example:

"When in September we returned to our labors, we were greeted with a most unique rush program, consisting of dinner and evening at the Pines Country Club, a boat ride dance on the steamer Tom Greene up the river to New Richmond and back, and finally a smoker at the chapter house. The success of the effort is attested by the men pledged to Nu Sigma Nu this year. We make public acknowledgment to Dr. Gordon McKim of our gratitude for his generosity in financing the boat ride."

And the next year, fired with enthusiasm at the Iowa Convention, President Hilsinger, assisted by rush captain Stafford, planned a series of meetings at local universities to study applicants for admission to the Cincinnati Medical College. At Miami University, a group of prospectives were gathered for dinner in one of the college inns. Dr. Moore of Oxford and Dr. Richard Gates of the Cincinnati Surgical School, associate from Tulane, fortified the meetings with their presence and their inspirational addresses.

For the fall parties forty-five alumni under the leadership of Dr. Charles A. Langdale pledged ten dollars apiece toward the rushing expenses. A formal dance was given at the fashionable Maketewah Country Club and a stag dinner at the North Bend Inn. An impressive parade of thirty-nine alumni attended the dinner, representing classes from as early as the year '93. At the dinner, Dr. Dennis E. Jackson, Professor of Pharmacology and wit of renown, held forth as toastmaster, with Dr. Clinton F. McClintic, candidate for Governor of West Virginia as the principal speaker, Dr. Clifford Straehley, our beloved Dr. Bonifield, Dr. Southgate, our only living founder, and many others speaking seriously and effectively. Thus did Theta concentrate all effort on bringing in the best in pledge material and "with unrivalled success."

Theta's history is closed with a quotation from Brother Will Chambers' splendid chapter letter which won for Theta the Tiffany Trophy in 1932.

"Theta congratulates Alpha and all of Nu Sigma Nu on the fiftieth anniversary. Theta also congratulates herself that she is a part of such a great fraternity, a brotherhood that has made such strides in half a century, with almost as many chapters as there are years in her history. . . . Theta is also enjoying a birthday, her fortieth. . . . To obtain that close cooperation between alumni and active members which hardly recognizes a separation into two groups, built not on favoritism or paternalism, but on a warm friendship as between older and younger brothers, and fostered by an earnest zeal on the part of all for an ennobling profession, we believe is one of the greatest fortunes of any fraternity. It is to such an ideal that Theta believes she has attained. For this, the lion's share of the credit is due our alumni, who having worked laboriously to set the foundation of the fraternity firm, have yet not been too weary to aid in embellishing her cornices. Therefore, Theta wishes to say to her sister chapters that it is in honor of the Alumni, yours and hers, and those who have reached the Great Omega, to which we all proceed, that she would dedicate this anniversary."

Theta supplied officers to the Executive Council in the early days of the chapter in the persons of Alumnus Lawrence Shields 1897-99, and Faculty Fellow James Hyndman (now deceased) 1899-02, both during the all important period of development. The last two years of Doctor Hyndman's service was as council president and the position was admirably filled.

IOTA

We are greatly indebted to Alumnus Theodore S. Evans, I, '21, for the final reading of this history, and particularly for the addition of interesting and amusing experiences in the chapter life of his, the war, period. The story of earlier days is incomplete. The history of the school has been culled from many sources, and has met with the approval of Iota alumni.

THE SCHOOL

Columbia University was founded in 1754 as King's College by royal grant of George II, King of England, "for the Instruction of Youth in the Learned Languages, and the Liberal Arts and Sciences." The Revolutionary War interrupted its active work, but in 1784 it was reopened as Columbia College. In 1912, the title was changed to Columbia University in the City of New York.

King's College organized a medical faculty in 1767 and was the second institution in the North American Colonies to confer the degree of Doctor of Medicine in course. (The first, the University of Pennsylvania, graduated a class in 1768.) The first individuals to graduate in medicine from the College were Robert Tucker and Samuel Kissam, who received the degree of Bachelor of Medicine in May, 1769, and that of Doctor of Medicine in May, 1770, and May 1771, respectively. Instruction in medicine was given from this time on until the work of the College was broken up by the War of the Revolution. In 1792 the medical faculty was re-established, continuing until 1814, when the Medical Faculty of Columbia College was merged in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which had received an independent charter in 1807. In 1860, the College of Physicians and Surgeons became the Medical Department of Columbia College by affiliation, and in 1891 the College was definitely merged in the University. Since September, 1917, women have been admitted to the School on the same basis as men.

Previous to 1913 entrance requirements had been definitely fixed at two years of college work, with the result that whereas ten years before the classes at the Medical School had averaged two hundred and fifty to three hundred men, following the change they had averaged less than one hundred.

Columbia was taking a somewhat paradoxical stand however, in allowing men to enter from other medical schools of recognized standing without examination and without the loss of a year. For this reason, in spite of the numbers that failed to pass each year, the classes were generally larger at graduation than at entrance.

Even before the requirements for admission were raised the decrease in registration had begun, largely due to the increased requirements for graduation and the high standard of work required by both the school and the state boards.

With the decrease in numbers came an improvement in the personnel of the school, a greater interest in the work on the part of the students, and a demand for greater efficiency and service from the faculty. This won the confidence of the hospitals and enlarged the field of work and the opportunities of the students. For many years there were repeated rumors of approaching combinations with the Roosevelt and Presbyterian Hospitals. But not until 1911, just after it had been announced that land for a new school had been bought on Columbia Heights, did affiliation with Presbyterian Hospital take place. The combination did not appear to be of any great importance at first, but gradually more radical changes were made, the combination working to the advantage of both school and hospital, and the union becoming closer each year.

Although the school now possessed a large plant, its work was not restricted to these institutions, but extended to the wealth of material offered by hospitals of all kinds in the city.

The clinical clerkships alone were held in seven hospitals and twenty-three were used for study.

In method, the trend was away from didacticism and toward the stimulation of individual thought and study, resulting in changes in the spirit and attitude of the student body, which became as a whole, more thoughtful and progressive. Due to the demands of the student body for general medical literature, the school libraries took on a new growth. The E. G. Janeway Library, presented to the College by T. C. Janeway, Professor of Medicine, in memory of his father, became a great help.

The expansion of P. and S. of Columbia led finally to the new Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, overshadowing all that had gone before, and described in detail by the 1928 historian, Granville Knight, from whom we quote in part:

"New York City with its huge population has at last fallen into line with the trend of medicine towards unification of specialized branches.

"Overlooking the broad expanse of the Hudson at 168th Street, twenty acres of ground, donated for this special purpose by the magnanimous foresight of Mr. Edward S. Harkness and his mother, Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, provide a spacious and fit situation for the enormous project.

"The idea first took form in 1911, when the agreement was made that Presbyterian Hospital should serve as a teaching hospital for the students of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. In 1921 a Joint Administrative Board was formed to develop a complete Medical Center.

"The first unit, in a twenty-two story building, opened in 1928 and costing nearly fifteen million dollars, houses the Presbyterian Hospital, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the Sloane Hospital for Women, the Squier Urological Clinic and the Harkness Private Patient Pavillion. Other buildings in similar style will take care of the Presbyterian School for Nursing, the New York State Psychiatric Institute and the Neurological Institute. The Babies' Hospital will have 160 beds.

"Every modern improvement known to science has been incorporated in the equipment with the belief that such a policy can not help but be more efficient in the long run. In keeping with this, one building will be devoted entirely to recreation rooms, swimming pools and a gymnasium.

"The entire movement is the largest of the kind ever attempted, but the outstanding factor to be gained by such a coalition is, as Dr. C. Charles Burlingame, Executive Officer of the Joint Administrative Board, expresses it, '---the opportunity for complete intellectual unifying of scientific medicine in all its branches.'"

Concentration of the work in one center has been of untold advantage in obviating the handicap under which the students have worked in rushing from one end of the city to the other for instruction.

In 1929, Historian Williams commented upon the new schedule as follows: "In addition to moving into the new plant, the administration of the school has shifted the schedules about in accordance with the newer ideas to give the student more time of his own to follow up any particular branch in which he may be particularly interested. This has resulted, of course, in some slight confusion, but on the whole the scheme is a great success, both among the faculty and among the students. When all the units of the Center are in operation and the various mechanical difficulties of the new schedules have been smoothed out, we feel that we shall have one of the best equipped schools in the country, both as to actual physical equipment and to the arrangement of the course."

As to size and capacity, the facts are astounding: "The uninitiated need a map and a compass to find their way about the Center."

THE CHAPTER

Iota's history began in 1893 when on February 24 the charter was issued to a group of eight men, namely; F. R. Bailey, Carl A. Huber, W. T. Lawson, H. C. Lovis, R. J. Parker, M. T. Sime, G. A. Lawrence, and one other who was subsequently dropped and is therefore unnamed. Of this group Bailey, Lawrence and Sime have joined Omega Chapter, Lawson did not graduate, Huber is practicing in Rochester, New York, and Parker and Lovis in New York City. J. F. Hasbrouck was initiated at the time of the installation of the chapter but was not listed as a charter member. This early group was strong and started under good auspices, but misfortune overtook them after forty-four men had been initiated—the last on April 9, 1898. At this time the chapter was split into two incompatible groups and conditions were such that the Council thought wise to withdraw the charter temporarily.

Reorganization came about in 1904 when, through the efforts of an alumnus, James R. Jacoby, one of the early initiates, and Homer Day, a student of the class of '06, and upon the recommendation of Xi and Tau Chapters, a new charter was issued by the Grand Council and a new group installed composed of Homer Day, G. E. Miller, W. K. Terriberry and C. A. Anderson. This group added seventeen men before the close of that college year and the chapter was on its way to better things. The initiation of several faculty men added materially to the enthusiasm.

The housing problems of Iota Chapter have been difficult and peculiar from the first. The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University was situated on West 59th Street, in the midst of the largest negro section in New York, at the crest of San Juan Hill, long noted as one of the toughest spots in the city. The very things that made the site valuable for the school made it impossible for residential purposes. For this reason most of the men lived at a great distance from the school.

In 1904 several meetings were held at the old St. Paul Hotel, corner of Columbus Avenue and 60th Street. In the summer of 1905 an apartment was rented at 363 West 57th Street, and bonds were sold to members for the financing of the furnishings. Several men roomed in the fraternity house during the winters of 1905 to 1907. The fraternity was on a good basis here, active and prosperous, and many pleasant parties were enjoyed. After this the quarters were moved to the upper West Sixtieths, but through storage difficulties during the summer months, the furniture gradually deteriorated and the rooms were eventually given up. Subsequent meetings were held in the Student's Club of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, an organization which had a house on West 57th Street, in which a number of the members of Iota Chapter resided during their college year.

Because it was impossible to get a decent apartment near enough to the school and because no one seemed willing to live in that region anyway, Iota in 1910 settled on the expedient of lodge rooms for meetings, giving up the idea of providing a place for study and rest that would always be open. The wide distribution of the hospitals, the distraction of a great city, prohibitive real estate values, the hard work, and the scattered social interests and associations have all militated against social unity in the chapter and have made a fraternity house impracticable.

Iota maintained chapter rooms in Tuxedo Hall, Madison Avenue and 59th Street in 1912. These rooms, although large and comfortable, were situated too far from the school and were not available at all times. Considering the financial difficulties of a small chapter in New York City the rooms answered their purposes well enough.

The following year comfortable rooms were secured in the Pabst Building on Columbus Circle, meetings being held on the second and fourth Fridays of every month. These rooms, although not satisfactory, were nearer to the school and the subway. Iota continued to be handicapped by the lack of a house, but in 1917 a regular place for meetings was provided, owing to the kindness of the Physicians and Surgeons Club which was then the only real center of social life in the college. Its large rooms and ample accommodations for serving refreshments, added much to the enjoyment of the regular meetings.

Although hampered by the lack of a fraternity house, Iota has succeeded in holding regular meetings, the general plan being to have a business meeting first followed by an informal talk by a speaker of special interest.

In 1918 a new feature, since continued, was introduced, in that doctors outside Nu Sigma Nu, of high rank in the medical world, were also invited to address the meetings, so that altogether many notable names have appeared on Iota's list of speakers.

Not much can be gleaned from the bulletins of the next few years except items of minor value, in the 1912-13 bulletins. From Alumnus Theodore S. Evans we have such an excellent idea of both chapter and school life at Columbia during his period (1917-1921) that we are pleased to quote at length from it:

"In the fall of 1917, a large class entered the Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia in spite of (war) enlistments and drafts. Most of us in the class of 1921 were dumped into the turmoil of the great city of New York with very little experience in 'bucking the subways.' But that difficulty was as nothing compared to our initiation into the life of medicine through the agency of that still unmastered os innominatum. With an entire new city to learn and a new science, of which we knew not even the terminology, to master, there were indeed many times when anything seemed preferable to the life of New York and the study of medicine.

"We went to and from the dingy class rooms past Columbus Circle at 59th Street and Broadway.

"When we had just managed to struggle across the iliac crest around the acetabulum, we became aware that there was in the Medical School one type of laughing but hard working men who seemed to enjoy life and work. As they became more familiar to us we found that they were upperclassmen and that most of them wore the magic pin of Nu Sigma Nu. Then came the thrill when some of these fellows gathered around us at the dissecting table and spent their time alternately encouraging and discouraging but always amusing us. Finally they asked a group of us to come over to a meeting of the Iota Chapter at Pabst Blue Ribbon Palace on the corner of 59th Street and Broadway. After that we received the invitations weekly for about a month and finally we were duly sworn to the oath and made active members of Nu Sigma Nu.

"Not long after our arrival at P. and S. (popularly known in those years as Paradise for Slackers) we were told by the United States Army that we were all to be enlisted as privates rear rank and in due season were so sworn. 'And then the fun began,' to quote a humorist of that day. First we had one of those overnight lieutenants from Madison Barracks—the type who demanded a salute when we had a Gray's Anatomy in one hand and an embryology, a physiology and an umbrella in the other. Picture him striding along with an orderly to carry his brief case meeting a private on a rainy morning. Private lowers his umbrella and tries to keep his hat hidden, but Lieuty spies his shoes. 'Halt! Why don't you salute an officer?' 'Yes, Sir.' Private puts books down in gutter and salutes. 'Put down that umbrella and salute properly!' Private deflates umbrella, leans it against elevated upright and salutes properly. The incident is then closed, the books are ruined and the private is choleric.

"In spite of the opposition of our beloved Dean Samuel Lambert, who said that no man could perform military duties and study medicine properly and who took our case to the highest authorities, we were all forced to drill in Central Park

Mall in the early hours of the morning, do our medical work through the day and study military tactics or what not at night. All that was bad enough, but the two obstructions that could not be dodged were the second lieuty and the uniforms. The first meeting of the general group with the lieuty resulted in a riot. One of our Naval enlisted men, Sam Burschell, 1921 and a Nu Sig, wandered into the meeting in his gob uniform. Lieuty: 'What are you looking for in here?' Burschell: 'For someone who knows something.' 'Where should you report?' Burschell: 'I don't know but thought you might tell me.' Lieuty: 'Well, I don't know—' Burschell: 'Nothing, I found that out anyway.' And then the riot began with stamping of feet and threats of court martial for all present. Of course that didn't last but three more days when the United States Army sent us a regular army captain who told us that it was all too bad, that he sympathized with us, and that he would make the work as light as possible: BUT that he would maintain discipline, and that we must do a minimal amount of drilling. On this understanding we got along very well, and before long the captain and the dean succeeded in freeing us from any strictly military work.

"But the uniforms! We were given all the leftovers and odd sizes from the entire army supplies, and whoever issued them had a sense of the grotesque worthy of John Held, Jr., or Hogarth. Take Private Louis A. Amil, 1921 and a Nu Sig: Louis weighed about 125 pounds. He was issued a uniform and shoes which really were meant for Firpo of the Pampas. The blouse reached around his waist about three times and hung down to his knees. The puttees went around his calves three times and then lapped over. He secured them on the third wrapping with adhesive tape. And the shoes! Not even in his most unique exposition did Charley Chaplin approach Louis' feet. When Louis, with a sense of humor and drama, stamped in late to class and went the entire length of the assembly hall to a seat reserved for him in the front row, uniforms received their death knell and were laughed out of use. The one redeeming feature of the army at P. and S. was the pay-check which came in due time and kept the wolf from many a student's door.

"In spite of the restlessness of the period and the loss of certain members as the result of bouts with anatomy, most of our brothers weathered the first year. In the second year heavy toll was taken by reason of our encounters with pathology and elementary surgery.

"Work was exacting those first two years and there were but few hours for play. However, we found some time for recreation and paramount amongst our play days was Armistice Day 1918. The news was announced in the morning about ten and every one who could buy, borrow, or steal a uniform or a part thereof, started off downtown to be hugged and kissed by all the ladies from Rosie O'Grady to the Colonel's Lady. The restaurants were jammed and in any French Restaurant in the city the drinks were on the house. Full many a hitherto sober Nu Sig fell by the roadside on that day of days.

"But most of all we looked forward to the meetings of our fraternity. We were greatly handicapped by the lack of a house, but, owing to the kindness of the Physicians and Surgeons Club, a branch of the Y. M. C. A., we had a regular place for our meetings. These were addressed by men of prominence in the world of letters or of medicine.

"After the war we settled down to greater mental quiet and better work. No more members were lost during the third and fourth years. As a result, the group in Nu Sigma Nu were cemented together even more firmly. A contributory factor to the unity of the group may also have been a change in the method of election, by which one or two men were chosen by the rushing committee to aid in the selection of the group taken from their respective classes. This resulted in an added increment of congeniality. The meetings were better attended and much more lively than previously. In our day there was never any question of getting the man we wanted for the fraternity. The only problem was to pick a small enough number to insure harmony. In 1918 we elected only two men who later added three others to their number, and in 1919 we elected only four who later in turn added to their number.

"In the clinical years our pilgrimages from Gouverneur Hospital way down-town on the east side of New York to Montifiore Home at 210th Street on the west side consumed a large part of each day. The meetings were better attended by the third or fourth year men than ever before. The small-unit system worked out admirably and was continued until after our graduation.

"In our third year also (1919-1920) the National Convention of Nu Sigma Nu was held in New York City under the joint auspices of the three New York chapters, when we had the pleasure of meeting fellows from every state in the Union. The ceremonies were interesting and instructive; the social contacts were tremendously inspiring, and a tremendous boost to the spirit of Nu Sigma Nu.

"During our years at Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia, we initiated many from the faculty, including Samuel Lambert, Dean of the College until 1919. These were added to an already long faculty list.

"No better gauge of scholarship was needed than that afforded by the appointments to hospital internships from Iota's fellows: seventeen men to eight hospitals in this area.

"After our graduation in 1921, and for two or three years, many of us kept in close contact with the fraternity and were able to see that it continued true to its high ideals of scholarship and sportsmanship. In the six years following the war, we feel sure that the chapter not only did not lose ground but advanced steadily."

Various other clubs—the Columbia, the D. K. E., the Yale, the New York Harvard Club—were used for meetings in later years. In 1924 a new idea was carried out in the holding of monthly chapter dinners in some down-town cafe. When the plan for the new school and dormitories was finally decided upon, it was hoped that at last Iota would be able to collect all her members under one roof.

The chapter suffered from the general disorganization which took place when the College of Physicians and Surgeons was moved into the new Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center. The hope was to obtain a permanent chapter room in Bard Hall, the medical school dormitory given by Mr. Harkness, and also arrange for the brothers to eat together in the dining room. But in 1932 in spite of the unification of various interests at the new Medical Center, Iota was still a homeless waif. The historian writes in 1933:

"No place was provided in Bard Hall in the way of a fraternity room, and without such a place it was impossible for men to get together for social and business reasons. Largely through the kind engineering of Dr. Norman Titus, the hospitality of the Phi Gamma Delta Club of New York was extended to us and most gratefully received. Several splendid meetings were held there and we at last felt that we had a place to hang our hats."

The close association of research facilities with clinical material has resulted in much closer-knit cooperation among the many members of the institution, and there has developed a feeling of unification of ideas which was difficult to achieve when the men were scattered over Greater New York.

This very unification has been a great aid in keeping the chapter together. Under the guidance of Chapter President Schroeder and with the advice of Faculty Alumnus Leon Cornwall of the Executive Council, we are progressing toward an active and successful period.

In the selection of her men Iota has considered character, scholarship and, lastly, mixing qualities. The men of the Medical School, having come from a great number of colleges which maintain high standards of scholarship, Columbia, Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Amherst, Williams, Dartmouth and others, their calibre has been exceptionally good. Entrance requirements have recently become so strict that only a small select group of real workers can get in and stay in. To this, in a large measure, is due our success in getting together a fine congenial membership. In hospital appointments and scholastic honors Iota men have distinguished themselves from the first.

Iota is proud of the war record of her fellows, many of whom served with honor.

The chapter has furnished the following alumni to the councils of the general fraternity: In 1893-95 R. J. Parker, 1895-99 J. F. Hasbrouck, Burton Opitz in 1910-12, D. Gordon 1919-22, and Leon Cornwall affiliated from Mu, who, having served in the Grand Council since 1928, is now taking an active part at the Medical Center and is helping in the work of Iota Chapter.

KAPPA

This account of Kappa Chapter has been compiled from various sources, the most notable single contribution being charter member Philip Doane's illuminating description of early events. Ernest Irons, faculty alumnus and at present Dean of Rush Medical College, has read and made final corrections in Kappa's somewhat intricate history.

DOCTOR BILLINGS

At the present time the Medical Schools of the University of Chicago include (1) The School of Medicine of the Division of the Biological Sciences, and (2) Rush Medical College. The former was organized in 1924 with the purpose of serving the medical sciences by research and teaching, its work being done on the University Quadrangles. When Chicago University was founded, provision was made for departments devoted to the development of the sciences and the training of scientists. Since 1899, all courses required in the first two years leading to the degree of Doctor of Medicine have been offered, with clinics and related departments, and students may take their third and fourth years either here or in Rush Medical College.

The story of Rush Medical College goes back to 1837, when it was chartered by a special act of the Illinois Legislature and founded by Daniel Brainard, its first president.

The first lectures were delivered in a building at Clark and Randolph in 1843. In 1844 a college building was erected at Dearborn and Indiana (now Grand Avenue). A larger building erected on this same site in 1867 was destroyed in the great fire of 1871. The college was then moved to temporary quarters on the grounds of Cook County Hospital while the management cast about for a permanent site. In 1875 a clinical building was erected as the first unit of Rush Medical College in its present location at Wood and Harrison Streets.

In 1887 Rush became the medical department of Lake Forest University, a relation which was dissolved by mutual consent in 1898. Immediately following, affiliation with the University of Chicago was established. In 1924 Rush Medical College became an integral part of the University of Chicago.

Established in affiliation with Rush in 1883, and adjoining, is Presbyterian Hospital, having its medical service supplied by the college faculty. The College added a laboratory building in 1887 and in 1903 Senn Hall was erected through the munificence of the late Professor Senn and other faculty members. Senn Hall and the adjoining building house the Central Free Dispensary, to which patients made 152,427 visits in 1931-32. The old clinical building has been replaced recently by the Rawson Laboratory Building, housing the medical library, faculty rooms, administration offices and other departments, in addition to laboratories, including the Norman Bridge Pathological Laboratory.

A comprehensive plan for establishing a complete course on the University Campus was definitely under way as early as 1917, when funds of over five millions were secured for the purpose. Construction was not begun until 1925, but progressed so rapidly that by 1931 the new University Medical Center on the Midway had four hospitals and the physiological group completed. The units in this group are built in Gothic Architecture to correspond with the other buildings of the University. First to be constructed, and outstanding in service and appointments, is the Billings Memorial Hospital.

The enlarged medical program of giving all four undergraduate years at The Quadrangles is now well under way.

By raising her standards early Rush has held an enviable position among medical schools from the first. In 1893, in common with other medical schools, a high school certificate was sufficient to admit an applicant to Rush Medical College, but from time to time the requirement has been increased: in 1904 it became two years of college, in 1923 three years of college and in 1926 a Bachelor's Degree with specified courses in sciences and languages became the minimum requirement for admission to the Medical Schools of the University of Chicago. In 1931, the requirement of a Bachelor's Degree was modified so that a student may enter the Medical Schools with approximately three years of college work, including specified premedical attainment in sciences and languages. In the pre-clinical years at the Quadrangles, the teaching is directed toward developing a truly scientific spirit, research being regarded as a useful pedagogic method, and it is a matter of pride that a large number of undergraduate students engage in original investigations while pursuing their regular medical studies.

A movement led by the late Frank Billings aims to affiliate with Cook County Hospital four of Chicago's medical schools, namely, those of the Universities of Chicago, Illinois, Northwestern and Loyola, thus creating a more closely knit system which will benefit all concerned. To accomplish this end, plans have been developed for a more closely organized staff, associate attending men and improved teaching facilities in Cook County Hospital which have enlisted the interest of faculties and students.

Shortly after the accession of Robert Hutchins to the presidency of the University of Chicago, its officials announced a new plan of undergraduate study to begin with classes entering in 1931. Briefly, the plan allows a student to proceed as rapidly or as slowly as he wishes, advancement in the college being contingent upon his passing comprehensive departmental examinations. This plan has been adopted in the medical school, and each pre-clinical student is now required to come up for both oral and written departmental examinations before he is admitted to the Junior Class, in addition to quarterly examinations in each subject.

THE CHAPTER

For our knowledge of the early days of Kappa we are indebted to Charter Member Philip Doane from whose interesting and complete story we are quoting as follows:

"The inception of Nu Sigma Nu at Rush Medical College occurred at a unique period in the history of that institution. In the autumn of 1892, the class of '95 entering Rush was composed of men of all ages and from all parts of the world. Pre-medical requirements being minimal and the course only three years, many men entered who had been in business and earned enough money to see themselves through the entire course including the support of growing families. Some came from farms; others had served as missionaries and wished to add medical practice to their accomplishments in that field.

But along with these came college graduates in increasing numbers, having learned the value of premedical training, often from their doctor fathers.

"With the advent of college trained men came more college spirit—a desire to continue college traditions. So it was not long before an all-star football team was organized with the beloved Professor of Rhinology and Laryngology, E. Fletcher Ingalls, furnishing the uniforms. The first team played two seasons, making an enviable record. Increase in the required work of the curriculum made it necessary to disband the team the following year, however.

"This class of '95 published a very successful annual, 'The Pulse,' which contained the history of Rush from the beginning besides most interesting biographies and portraits of its faculty. You should see Drs. Bevan, Dodson and others as they appeared at that time.

"In the fall of that first year a small group of men were banded together more or less for social purposes, with one outstanding student as their leader, Arthur Holbrook, a Harvard graduate, who was bubbling over with good spirits and fellowship. The dissecting room was then up under the roof of the main college building. At night with gas poorly illuminating the students' efforts, how cold that room could get! One night Holbrook courteously invited a reporter from the Chicago Tribune to get drunk and come up to see the men at work. He arrived duly, became noisy and abusive after being refused the names of the 'stiffs' on the tables. Before long he was shown the long winding stairway to the street; with various anatomical specimens in his pockets and a request to call soon again, he left, but never returned.

"On Saturday night Holbrook often led a little band of good spirits down to the big city for recreation, a favorite haunt being the old Izaria Inn, then located just west of the River on Randolph Street. It was a real German place, with sand on the floor, old oaken furniture, and real German beer served to patrons in steins. The food was German, and always serving this group was a big buxom German girl known as Anna. She spoke little English, but understood the wants of this small medical group, having served similar wild men in her native country. Certain customs soon developed in this 'Anna Club' and the visit to the old place became a happy Saturday night event.

"Groups from other medical colleges often came to the Izaria Inn, and it was not long before it was noticed that they were groups of fraternity men. At this time both the College of Physicians and Surgeons and Northwestern University had local chapters of Nu Sigma Nu. Why let them get ahead of Rush in anything? Upon consulting Dr. Will Walter we found that he had a similar idea. Accordingly official visitors were sent to Rush and the student body given an inspection. Overtures were made to the little group which was in the habit of visiting the Izaria Inn. They in turn petitioned for a charter which was received on March 3, 1893.

"On a cold rainy night they were invited to a dinner given in the Ashland Hotel, at the intersection of Ashland, Madison and Ogden Avenues. In the presence of representatives from the local chapters and officials from the parent chapter at Ann Arbor, Kappa Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu was established. The initiation was simple but impressive with great emphasis being placed upon the Hippocratic Oath. The men initiated that memorable night were: E. J. Senn, E. C. Ingalls, W. S. Downey, Arthur T. Holbrook, Philip S. Doane, Malcolm D. McNab, and Rolland Louis Parmeter. These seven men made up the charter members of Kappa Chapter.*

"At this time there existed at Rush a rival organization known as the 'Ananias Club', which later became Phi Rho Sigma. They became competitors in medical college life throughout the entire course.

"The little group forming Kappa Chapter immediately began the selection of Faculty members. Amongst that early group were: Professors James Nevins Hyde, James H. Etheridge, Nicholas Senn, Arthur Dean Bevan, Henry Baird Favill and John M. Dodson.

Outstanding among these was Dr. Dodson. He then lived on the west side not far from College. His advice and counsel were always freely given and his interest shown in many ways.

"There was no regular meeting place, or place of initiation, meetings being held in the various members' rooms; the old stamping ground at the Izaria Inn saw many a gay gathering, however.

*At the time of the writing of this history Senn is in Chicago, Holbrook in Milwaukee, Doane in Pasadena, Parmeter in Detroit, Ingalls died in 1906, Downey in 1915, McNab in 1918.

Bevan and Dodson were still on the Rush faculty in 1932. Dodson died in 1933. Etheridge died in 1899, Nicholas Senn in 1908, Hyde in 1910, Favill in 1916.

"The inception of new men was unhurried, great care being taken in their selection. One of the early initiates was Rudolph Holmes, whose father was then President of the College. Rudolph's initiation covered about a week of humiliating stunts, terminating in the hayloft of Dr. William Downey, the father of W. G. Downey, a charter member. The loft was well filled with hay while below there were four splendid horses together with the Doctor's buggies and a very fine brougham. Rudolph was blindfolded, tied hand and foot and placed in a large coffin. The lid was screwed in place, and symbolic red lights were started in various places in the loft. Somehow the hay caught afire. The poor victim lay innocent of his danger. Rolland Parmeter beat out the fire with his bare hands. Several others shoved, pulled and dragged the coffin to the precipitous stairway and down it went, bumping all the way to the floor below with Rudolph still encased. Somehow he was gotten out and put through the rest of the ritual in the regular way, while several members escorted Parmeter over to Dr. Dodson, who dressed his burns. That was a night in which Rudolph Holmes was himself delivered. He has believed in deliveries ever since, but they have not all been so rapid as that one!

"Initiations often took on most amusing aspects. The neighborhood of the College became accustomed to queer antics and liberties were taken with the public which would not be tolerated today. Besides Rudolph Holmes some of the men put through these various ordeals were: D. Edmund Smith, Paul A. Fox, F. A. Jefferson, H. F. Thompson, William H. McLain, W. D. McNary, E. B. McDowell, F. G. Connell, C. L. Hobbs, and Ezra R. Larned.

"As the Chapter grew the men became imbued with a spirit of study and work; generally Nu Sigma Nu men held their own in every class room. Help was given where needed and the fellow who didn't study was goaded on to do better work. The advice of faculty members was often sought and freely given. A large number of men whose names have been mentioned were assistants in various clinics before they graduated and afterwards became internes in the various hospitals in Chicago and elsewhere. This proves conclusively that they were influenced to perfect themselves in every possible way before starting in upon their life work.

"In looking back upon those first days of the chapter one realizes that Kappa was of the greatest benefit, and that his later career was made the better for having been a Nu Sigma Nu. As his life work begins to draw to a close he can but feel the sweetness of that past fellowship as well as be proud of having been a member of Kappa Chapter." (Doane).

After Rush Medical College became affiliated with the University of Chicago, the change necessitated (in 1901) a break in the chapter. Since that time, the first two years of the medical curriculum has been given at the University Campus on the south side and the last two years at the old Rush College at Wood and Harrison Streets. The chapter continued to function without particular inconvenience however, the freshmen and sophomore members transacting their own business and submitting affairs of interest to the whole chapter for the final decision of the junior and senior members. In spite of the fact that the two groups were unavoidably separated most of the time, Kappa continued to prosper, choosing from each class the men who promised to make not merely efficient but highly respected members of the medical profession, thus maintaining the standard of the chapter and the high character of its personnel. The active membership has usually been rather large, numbering thirty-six as early as 1911, forty-seven in 1913 and fifty-two in 1919. Due to the separation into two groups, it has not become unwieldy however.

Since 1920 the "South Side" men have had their own organization which is entirely subsidiary to that of the mother chapter at Rush Medical College. Each week a combination luncheon and meeting is held where fraternity business is discussed and where various alumni address the men on subjects of interest to beginning medical students. Representatives are sent to regular chapter meetings to report activities and to bear back reports from the main chapter. Executive committees from each unit meet at regular intervals and there is an official group meeting of the combined chapters once every quarter. This system has proven very successful in dealing with the unfortunate condition of a divided chapter. There is always one rushing committee acting at Rush and one at the University of Chicago where promising pre-medical students can be watched so that the brothers may know well those who may later be considered for membership.

Since the days of its energetic and enthusiastic charter members Kappa Chapter has done its best to maintain the highest ideals of Nu Sigma Nu. To maintain the standard of scholarship it was decided in 1916 to select as candidates for initiation only those who had creditably passed one quarter of full medical requirements. The regular initiation of freshmen is therefore not held until after the close of the winter quarter; that of men from other classes comes at other convenient times. At such functions an effort is made to get out all the "old boys," many of whom are eager and willing to participate, which adds greatly to the interest and success of these ceremonies.

The inter-chapter relations of the three Chicago chapters have always been most pleasant; initiation ceremonies of each bring together members of all three; Kappa feels that much is added to such occasions by the presence of the brothers from Zeta and Eta.

Beginning in 1929 the chapter adopted the plan of conducting initiations on a more elegant scale. The formal ceremonies held in the afternoon at a loop hotel are followed by an evening banquet to which all alumni in Chicago and vicinity are invited. One or more prominent speakers usually address this gathering, notable among whom have been James B. Herrick, Ludvig Hektoen, Carl B. Davis, Ernest E. Irons, Dallas B. Phemister, Frederick Adair, Esmond R. Long and Stuart Graves.

No regular home was maintained by Kappa Chapter during the first ten years of its existence. Initiations were usually held in down-town banquet halls, while meetings were held in houses where several of the members lived. But in January, 1903, the chapter had an opportunity to lease a beautiful and spacious residence at 230 Ashland Boulevard, only three blocks from the college. Faculty members and alumni generously helped to furnish this home so as to meet all needs for comfort and convenience. The records are silent on the matter until 1911, when the historian reports that the fraternity house is the same as has been occupied for the last three years, and that a renewal of lease for three years had been secured. This house accommodated twenty men and provided an attractive and comfortable chapter home both for residents and for the brothers who roomed outside. The plan of turning over the management of the house and the table to one of the members made for efficiency, an advance of ten dollars from each resident at the beginning of the year enabling him to buy for cash, keeping living costs at a low figure, and avoiding the experience of most fraternities, whose household debts are notorious. All bills were paid as presented; consequently the chapter never had any debts hanging over.

In 1913 a separate fund was established for the future furnishing of the house, the furnishings belonging to the chapter; to this fund all active members contributed each month. This plan proved more satisfactory than that previously pursued of acquiring such articles as needed and paying for them from the general treasury.

A new plan for placing the fraternity library on a progressively growing basis was begun in 1912, each member being required to contribute twenty-five cents a month, the fund being used to purchase books and other medical literature. The plan as proposed originally has worked admirably and the library has had a steady growth. Alumni have presented many volumes and monographs and other gifts have been forthcoming.

The 1923 historian informs us that, the Ashland Boulevard property having become inadequate for the needs of the chapter, an exceedingly comfortable and attractive home was secured at 3345 Washington Boulevard, a twenty-minute ride from the school. Although the surroundings were more pleasant away from school environs, the location did not prove practical in the long run. Because of the long car ride to and from classes, most of the men preferred to take rooms near the school and consequently were seldom seen at the house. Kappa was therefore faced with financial difficulties and gave up this house (near Garfield Park) at the end of the 1926 spring quarter, putting the furniture in storage. In the fall a satisfactory house was found at Jackson and Oakley, easily accessible to all west side men. Through special assessment of the actives, and alumni aid, sufficient funds were obtained to start the new year with a clean financial slate.

In 1929 the chapter deemed it advisable not to operate a house; the men who were not otherwise provided for resided at the Y. M. C. A., one block from the medical school. For financial reasons and because the fraternity plans to build in the vicinity of the University of Chicago, the above plan is being continued for the present. The members of the Rush Unit live on one floor of the Professional Schools' Y. M. C. A., regular meetings being held in the fraternity room provided there. The South Side Unit holds its regular meetings and dinners at the Commons on the University Campus. In the meantime a definite part of the chapter is set aside each quarter for the house fund which is in charge of Dean Ernest E. Irons.

In addition to the business functions which have brought Kappa men together, frequent entertainments and other pleasant features have been successfully promoted. When the chapter had a house, alumni and visiting brothers were invited to enjoy themselves on Saturday nights; in addition regular smokers and occasional informal dancing parties were a part of the social life. For many years an annual banquet was held for all Chicago Nu Sigma Nus which made a strictly chapter banquet uncalled for. In 1920, instead of a banquet, Kappa, Zeta and Eta held their first tri-chapter dance. So successful was this affair that it has become the great annual social event, bringing together all Nu Sigs within reach, whether active or alumni. In the absence of a chapter house since 1929, informal dances have been given occasionally at hotels, and stag dinners at the Y. M. C. A. and elsewhere are of frequent occurrence. The annual chapter formal is now held downtown some time during the fall. Thus Kappa is striving to maintain her social program while looking forward to a united chapter in a home of her own.

Kappa's wartime history is one of loyal sacrifice and patriotic service to her country. In the fall of 1918, with the exception of four, all active members were enlisted in the S. A. T. C. or the Army or Navy Medical Reserve Corps. No adequate account could be kept of the alumni in service, but however brief and incomplete the record, it must include a few outstanding men. Billings was in charge of the American Red Cross in Russia and later of reconstruction in this country; Bevan was made a member of the Legion of Honor for his services; Dodson, Hektoen, Herrick, Sippy, McLain, each rendered special service where needed; Dean Lewis commanded Base Hospital No. 13 and later an evacuation hospital at the front. Colonel Irons distinguished himself by service at Camp Custer. Kappa reports two casualties: E. W. Gilroy, '16, First Lieutenant, who died of pneumonia following influenza at Minneapolis in 1918 after honorable discharge from service; George P. Leggett, '19, Lieutenant Aviation Corps, who was killed when his plane fell after a mid-air collision.

Many were the stirring adventures related by returning brothers after the stressful days of the war. Of particular interest were those told to Rush students and alumni by Frank Billings and Dean Lewis of their over-seas experience, and of the wonderful spirit of the boys who served over there.

Kappa's scholastic attainments has often brought her distinction. Every year she has had a number of seniors elected to Alpha Omega Alpha; in 1929 ten Kappa men won this honor. In a single year, 1919, sixteen of her seniors were listed on the honor roll. Elections to Phi Beta Kappa and to Sigma Xi are frequently mentioned in the chapter news letters. Examinations for places as internes at Cook County, St. Luke's and other highly desirable hospitals, usually result favorably. That Kappa is not lagging at the present time we are assured by the 1932 historian, who writes: "Members of Kappa have been literally showered with scholastic honors this past year." The correctness of this statement is thoroughly verified by a list of the men to whom prizes and honors had come.

Kappa has made valuable contributions to the Councils of the General Fraternity; always with excellent delegations to conventions. She gave us Brother Irons who still is Executive Counsellor and whose advice and judgment have ever been invaluable. He was on the Grand Council from 1910-12 to 1922 inclusive. One of our four Merit Degree men came from Kappa's ranks in the person of Nicholas Senn, whose work in surgery was then commemorated.

LAMBDA

From a brochure and other publications of the University this brief history of the Medical School of Pennsylvania has been culled.

The bulletins of the chapter have been consistently helpful for the later years and acknowledgment is made to the historians.

Thanks are due one of the original group, Dr. J. S. Chaffee, for prompt and full response to the questionnaire and for his illuminating story of the early days. Alumnus J. W. McConnell, '90, has added his generous services to the chapter and to the fraternity by doing the final reading. For his corrections and additions the author is grateful.

THE SCHOOL

On September 25th, 1932, the 167th annual session of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine was opened.

This venerable institution, the oldest medical school in the United States, was founded in 1765 by John Morgan, who filled in it the first medical professorship created in the Colonies. In his opening "Discourse upon the Institution of Medical Schools in America", delivered in the College of Philadelphia, May 30, 1765, Dr. Morgan uttered these prophetic words: "Perhaps this medical institution, the first of its kind in America, though small in its beginning, may receive a constant increase of strength, and annually exert new vigor.—It may give birth to other useful institutions of a similar nature, or occasionally may rise, by its example, numerous societies of different kinds, calculated to spread the light of knowledge through the whole American continent, wherever inhabited."

Doctor Morgan, the pupil of Hunter in London and of Cullen in Edinburgh, was soon joined by another pupil of Cullen, William Shippen, as Professor of Anatomy and Surgery. In the next year Adam Kuhn was added as Professor of Botany and Materia Medica; and on June 21, 1768, a commencement was held at which medical honors were bestowed, the first in point of time in the Colonies. At this commencement the degree of Bachelor of Medicine was conferred upon ten graduates. In 1769 Benjamin Rush was elected to the Professorship of Chemistry.

The Medical School has been housed during the past century and a half in various buildings; the first, known as Anatomical or Surgeon's Hall, was located on Fifth Street above Walnut. Later, the University having purchased in 1802 the house erected for George Washington on Ninth Street, where the present United States Post Office is located, the Medical School occupied an addition to the building. This, in 1818, was rebuilt and considerably enlarged. In 1829 the "Presidential Mansion" was torn down and two buildings were erected—one for the College and the other for the Medical School. In 1873 the University moved to West Philadelphia; Logan Hall, which housed the medical department, was located on the south-east corner of Thirty-Sixth Street and Woodland Avenue. In 1904 the Medical School occupied the new buildings on Hamilton Walk adjoining the grounds of Blockley now known as the Philadelphia General Hospital. The Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania was opened for patients on July 15, 1874 on the south side of Spruce Street, between Thirty-Fourth and Thirty-Sixth Streets. It was the first of its kind to be built in this country for the use of a medical school.

Pennsylvania pioneered in other departments also: The Wistar Institute (1892) was the first American University Institute devoted to advanced study and research in Anatomy and Biology; the William Pepper Laboratory (1894) was the first clinical laboratory in a separate building of its own to be erected in this country; the Henry Phipps Tuberculosis Institute (1903) was the first fully organized and equipped institution of the kind with university connection. In 1909 the University of Pennsylvania originated the first graduate courses in Public Health leading to the degree of Dr. P. H., and the Laboratory of Hygiene was the first separate building erected for research and teaching on this subject. The Department of Research Medicine, the first university department of the kind instituted in this country in which the workers are expected to devote practically their entire time to research, was organized in 1910.

The buildings housing some of these departments have been superseded by more modern and efficient quarters, notably the Maloney Pavilion, erected in 1929, and furnishing quarters for the William Pepper Laboratory, the departments of research medicine and of biophysics, special diagnostic clinics, wards and private rooms. This building was contributed by Mr. Martin Maloney, Mr. Eldridge Johnson and other donors.

A great expansion took place in 1916, due in part to allowing greater enrollments in each class and in part to mergers, the importance of which are set forth in an excellent booklet entitled Medical Progress at the University of Pennsylvania, prepared in 1930. Quoting from the section on The Graduate School of Medicine:

"Until relatively recently it has been possible for a graduate in medicine to obtain additional training, but for the most part this has been in polyclinic systems of intensive courses of a few weeks or months. The obvious failure of this type of effort to meet advanced educational requirements was officially recognized in 1923 in the report to the American Medical Association of the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals.

"In 1916 and 1918 two independent medical institutions in Philadelphia gave up their corporate identity and merged with the University of Pennsylvania. These were the Medico-Chirurgical College and Hospital, founded in 1850 and 1882, and the Philadelphia Polyclinic and College for Graduates, founded in 1883. From these mergers originated the 'Medico-Chirurgical College Graduate School of Medicine in the University of Pennsylvania'. Since that time the University has acquired for incorporation into the Graduate School, the Diagnostic Hospital, formerly known as the Charity (1926), The Howard Hospital (1929), and the assets of the North American Sanitarium at Ventnor, New Jersey."

For organizing this great project credit is chiefly due Dr. George H. Meeker of the faculty, and "to him the trustees are indebted for formulating and putting into effect the plan of graduate instruction adopted in 1919; for the conspicuous success which its subsequent development has shown; and for the construction of the new Graduate Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, the clinical teaching center, completed in 1929." According to plans for future expansion, this great hospital is but a part of a much larger structure for which designs already exist and which will lead to a co-ordination of facilities believed to be unique in medical education.

The entrance requirement at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School at the time of Lambda's installation (1897) was by examination, except for those who had completed at least two years of a college course. In 1910 the minimum requirement became one year of college; in 1911 two years of college; in 1922 three years of college. In 1932 the bulletin advises that four years of college work is recommended though not required for admission to the medical school.

THE CHAPTER

DOCTOR CHAFFEE

The story of the installation of Lambda into Nu Sigma Nu and the events which led thereto, do not seem to have reached the publications of the general fraternity up to this time. The only story of those early days has come to us through the courtesy of one of the charter members, J. S. Chaffee, now of Sharon, Connecticut. We quote from his letter:

"The birth of Lambda Chapter took place so long ago that the child is now grown and has been of voting age for some years.

"A group, including George Colby, Theodore Senseman, Jack Deal, Harry Hurst, Clarence Remaly, Dan Spencer, Jim May and myself, had formed a local fraternity, which we called A. T. E. H. Stowe Garlick, a graduate student, who became acquainted with the crowd, told us we would get more out of our organization if we applied to Nu Sigma Nu for a charter. This we did, Jim May deciding not to go in, but Clarence Casselberry, Joe Buxton and Clarence Gay, were added. The first meetings were held in a lodge room in West Philadelphia hired for the purpose.

"We had fine, well attended meetings and were a hard working crowd. Later, we were joined by faculty members J. D. Steele and M. H. Fussell. Of that original group, according to the records, George Colby is practicing in New York; Senseman is a successful surgeon in Atlantic City; Jack Deal is practicing in Philadelphia; Remaly is in Los Angeles, California; Spencer did not graduate; Casselberry is a specialist in Boston; Joe Buxton is a successful surgeon at Newport News, Virginia; Clarence Gay is practicing in Fitchburgh, Massachusetts. Hurst is dead.

"The writer entered the Navy at the outbreak of the Spanish War and was with Dewey in the Philippines. After that he entered the Army and graduated from the United States Army Medical School in 1901, where he had the pleasure of being under the personal teaching of Reed and Carroll. He resigned from the Army in 1903 to settle in Sharon, Connecticut, where he has helped to build a hospital, engaged in general practice which is over sixty per cent surgery.

"The installation of the chapter took place in the above mentioned lodge in West Philadelphia, on March 14, 1896. J. F. Hasbrouck of Iota was the installing officer, Stowe Garlick, Theta Alumnus now deceased, assisting him. The ceremony was followed by a banquet and a happy time.

"My class, 1897, was the first four year class to be graduated at the University. The college year began in October and lasted until early in June. One of my classmates, Dr. William Pepper, is now Dean of the Medical School and his father was Provost of the University when I was a student.

"Pennsylvania was a power in football and baseball in those days. We saw many interesting games and many of my classmates were active participants on the varsity teams.

"I think there were two other medical fraternities and we had keen competition in getting good men for the chapter.

"The Grand Council meeting was held with our chapter in 1897 at the time of the American Medical Association meeting. We had a grand party, a fine banquet, and had the privilege of meeting all the old war horses of Nu Sigma Nu. I remember especially Drs. Will Walter and Irwin of Alpha, Lawrence Shields of Theta and Hasbrouck of Iota. I remember being elected Grand Hr. at that meeting. At the next convention I was put down as having died in the Philippines, which must have been a mistake.

"The fraternity has always meant a good deal to me and I have been very proud of the progress and fine standing of the Lambda Chapter."

The graduating class of 1899 left Lambda with only six active members: Duryee, Hosmer, Howard, Kelly, McCloskey and McCombs, who were assisted by three graduate members: Deal, Craig and Mitchell.

To entertain and size up new men, numerous smokers were held in the dormitory apartment of Richmond, one of the '99 fall initiates.

Twelve men were initiated during this school year, and only two lost by graduation. In the fall of 1900 the old society rooms at 3740 Market Street were re-engaged after a vain search had been made for better quarters.

Instead of holding several small smokers in private rooms, the chapter decided to hold two large affairs yearly at down town hotels, an arrangement which proved successful.

Meetings continued to be held in the original chapter hall on Market Street until November 1901, when new rooms were obtained in Odd Fellows Hall.

The first record of a chapter house is found in the 1903 Bulletin, which tells us that in the fall of 1902 the chapter secured a house directly across from the dormitories, 3709 Woodland Avenue. Here a chapter dining room was established and an almost instantaneous change in spirit was noticed.

In March of 1903, arrangements were being made for the grand coup d'état, which proved to be the event of the chapter's early history. The faculty club of the university had a splendidly equipped four-story house on the northwest corner of Thirty-Sixth and Locust Streets, the finest location possible, overlooking the campus and the main buildings, including the Medical school. The disbanding of this club proved Lambda's opportunity. The house was the bone of contention among several fraternities, but by the conscientious work of the whole chapter the house was secured and all the furniture bought outright from the faculty club.

Almost from the very beginning and for many years Nu Sigma Nu held the distinction of being the only medical fraternity at the University of Pennsylvania to have a house, and this was one of which all felt proud. When in 1920 the D K E fraternity decided to build its own house at 3601 and 3603 Locust Street, which she had leased since 1903 and which to so many alumni was associated with fond memories of old Penn. With a sense of regret not untouched by sentiment, this home was vacated and a temporary one taken at 3329 Walnut Street; a committee being meanwhile appointed to take the initial steps toward acquiring a self-owned house for the chapter.

With the opening of school in 1920 Lambda chapter celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary. It is significant that, coincident with this event, a group of alumni met to consider the formation of an Alumni Association with the object of promoting closer contact between alumni and actives, and immediately to help in procuring a home for the chapter. The conference resulted in a permanent organization which was launched under the able leadership of J. W. McConnell ('90) as its president, assisted by five other directors: William Bates, Phillip Williams, John Arnett, T. G. Miller and Charles S. Potts. In 1922 the association secured and retained title to a large well-built house at 3904 Spruce Street. The chapter has itself added to the furnishings from year to year, and to Brother John Hedges, '01, Lambda, feels greatly indebted, not only for his generous gifts of furniture and pictures, but for his personal interest: by entertaining the men in his own home he did much to create a home atmosphere in the social life of the chapter. According to Hugh Thompson, Lambda '16, "at all times the faculty members of the chapter have shown their interest and given their support toward the local chapter. Such men as McConnell, Miller, Lodholz and Potts gave freely of their advice and time during rushing season and in matters pertaining to the new house. The chapter members have stood consistently around forty, representing ten men from each class." The chapter rented the house from the Alumni, whose efforts and loyalty had made the new house a reality.

The third mortgage of $5,000 was reduced by $1,000 in 1922, with another $500 paid early in 1923. A campaign among the alumni to meet obligations put the house finances on a stable basis and, with the yearly rental paid by the chapter reducing the indebtedness gradually, the original plan of discharging the debt by 1940 was so much bettered that the mortgages have been paid for in advance of the time set, a fortunate occurrence made possible through the ceaseless efforts particularly of Brothers McConnell, Potts, Miller, Arnett, Bates, Williams and Fay. The house was placed under the nominal ownership of the University in 1928, which effected a considerable saving to the chapter in the way of taxes, fuel and repairs, the moneys thus realized providing funds for needed furnishings and replacements.

Quality has been Lambda's standard in upholding her strength and reputation. Rigid entrance requirements have brought Pennsylvania a well-developed set of men to her entering class. Phillip Williams, Lambda '09, writes that during his active membership but one man left school or failed to advance in four years of neophytes. One may infer that rigorous discipline played a part in promoting good results since Williams names Harvey Howard, '09, as one of the chapter's presiding officers and adds, "this is what trained Spike Howard to handle Chinese bandits."

In Williams' period an event of interest was the "organization of the undergraduate Medical Association, founded by John G. Clark, patterned upon the A. M. A. with the various medical societies of the University as component parts, with delegates, committees and an annual meeting where student papers of note were presented. C. R. Steinke, Lambda '09, was the second president."

As early as 1912 the majority of men entering medical school were college graduates. For exceptionally good work Lambda seniors have regularly received the most coveted hospital appointments, in addition to being well represented in Honor Societies and on the faculty. In 1916 the Honor Roll listed all of Lambda's seniors, all of whom were awarded "the cream of appointments in local hospitals, three by competitive examinations and five based on scholastic standing."

Succeeding Bulletin letters mention similar splendid attainments by Lambda fellows. Characterizing the spirit of his fraternity, Hugh Thompson, Lambda '16, says, "Fraternity life has been maintained and enjoyed as in other fraternities, except that we have felt that it was less of a social organization and more of a group to promote better learning and the advancement of knowledge. Lambda chapter has moved forward, always in the spirit of progressiveness."

Rho chapter of Jefferson was installed on March 15, 1900, officers of Lambda officiating. Two days later the annual banquet was made a joint affair. When in 1911 Rho with her alumni joined Lambda at her annual banquet the result was a "brilliant success".

The Eighteenth Convention was held in Philadelphia in 1914, Rho and Lambda being joint hosts. Quoting Hugh Thompson: "Among the social events of each year has been the joint banquet held with Rho Chapter at Jefferson at which the men of the two chapters learned to know each other better and to foster a better inter-city feeling. This was discontinued during the period of the war but has since been resumed."

The war period affected least the number of students but depleted seriously the faculty, especially the pathological and surgical staffs. The Medico-Chirurgical Hospital and the newly completed Surgical Pavilion were turned over to the government. The University of Pennsylvania Base Hospital Unit No. 20 was mobilized and left for France in November 1918. The fact that Pennsylvania was designated as one of the Military Surgery Training Schools for the Medical Reserve Officers with a new group every six weeks gave Lambda better opportunity to meet and greet alumni from many sister chapters, and the experience was most enjoyable.

At the Nu Sigma Nu Convention in 1902, James Tyson, Penn '63, Lambda '02, was elected honorary president of the fraternity, much to the gratification of Lambda. Dr. Tyson resigned from the chair of medicine in 1911 after having served for thirty-nine years. He died in 1919. James W. McConnell, Penn '90, was honored by election to the Honorary Council in 1926-28. Other alumni have served on the Councils of the fraternity in other capacities, namely: J. S. Chaffee, serving '97-'99; M. H. Fussell, '99-'02; B. Witt Key, '16-'19; and F. A. Davis (now affiliated with Beta Omicron), who has served continuously since 1922 and with distinction. Davis was Council President in 1924 and will be retired from the Council in 1934.

In his final check on Lambda's story Dr. James W. McConnell pays the following tribute to deceased Brother Potts which we are pleased to add verbatim.

"If I were writing the history of Lambda Chapter I would be unable to write it well until I had paid tribute to Dr. Charles S. Potts, than whom there was no one more interested in the fraternity or in the comfort and happiness of the members of Lambda Chapter. Rarely was he absent from any event to which the faculty members were invited and from the standpoint of help, in the form of verbal advice, financial assistance, medical aid or some other type of kindness that would bring about the consummation of some undergraduate's desire, he was head and shoulders above everyone else.

"His death, on February 16, 1930, was a great loss to Lambda Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu. There are today several distinguished members of the medical profession whose undergraduate careers were made possible by this man's assistance. There are a few whose very existences were dependent on his friendly behavior. The young man was his hobby, the successful physician his delight. Constantly he preached the gospel of general practice as a means of approach to a specialty and as frequently he denounced the assumption of specialism by the recent graduate. He was widely read and possessed of the ability to transmit knowledge to students. He loved life but was temperate in all things. He lived a bachelor's existence but enjoyed associating with his married friends and their families."

DEAN HEFFRON

For the information on the school the committee has abstracted from the writings of Brother John L. Heffron, former Dean of the College. (Dr. Heffron died September 28, 1924.)

"The agitation which resulted in the moving of the Geneva Medical College to Syracuse in 1834, began as soon as it became certain that there would be a University in Syracuse. So, in 1933 we celebrate the sixty-third anniversary of our College of Medicine, the ninety-ninth anniversary of the Medical Institution of the Geneva Medical College, our true parent, and if we contend that the relationship is legitimate, we celebrate at the same time the 123rd anniversary of the opening of the 'College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Western District of New York', at Fairfield.

"In reading the records of the past, it becomes evident that the initiative of these three schools came in each instance from the trustees of an institution for higher learning already established. Thus, the Fairfield Academy was established in 1802. It was Fairfield Academy that inaugurated a course in Medicine in 1809 and 1810, which was brought to the attention of the Legislature so favorably by the Trustees that a grant of $5,000 was made to help develop it, and when in 1812 a charter was granted recognizing this as the second medical college in New York State and the sixth in the United States, a grant to it of $10,000 more was made by the Legislature.

"In 1834 the Medical Institution of Geneva was chartered. This school grew at the expense of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Fairfield, which was forced to close its doors in 1839-40. This was due to the change of interest from the older school to the newer of Bishop Hobart and the Episcopal Church, also to the formation of the Albany Medical College about that time. Also several of the faculty from Fairfield joined the new school. It is upon the latter two points that our relationship to Fairfield is based.

"In the year 1869 the intention of establishing a University in Syracuse became a subject of general interest in Central New York. The movement was carried through to completion rapidly so that the charter of Syracuse University was granted March 25, 1870. In the spring of the following year a proposition was made by a group of teachers in the Geneva Medical College to some of the trustees of Syracuse University to transfer a Medical School here, and they offered their services and to secure the museum and library of the Geneva Medical College as the foundation of its equipment. This offer was accepted and in the fall of 1872 the 'College of Physicians and Surgeons of Syracuse University' began its first session. It was the first to establish a medical school on modern pedagogical lines in this state and none followed it for many years to come, clinging, as they did, to the old system of an annually repeated course of lectures. It was the third school in the whole United States to take such a stand; those preceding were the Chicago Medical College, which eventually became the Medical Department of Northwestern University, and Harvard.

"This new school was organized as one of the Departments of the Syracuse University. The regular course of study covered a period of three years.

"Such was the beginning of our College. However, the high standard set by our earliest faculty has never been lowered."

The regular medical course was extended to four years in 1896. The requirement for education preliminary to the study of medicine in successive years was raised until in 1909 one year, and in 1910 two years, of a recognized course in a registered College of Liberal Arts or in a school of science of a collegiate grade were required of every matriculant, a demand which the Regents of the State University deferred until 1919. The superiority of the laboratory method of teaching the sciences fundamental to medicine was recognized, and as rapidly as funds for equipment of material and men were available each laboratory was put under a full-time, paid corps of teachers, so that all these sciences have been so taught from an early date. The laboratory method of instruction in clinical medicine and surgery and in the specialties followed as a matter of course.

In 1914 the building for the Syracuse Free Dispensary was erected adjoining the Medical College, and one year later the University assumed ownership of the Good Shepherd Hospital. In 1926 plans were developed for a new medical college to be a corner-stone for a medical center in Syracuse. Progress at the new medical center continued with the erection of a Communicable Disease Hospital by the city of Syracuse, and the completion of a drive for two and one-half million dollars by the Syracuse Memorial Hospital for a 250 bed hospital and nurses' home. The latter was completed in 1928-29 and within the following year the former and the State Psychopathic Hospital were opened. Lack of funds has delayed the building of the new medical college but it is hoped that these plans may soon be fulfilled.

In affiliation with the Medical School for clinical teaching are: University, St. Joseph's, Memorial, Psychopathic and City Communicable Disease Hospitals, the Free Dispensary, Departments of Health and Education of Syracuse, Onondaga County Tuberculosis Sanatorium and the County Morgue.

THE CHAPTER

The College of Medicine, Syracuse University, saw its first fraternal organization in 1894, when in December eight of the most representative men of the college formed the Alpha Society. As near as can be ascertained at this time, these men were Stranahan, Haviland, Lucid, Flaherty, Parker, Hallagher, Reid and Larkin.

At first Alpha Society was organized as an eating club which met in a house between Fayette Street and Railroad Street (now Washington Street) on Grape Street (now Townsend Street).

In 1895 the Alpha Society became a purely social organization and took rooms in the Opera House block, which stood at the present site of the Hills Building.

The new society flourished and gained strength; and soon desire for membership in a national organization resulted in application for a charter from Nu Sigma Nu. At the time of the application for charter William B. Reid was President of the Alpha Society and Michael M. Lucid was Vice-President of the Society and President of the senior class. It was largely through their efforts and those composing the committee of which Brother Flaherty was chairman, that the charter was granted and on April 18, 1896, in the Bastable Building, the Alpha Society became Mu Chapter, one of Nu Sigma Nu's most loyal and active chapters. An Iota Alumnus, Carl A. Huber of Rochester, conducted the installation ceremonies followed by a banquet.

The following fellows of the class of '96 were the true charter members: George B. Broad, W. Henry Coe, Frederick H. Flaherty, Charles C. Gallagher, C. Floyd Haviland, Theodore J. Kuffer, Michael M. Lucid, M. W. 2, William B. Reid, M. W. 1, John O. Stranahan; but, due to the fact that the charter was not received in Syracuse for signature until February 8, 1897, after this class had been dispersed, the following men are recorded as charter members: 1897—Charles N. Blum, Robert Burns, Albert E. Larkin, Frederick W. Van Lengen, William L. Wallace. Other members of this class who did not sign the charter are Mark Heiman and Edward S. Van Duyn. 1898—Clarence E. Coon, Norman W. Foster, Charles W. Lanning, John D. Shipman. Other members who did not sign the charter are Harry E. Cook, Frederick S. Honsinger, Charles A. Mack, Robert H. Pierson, Arthur E. Strong. 1899—Howard F. Clark, John W. Plant. Other signers whose classes are unknown are Eugene Murray, dead, and George H. White, whereabouts unknown.*

Thus when Mu was launched it had the valuable association of prominent faculty men transferred from the Alpha Society, namely, Elsner, Heffron, Jacobson, Mercer and Van Duyn. Four more faculty men initiated shortly, Drs. Gaylord, Clark, Halsted, Miller and Totman, constituted a most valuable addition to Mu.

Increasing entrance requirements in 1897 resulted in reduced enrollment at Syracuse temporarily, and hence in the chapter. We hear in 1901 of additional scholarship activity and in 1905 the requirement was raised to forty-eight academic credits, resulting again in reduced enrollment for a year or two, but Mu chapter strove to keep abreast of the higher standards, having always held scholarship a matter of prime importance.

The historian of 1901 observes: "Of the fourteen men of the faculty proper, nine are Nu Sigma Nu, a fact which shows the high standard of Mu Chapter." In addition at this time, eleven of the junior faculty were Nu Sigma Nu, and the active chapter numbered twenty-five.

In this same year, 1901, we find the chapter changing from the Grand Opera House block to 400 East Genessee Street. Here a few of the boys lived and the chapter had its headquarters.

In 1903 the Syracuse Academy of Medicine rooms were secured for the weekly chapter meetings, which were usually addressed by an alumnus and proved interesting and instructive. As the chapter grew in strength and number, the meetings offered more varied programs. Frequently two papers, addresses or demonstrations, were prepared and presented by active members. In 1906 the chapter was housed temporarily in the house at the Northwest corner of Irving Avenue and Wellington Place for one year, the school year 1907, when the chapter moved to a rented house at 421 South Crouse Avenue.

*One of the early revisions of the constitution of Nu Sigma Nu made provision for the absorption of local fraternities by the terms of which the men of the initial group were classed as charter members; but any fellow of the absorbed fraternity could later be enrolled without formal initiation by merely taking oath. Brothers White and Murray were '97 and '98 men respectively, being among the sixteen chapter members beginning with Wallace and ending with Edward Van Duyn. As may be seen in the biographic section of Mu Chapter, most of the "Alpha Society" men later took the oath and became fellows of Nu Sigma Nu, but Dr. Theodore Kuffer above named did not, according to the early records, take the oath. (Ed.)

In the year prior to moving, the chapter had the honor of entertaining the fourteenth National Convention of Nu Sigma Nu, an event long and pleasantly remembered.

Throughout this period, with alumni support, the Chapter House Fund was growing. In 1911 the Central New York Alumni Association of Nu Sigma Nu was legally incorporated, its object being to bring loyal alumni into closer contact with under-graduates and to make possible eventually a new chapter house.

When in the spring of 1912 the lease on the house at 421 South Crouse Avenue expired, it was generally felt that it would be not only more satisfactory but also better economy to buy a house or to build one, and it was not long before the loyal cooperation of the newly formed Alumni Association afforded assurance that the project could be carried out as far as the financial end was concerned. A committee of the Alumni Association composed of Drs. T. H. Halsted, Nathan Jacobson, Henry Stiles, W. D. Alsever, A. S. Hotaling, and A. E. Larkin, with Lawrence Sisson acting for the active chapter, considered available houses and building sites, resulting in arrangements by which the Alumni Association bought for $14,500.00 the house of Dr. W. L. Wallace, the first man on Mu's chapter roll, at 1000 East Genessee Street. A considerable sum of the purchase price was raised by subscription, principally from the alumni of the city and a few who, though away, have maintained an interest in the Chapter. The balance of the purchase price was taken care of by a first and second mortgage.

The title to the house was taken and is still held by the Alumni Association, the active chapter paying monthly rental sufficient to cover interest, taxes, necessary repairs and a sinking fund to be applied on the debt.

In 1916 additional sleeping space was produced by the construction of a dormitory on the third floor which provides adequate space even to the present day.

The interfraternity scholastic records at Syracuse for 1915 showed Mu at the top of the list, a record which has been emulated, and often successfully, ever since. Special care has always been used in choosing men, both for personality and scholastic ability. The number of Nu Sigma Nu graduates appointed to the faculty bears witness to the continued high rating of the chapter.

War time had a chaotic effect on student activities, but with shedding of uniforms the men returned to seek and find further scholastic honors. Mu's service flag bears 66 stars, whose names are inscribed on a suitable memorial table in the Chapter house, of these three are of the "Wartime Chapter Eternal", namely:

Captain Charles H. Gallagher, '96 of Ithaca, one of our most active alumni, was gassed in action and subsequently died of pneumonia in France, September 1918.

Lieutenant E. Leland Mooney, '17, enlisted prior to graduation in June 1917 and upon graduation was immediately assigned for active duty overseas. He was killed in action April 1918 while serving with the British.

Lieutenant Harold Porter, '18, U. S. N., was one of five of the delegation of 1918 who accepted commissions. He was stationed at Naval Hospital, Chelsea, Massachusetts, and died of influenza contracted while attending his patients in July 1918. Carrying out the wishes of the lately deceased brother, Cornell N. Smith, '05, the chapter is now in possession of his medical library of over 200 volumes, which is greatly appreciated by all as a valuable aid to reference work.

Four traditional social functions have been recognized in the past, the Alumni Smoker in the fall, the Christmas Party, the Initiation Banquet at which time new members are introduced to the Alumni Association and our Chapter Reunion is held, and the Spring Formal Dance.

The Field Day which was so popular at one time has been recently abandoned, and in spite of feverish activity on the part of the chapter this year, appears to have outgrown itself. The other social functions including more frequent informal smokers, have taken its place.

Talent from the chapter helps entertain at social functions and adds interest of a personal nature to the gatherings.

In addition to the regular social events above described, Chapter House dances have been given at irregular intervals both in and out of the house.

Mu has had active representation on the Councils of the Fraternity; Stuart Graves, '11, now GG and former GAe, having served in various capacities since 1912, and Leon Cornwall, '10, having been GAe and now re-elected. Both have served with distinction. Their preparation for work on the Council was gained by their work as undergraduates in Chapter. Graves was a prime mover in securing the first comfortable chapter house on Crouse Avenue and in organizing the rushing system. Both served as president of their chapter and Graves was undergraduate delegate to the Toronto and Cleveland conventions.

Mu's residence at 1000 Genessee Street is open from the last week in September to the middle of June, and her latch-string is always out.

NU

The history of Nu has been excerpted from earlier Nu Sigma Nu publications and the Journal of the American Medical Association and school bulletins, supplemented by our own recollections and the more recent reports of co-editor, Galen Graves, and has finally been read by Charter Member Palette who was a leader in the movement which lead originally to the institution of the first chapter and was largely instrumental in its recent re-establishment. A difficult situation was skillfully handled by Galen Graves, whose sympathy and interest in the chapter were judiciously tempered with his conservative protection of the interests of the fraternity. His faith and foresight led eventually to a happy termination. As he wrote in his report: "With the restitution on December 15, 1933, of the Nu charter, suspended on November 22, 1909, and with the installation of the Nu Sigma Nu Pledges on January 5, 1934, every chapter ever founded by Nu Sigma Nu in a school still existing is flourishing."

We rejoice that the unexpected delay in the issue of this historic volume has made possible the inclusion of Nu's complete history.

THE SCHOOL

This school was first organized in 1885 as the University of Southern California School of Medicine, which is the name it now bears. The first class was graduated in 1888. Twenty-one years later (1908) the school became the Medical Department of the University of California in Los Angeles, at which time that University felt that it could support two medical schools, one for the San Francisco region and another in Los Angeles for Southern California. In 1909 the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which had been established in 1904, became the Medical Department of the University of Southern California. This school suspended its activities in 1920 because of lack of sufficient financial support. In the July 14, 1928, number of The Journal of the American Medical Association the following announcement of the reopening of this medical school was made:

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

(2) Los Angeles County General Hospital.

(1) Medical Sciences Building.

The University of Southern California is opening a medical school, which will receive students this fall for the first preclinical year of the medical course. An additional year's work will be added each year until 1931, when the full four-year course will be offered. The school will meet Class A requirements. There are on the campus laboratories, libraries and equipment available for medical students, and a unit to house the biologic sciences is being erected. The university has set aside an endowment for the school, to enable it to start the course this fall; $100,000 additional endowment must be obtained each year for the next five years to provide for expansion. The university has organized an advisory committee of Los Angeles physicians which it consults in all matters relating to the medical school; the executive committee was selected by the Los Angeles County Medical Association and the medical alumni of the university, and to them will be submitted the credentials for the new dean and prospective staff of the school. Full-time professors will be needed in each of the basic departments; other members of the staff will be added as the need arises. The university will accept offers from Los Angeles institutions to provide the facilities of a teaching hospital. The executive Committee comprises Drs. Edward M. Palette, president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association; Wayland A. Morrison, chairman educational committee of the medical society; Wesley W. Beckett, chairman, educational committee, University of Southern California Medical Alumni Association, and Joseph M. King and Ernest A. Bryant.*

The school opened according to schedule on September 17, 1928, with an entering class of fifty-four, so that the fourth year of the course was begun in September of 1932. The pre-medical requirement is now fixed at three years of collegiate work and a fifth year of internship is required for graduation. The school is co-educational, as it has been since its organization. In the session of 1932-33 its faculty consisted of 185, including 121 professors, and its registration numbered 164, including seven graduates.

In the new $13,000,000 Los Angeles County General Hospital the school has ample facilities for clinical teaching. This great institution now cares annually for about 30,000 bed patients and receives approximately 400,000 visits each year in its Out-patient Department. The school also has teaching facilities in the Children's Hospital of 250 beds and an out-patient service of about 32,000 visits annually.

From the preceding it is evident that something unique in medical education is being accomplished; namely, the operation of a medical school in a great metropolis (population 1,238,048; physicians, 3,126) with the cooperation and consultative supervision of the organized medical profession. The situation offers possibilities of far reaching development in graduate medical instruction as well as undergraduate; the experiment will be watched with interest.

THE CHAPTER

The earliest published record of Nu is from the pen of Charter Member Palette in "Nu Sigma Nu in 1899" and describes the events leading to and the installation of this, the first chapter of a Greek letter medical fraternity on the Pacific coast. In part that report follows:

It was during the fall of 1895 that several students at the College of Medicine of the University of Southern California, who had been members of (college) fraternities in Eastern colleges and appreciated the value of such organizations, planned the formation of a similar society, with the purpose of procuring a charter from a Greek letter medical fraternity if possible. The preeminent standing of Nu Sigma Nu was known, and it was decided to petition for a charter from that fraternity.

About the middle of the college year, when the movement was well under way, two members of Nu Sigma Nu, J. G. McLeod of Beta and Harris of Alpha, entered college. Both these men enthusiastically approved of the plan, and it was largely due to their efforts in its behalf that the charter was granted.

The chapter was installed in the Amphitheater of the Los Angeles County Hospital, by J. G. McLeod, on the afternoon of June 1, 1896. The new chapter enjoyed a banquet the evening of its installation, and formally announced its existence by occupying a box decorated in the fraternity colors at the Los Angeles Theater at the college Commencement exercises on the evening of June 3.

The charter, as its reproduction a few pages back shows, bears the following names: C. Lee Caven, Raymond G. Taylor, Verne R. Day, Wilder Dwight, E. J. Cook, John C. Ferbert, E. M. Lazard, Frank L. O'Neill, Frank B. Steele, E. M. Palette, J. G. McLeod.*

At last accounts Cook, Lazard, Palette, Day, Taylor and Bullard are in Los Angeles; Rogers in Bakersfield, California. Steele left before graduation, joined Eta Chapter and is with the Veterans Administration Facility in the Bronx. Murphy, O'Neill, Ferbert, Dwight, Caven, Babcock and Ellis have joined Omega.

Nu flourished for a few years, but in 1907 coming events cast their shadows. Students saw them and began transferring to other schools. In 1909 the medical faculty transferred the medical school property to the University of California and on

*On August 7, 1934, Charter Member Palette writes: "The charter members were all initiated June 1, 1896. I think the date of May 22, 1896, (shown in the biographic records published in 'Nu Sigma Nu in 1907') must be the date the Grand Chapter notified them the charter was granted. Dr. Murphy was the only faculty member included in the charter list. This was because he was a younger man very friendly with the students and a graduate of our school. The other faculty members were initiated in the fall after school opened. I think the date was November 7, 1896. No charter group picture was ever taken. I think the earliest group is that published in 'Nu Sigma Nu in 1899'."

According to the old records the first seven men actually initiated on May 22, 1896, were Murphy, '91, O'Neill, '97, Cook, '97, Lazard, '97, Rogers, '97, Dr. William Davidson Babcock (M.D., Evansville, '78, Professor of Diseases of the Ear, Nose and Throat) and Dr. Frank D. Bullard (M.D., Southern California, '88, Professor of Chemistry), with Frank Belle Steele (who transferred to Illinois, affiliated with Eta and was graduated in '99). The next group, initiated ten days later, June 1, 1896, included Edward M. Palette, '98, Robert Verne Day, '97, John C. Ferbert, '97, Wilder Dwight, '96, and Raymond Griswold Taylor, '96. On November 7, 1896, Dr. H. Bert Ellis (M.D., So. Calif., '88, Professor of Ophthalmology) was admitted, followed on December 14, 1896, by Melville LeRoy Loomis, '96, then an interne in the Los Angeles County Hospital, Frank Stimson Dillingham, and John Hamilton Spence. That completed initiations for the first year. The following year thirteen were added, including Dr. Henry G. Brainerd, Rush, '78, Dean and Professor of Diseases of the Ear, Nose and Throat, and Dr. Melvin L. Moore, Rush, '80, Professor of Obstetrics.

November 22, 1909, the Executive Council suspended Nu because of unfavorable conditions in the school. The charter was entrusted to a committee of three alumni, Dr. Leon Joseph Roth, Nu, '97, of Los Angeles, and Dr. A. Stanley Granger, Nu-Kappa, '09, and Dr. Harvey Lasher Thorpe, Nu-Rush, '09, who had transferred two years previously to Rush and were returning to Los Angeles. In their hands the charter was safely preserved until Nu was re-established and it now hangs in the chapter house.

From this point on the tale is best told in the report of Galen Graves on the re-establishment of Nu, as published in the 1934 Bulletin. That report in its essential portions is herewith reproduced, liberal space being allowed because it reveals the close and sympathetic supervision kept by the Grand Galen's office over the growing fraternity.

(From the 1934 Bulletin)

The forging of a new golden link for old Nu in the School of Medicine of the University of Southern California makes complete the strong chain of chapters of Nu Sigma Nu, binding the Atlantic and the Pacific, Canada and the Gulf.

With the restitution on December 15, 1933, of the charter suspended on November 22, 1909, and with the installation on January 5, 1934, of the NU SIGMA NU PLEDGES, a local society started as the ELEVEN CLUB in the fall of 1928, every chapter ever founded by Nu Sigma Nu in a school still existing is flourishing.

No other medical fraternity in America can approach this record. The present thirty-nine chapters are in schools of high rank. The constitution forbids the establishment of a chapter in a two-year school.

With the rumors in 1927 of the possible re-establishment of the School in Los Angeles the Executive Council became alert to the possibilities. On August 7, 1928, the Executive Council secretary enjoyed lunch in Los Angeles with Dr. Edward M. Pallette, Nu (Southern California), '98; Dr. Marcus E. Crahan, Mu (Syracuse), '25; Dr. Kenneth S. Davis, Beta Epsilon (Nebraska), '18; Dr. Thomas Chalmers Myers, Nu, '00; Dr. E. Vincent Askey, Lambda (Pennsylvania), '25; and Dr. A. D. Weiser, Zeta (Northwestern), '25. It was agreed that the alumni should alertly watch and wait and the Secretary expressed confidence that the Executive Council and probably the Grand Council would favor re-establishment of Nu if and when the future of a satisfactory four-year school was assured and a satisfactory group of petitioners should be endorsed and aided by the alumni, especially those of the other Pacific Coast chapters. On January 31, 1929, Dr. Pallette wrote:

The new Medical school is starting off very nicely. They have a fine Freshman class of fifty-four, chosen from over two hundred applicants. I am told that they would line up well with any Freshman Medical class in the country. The profession and others are getting behind the school in a cordial and substantial way, and I am sure that we are going to have, not only a school, but a very good school.

Two groups were formed among the students last fall, one to petition —, the other to petition Nu Sigma Nu. This last group of sixteen, I believe, seemed to have the pick of the class.

We have kept in touch with them and are going to have them down to dinner at the University Club, Friday, February 8th.

They have been rushed a whole lot, however, by alumni of other groups, especially — and —, both of which had chapters in the old school, until it closed ten years ago. These men are offering the boys immediate action in the way of granting a charter and getting pins on them. We have not been able to give them a great deal of encouragement along that line.

However I wonder, since it is merely a renewal of an old chapter, if we could not get some quick action. As you know we have a strong alumni here who would be interested in a chapter, and I am sure there is no doubt about the school making a go of it.

For that dinner the Secretary sent a night letter on February 7 as follows:

Dr. Edward M. Pallette
1930 Wilshire Boulevard
Los Angeles, California.

Executive Council sends greetings to alumni and local society. There is no doubt of granting of charter whenever Southern California becomes four-year school and petition from local society is endorsed by local alumni. Membership would then become retroactive and all members would be eligible for full affiliation, even if graduated. Tell the boys to maintain the strongest group in Southern California, sit tight and have faith.

(Signed)

Stuart Graves

That the alumni were not lax is indicated by the following from Dr. Pallette on February 13:

The dinner Friday night went over big. There were seventy-five present and considerable enthusiasm displayed. We had with us ten of the best men from the Freshman class of the new school. These we pledged to stand together for Nu Sigma Nu. I read your telegram to them and it helped a lot. Thank you very much.

Most of the chapters were represented and all were enthusiastic for the revival of the old chapter. A Southern California Alumni Chapter was formed with myself as President and Dr. H. B. Tebbetts as Secretary.

We are planning a big Mayo dinner for May 4th. Dr. W. J. Mayo is to be with us that evening. The California State Medical Association meets at Coronado on May 6th, and we hope to have some Nu Sigs from the North with us. Dr. Morton Gibbon is president-elect, and I am writing him asking him to be present.

We got busy just in time. Most of these boys we pledged would have had others pins on the next morning.

FIRST PETITION RECEIVED IN 1929

The election of Dr. Pallette and Dr. Tebbetts as officers of the Alumni Association resulted in renewed activity. With the help of the Executive Council records the list of alumni in Southern California was revised to date and every man contacted. Soon came the first petition from the undergraduates for rejuvenation of Nu Chapter, dated March 20, 1929 and signed by Accompanying the petition, forwarded by Dr. Tebbetts, were letters from President von KleinSmid and Acting Dean W. D. Cutter, outlining plans for the school.

The spring of 1929 was an anxious one. The Nu Sigma Nu Constitution prohibited chapters in two-year schools. Rival fraternities had promptly re-established old chapters or founded new ones. Secretary Tebbetts of the Alumni Association wrote on April 4:

Our Southern California Alumni are to have a dinner on May 4th in honor of Dr. W. J. Mayo, at which we expect to have over one hundred men present. The pledges at the Medical School are to be guests also; on that evening we are very desirous of initiating them as the rejuvenated Nu Chapter.

The College session opened last fall and we have the outstanding men in the Freshman class. These boys are severely handicapped however, as they only wear the red and white ribbon in their lapels. Two other fraternities have active chapters already with their men fully initiated and wearing their pins. Our boys are going to have a hard time to hold their own when the new semester starts, for they have nothing to offer their prospects but promises.

Something must be done soon, as the boys are getting discouraged; and I am sure you must think it unfair for any class to go through college without its full title and right as a Nu Sigma Nu chapter.

At present our men here in Southern California are by far the best, and all of them are anxious to keep our organization at the front.

P. S. The new Medical School already has over $720,000 set aside for its support and endowment and will undoubtedly forge ahead in the real Los Angeles fashion.

This letter was supplemented on April 9, with telegrams of similar tenor from Dr. George Hunter, Phi (California), '06, and Dr. Harlan Shoemaker, Lambda (Pennsylvania), '02, respectively president and secretary of the Los Angeles County Medical Society.

PETITIONERS ENCOURAGED TO WORK AND WAIT

After prompt consultation with members of the Executive Council such assurances were sent to California as satisfied them to work and wait for a charter. Insofar as these assurances bear upon the policy of Nu Sigma Nu regarding expansion it will be of interest to all the alumni to record in part the Executive Council's response to these anxious messages, inspired in the heat of intense competition:

The Grand Council, made up of all delegates from all of the chapters in the United States and Canada, has repeatedly gone on record as opposed to granting a charter in any but a thoroughly established four-year medical school. If the Executive Council were inclined to grant a charter to any other group, it could not do so constitutionally. Charters of Nu Sigma Nu simply are not granted under such conditions and in such haste. Personally but unofficially, I am on record in correspondence with Dr. Pallette as expressing the opinion that the Executive Council would not hesitate to recommend to the Grand Council, and that the Grand Council would not hesitate to approve an application from a group in the reorganized medical school of Southern California if, and as soon as, such a petition should be approved to the Executive Council by the Alumni of Los Angeles representing the chapters which have five or more Alumni in the city; also if and as soon as the Executive Council could be thoroughly satisfied of the stability and promise of future developments of that school.

One of your greatest recommendations is the intense enthusiasm which your men are exhibiting and we all appreciate what that and your loyalty to the fraternity would mean for the new chapter.

May we most respectfully and earnestly suggest that the enthusiasm of those men who want a chapter in Southern California now be tempered with what is best for the fraternity as a whole. There is everything to be gained for the fraternity and the local group by not rushing matters. In the long run the undergraduates who desire a Nu Sigma Nu charter will be better pleased and will appreciate the fraternity more if the charter is granted in accordance with the demands of the conservative policy which has governed Nu Sigma Nu for many years and has given it the pre-eminent position it now occupies.

Nu Sigma Nu is not interested in the frantic efforts which some of the medical fraternities make to rush in for the establishment of chapters before they are warranted. Those fraternities at present are facing very grave problems because of this policy. As a rule, those fraternities are ones which, fearful of their standing and their ability, make a practice of pledging men as much as three years before they come to medical school. It often happens that men pledged in this way become dissatisfied and disloyal to the fraternities which they have joined or find very little fellowship when they transfer to some other school for graduation.

The Executive Council letter and a night letter of reassurance were read at the dinner on May 4th in honor of Dr. Will Mayo, one of the founders of Nu Sigma Nu. One hundred and sixteen alumni unanimously pledged support to the petitioners and the alumni made good in a practical manner. They helped the boys get a chapter house and furnish it, even including a library; they held periodic dinners to which the undergraduates were bidden as guests; they promoted good feeling toward the school; they helped to secure new members; they took the students into their homes and hearts. They did fine work during a trying period.

Meanwhile Dr. R. G. Taylor, Nu, (Southern California), '96, succeeded Dr. Palette as president of the Alumni Association and Dr. E. Vincent Askey, Lambda, (Pennsylvania), '21, took over from Dr. Tebbetts the duties of secretary. On October 17, 1931, Dr. Askey wrote:

The new school has taken a renewed life and with the third year now in full swing we all feel that it is going to develop into a wonderful teaching institution. We read your letter at the dinner and the boys at the School were greatly encouraged. I feel that, without doubt, they have a Group there that is the equal of any similar Group in the Chapters of the Nu Sigma Nu anywhere in the United States.

SECOND PETITION RECEIVED IN 1932

The second petition from the undergraduates came under the date of June 2, 1932, signed by William L. Adams, Jr., president, Edgar L. Mariette, secretary and the other following men:

Trustees of Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity

Gentlemen:

We hereby petition the Trustees of the Nu Sigma Nu Fraternity for the re-establishment of Nu Chapter at the Medical School of the University of Southern California.

4th year—Edwin M. Chase, B. S.; Harry Kerber, A.B.; Ross A. Goodcell, B.S.; Ralph Rhind, A.B.

3rd year—Anton Laubersheimer, B.S.; Howard House, A.B.

2nd year—Richard French, A.B.; Douglas Donath, B.S.; Karl Houghton, B.S.; Joseph G. Hamilton, A.B.; Harold Owens, A.B.; Warren Wilson, A.B.; Gordon Smith, A.B.

Meanwhile, likewise, the conservatism of the Executive Council proved justified. The school was having its troubles, financial and otherwise. The two hundred and twenty Nu Sigma Nu alumni, however, never waived in their faith in the eventual outcome nor in their support of the undergraduate petitioners.

During the summer the Executive Council sought advice from Phi (California), Upsilon (Stanford) and Beta Nu (Oregon). They communicated with their alumni and the reports were all favorable, some enthusiastic. In the fall all three Pacific coast chapters voted "heartily" in favor of the re-establishment of Nu.

A real boost was given the movement in the fall when cordial letters of recommendation came from President von KleinSmid and Dean McKibben. The President wrote that the University would welcome the revival of Nu Sigma Nu. Dean

McKibben sent an encouraging financial statement of the school and a copy of the new agreements between the University and the authorities of the Los Angeles County General Hospital, and between the University and the Children's Hospital Association, providing clinical facilities for teaching.

BRIGHTENING PROSPECTS AND THE FINAL PETITION

With brightening prospects in the School, Nu Sigma Nu alumni and undergraduates took on renewed activity. A revised petition with full biographic data of each petitioner, a history of the petitioners, a group photograph and the written endorsement of all the faculty members of Nu Sigma Nu, was filed with the Executive Council on November 29, 1932. These faculty endorsers included ten full professors, eighteen associate and assistant professors and twenty-one instructors and assistants. Of these only one professor and four of the associate and assistants were graduates of the University of Southern California. All the others were Nu Sigma Nu graduates of representative four-year schools, including California, Stanford, Oregon, Texas, Nebraska, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Rush, Northwestern, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Columbia and Bellevue, truly a remarkable representation. The revised and final petition came from the following eighteen men:

The history of the movement, as supplied by the petitioners, follows. The recital in the forepart is highly enlightening as to the mental condition regarding fraternities of most freshmen entering medical school. If all medical fraternities would join to encourage what these freshmen did the influence of all medical fraternities would be greatly augmented.

THE HISTORY, WRITTEN BY PETITIONERS

With the re-opening of the University of Southern California School of Medicine in the fall of 1928, definite steps were taken by the national medical fraternities, ———, ——— and ———, to re-establish their chapters on the campus. Cognizant of the fact that there existed a leader among national medical fraternities which as yet had made no attempt to re-establish its chapter, and being greatly harassed by the constant pressure exerted by the three above-mentioned fraternities, a few of the more conservative members of the freshman class banded together in an attempt to stem the tide of confusion into which they had been swept and which gravely threatened severe distraction from studies.

Sympathizers joined with these rebels to form the ELEVEN CLUB, so named for the number of its active members, and containing in its constitution a pledge which each member was obliged to sign and which stated that no member would accept a bid to any medical fraternity before completing his first semester in school. The fraternity question being temporarily settled, the men settled down to their studies. The Eleven Club held regular meetings at Monday luncheons, six more members were added to the roll, and a committee leisurely investigated the fraternity situation.

It was through the efforts of Dr. Albert D. Weiser, of the Northwestern chapter, that the alumni of Nu Sigma Nu became interested in re-establishing their Southern California chapter. Accordingly, a Southern California Alumni Association of Nu Sigma Nu was formed under the leadership of Drs. Edward Pallette and Hiram Tebbetts who were members of the then inactive Southern California chapter of Nu Sigma Nu. After an investigation, seven members of the Eleven Club were invited to attend a banquet given by the association in February of 1929. On this occasion, seven men were invited to become unofficial pledges of Nu Sigma Nu. Although the pledge buttons of the national order were worn from that time on, no secret was made of the fact that this was unauthorized by the national organization.

Under the name, NU SIGMA NU PLEDGES, the group established itself as a local medical fraternity. John Corlett, Ernst Boren, and James Burns were elected to the offices of president, vice-president, and secretary respectively. Realizing the advantages which second-semester pledging would have to both freshmen and the local order for the ensuing year, the Nu Sigma Nu Pledges invited other fraternities to send representatives to a meeting which resulted in the establishment of an interfraternity council, through which a measure was passed making second-semester pledging a rule for the following year. This became a ruling of the medical school by order of the man who was then dean of the school, Dr. William D. Cutter, to whom, although he is identified with the Phi Rho Sigma fraternity, the petitioning group extends its eternal vote of thanks for his sincere sympathy for its ideals and the sound advice which he gave to its officers.

Space does not permit the mention of the many Nu Sigma Nu Alumni who have individually contributed staunch support to the Nu Sigma Nu Pledges. Medical books have been contributed to the library, financial support has been generous, and during rushing seasons, clubs, beach and town homes, and even a yacht have been placed at the disposal of the local order. Exemplary of the manner in which the alumni have sought to inspire the undergraduates is the occasion on which they invited the pledges to attend a banquet complimentary to Dr. William J. Mayo when he visited Los Angeles in May of 1929.

By the way of further support, the alumni suggested in the fall of 1929 that the pledges take a house to be furnished by the alumni and to be called the Nu Sigma Nu house by virtue of its being a meeting place for the members of that fraternity as well as a home for the local order. This seemed a tremendous venture for such a small group, but under the enthusiastic leadership of Francis West, who had taken the presidency with the opening of the fall term, the question was decided. Accordingly, a substantial eight-room house quite close to the medical school was selected, and was furnished by the alumni. In the early part of January, 1930, the students took possession of their new quarters, and in doing so, led the other medical fraternities in this movement by a full semester.

Meanwhile with John Corlett as chairman of that committee, rushing had proceeded in a gratifying manner as was evidenced in February when the ban on pledging was lifted. All bids were sent through the dean's office. The Nu Sigma Nu Pledges sent in ten bids to the most sought after members of the freshman class. All ten bids were accepted. The new men included William Adams, Edwin Chase, Ross Goodcell, Kenneth Jenkins, Harry Kerber, Edgar Mariette, David Reid, Ralph Rhind, Earl White and Edward Whiting. Ross Goodcell was then president of his class.

As a result of this, four more men moved into the house, filling it to its capacity of nine. An elderly couple was then employed to do the cooking and housework. During the second term, the respective offices of president, vice-president and freshman manager, secretary and treasurer were filled by John Corlett, Francis West, Wendell Willett and Ernst Boren. Never has the writer seen a group of men so closely kn't together as this one became during that first term in the new house. A rigid set of house rules were put into effect and strictly enforced. Ernst Boren established an efficient system of bookkeeping, watched all accounts carefully, and was thus able to place the credit of the Nu Sigma Nu Pledges on a firm footing. When he closed his books in June, the organization boasted a surplus of approximately two hundred dollars in the bank.

But at this point, the Horatio Alger tone of this history lapses temporarily, for the local group faced a catastrophe when it was announced that no third year work would be offered by the medical school in the fall of 1930. The men who had just completed the work of the second year were forced to transfer. Of the seven Nu Sigma Nu pledges in that class, six entered schools in which there existed active chapters of Nu Sigma Nu. Of these, Ernst Boren transferred to Rush, James Burns and Eric Colby to California, and Wendell Willett to Chicago. All six men are now members of Nu Sigma Nu. The seventh, Robert Donham, transferred to the College of Medical Evangelists at Loma Linda, California, and is still a member of the petitioning group. Two members of the freshman class also transferred. These were David Reid and Earl White who both became members of Nu Sigma Nu at California. Reid has since passed away, a bitter blow to the local organization.

The fall of 1930, therefore, found only eight of the seventeen Nu Sigma Nu pledges remaining. Of these, Edgar Mariette became president of the local order, and William Adams took over the duties of treasurer. These men held office throughout the school year. Anxious to maintain the standards for membership in the organization, and, from a fraternity standpoint, having a poor class from which to choose, the remaining Nu Sigma Nu pledges took in only two new members, Howard House and Anton Laubersheimer. Thus reduced in number of members, it was only by rigid economy that the local group was able to maintain the standards of living to which it had become accustomed without going into debt. It was during this year that the organization became interested in Student Body offices. Edgar Mariette and William Adams were elected to the offices of president and vice-president of that organization. Prior to that time, Francis West had held the office of vice-president of the Student Body.

In June of 1931, the petitioning group lost two more of its members. Kenneth Jenkins transferred to Stanford where he became a Nu Sigma Nu. Edward Whiting transferred to Pennsylvania, but was financially unable to accept the proffered bid of that or any other fraternity.

Eight more men were pledged to the organization in the fall of 1931. They included Douglas Donath, Richard French, Joseph Hamilton, Karl Houghton, Harold Owens, Paul Penny, Warren Wilson, and Gordon Smith who was president of the freshman class. Hamilton transferred to California at the end of his freshman year, and is no longer a member of the petitioning group. Penny left school of his own accord. The fraternity house was run that year on much the same basis as before. Edgar Mariette was again elected to the office of house president, as well as president of the Student Body. Harry Kerber became president of the junior class.

In the fall of 1932, the following five men were pledged to the organization, Ernest Anderson, Marion Beatty, Alva Bryant, James Long, and Warren Steele. With William Adams as its president, the fraternity has moved into larger quarters at 334 West 36th Street, Los Angeles. Gordon Smith has been re-elected president of the class of 1936, and Harry Kerber has the honor of being the permanent president of the first class to graduate from the new school.

The matter of scholarship has purposely been omitted until now for the sake of emphasis. Of the sophomore class, two Nu Sigma Nu pledges rank in the upper one-third of the class, three men in the middle third, and one in the lower third. The junior members of the petitioning group maintain places in the upper one-third of that class. In the senior class, two members of the organization rank in the upper one-third and four rank in the middle third. To summarize, of the fourteen men whose records are available, six rank in the upper one-third of their classes, seven in the middle third, and one in the lower third. Freshmen rankings can not be obtained until February of the current school year.

The University of Southern California is situated in a position with great possibilities in respect to the development of medical education. In a city ranking fifth in population of the cities of America, there is without a question need for a non-sectarian medical school of the first rank. Especially is that need apparent where the medical profession is made up of men who have had the best training in the United States—men who realize the mental stimulus and progress advantages that accrue to the metropolis wherein a great medical school casts its influence.

It has been the constant cognizance of the need of such an institution that has drawn the support, of practically the entire medical profession of the area served, to the re-establishment of the medical school by the University of Southern California. With the support of this medical profession the school has now proved its promise.

In Los Angeles and its suburbs there are two hundred and thirty active alumni members of the Nu Sigma Nu fraternity. Practically all the chapters of Nu Sigma Nu are represented by these men. Perhaps most important is that proportion of alumni members who are members of the original Nu chapter of Nu Sigma Nu. That chapter was the first to be granted a charter on the Pacific coast and suspended its activity over a decade ago with the temporary discontinuance of the medical school of the University of Southern California. These men have always been loyal and await eagerly a regranting of their Mother Chapter.

The local group of petitioners whose history is given elsewhere in this application have acquitted themselves honorably and with the best interests of that for which Nu Sigma Nu stands in their hearts. It has been a pleasure to help these young men, to work with them and to encourage them. We stand ready to continue in the future to work with them toward the development of a re-established Nu chapter and to attain the aims of our great Fraternity.

FOUR-YEAR SCHOOL APPROVED IN 1933

Meanwhile the first two years of medical studies as given at Southern California had been approved and the outlined curriculum for the third and fourth years had been endorsed by the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association. The petitioners were encouraged by an informal expression from the Executive Council in favor of submitting the petition to the Grand Council with a favorable recommendation, "subject to the establishment and maintenance of a (four-year) Class A School of Medicine in the University of Southern California." During the spring of 1933 Dr. Ray

Lyman Wilbur, President of Stanford and Chairman of the Council on Medical Education, examined the School. In June full approval of the School was voted by that Council. In September the Executive Council of Nu Sigma Nu voted unanimously in favor of recommending the granting of the petition and it was sent to all chapters with full data on October 17. This information was conveyed to the petitioners and the result was a group of pledges. On December 15 it was possible, after full information had been in the hands of the chapters for the constitutional period and votes cast, for the Executive Council Secretary happily to send the following night letter:

Tuscaloosa, Alabama
December 15, 1933

Dr. E. Vincent Askey

Los Angeles, Calif.

Happy to announce Grand Council vote unanimously favors re-establishment Nu chapter. Heartiest congratulations. With so many guardian angels hovering over our reborn we look for a glorious career. Please notify undergraduates and Alumni Association. January fifth approved for installation. Doctor Toland approved by Executive Council. Letter follows. Fraternally.

Dr. Edward M. Palette, loyal alumnus of old Nu chapter, early president of the Alumni Association, member of the Medical Advisory Committee of the School, acted as installing officer at the request of the Executive Council. The services were carried out with impressive dignity and beautiful interpretation, according to reports, by a group of alumni under the direction of Dr. Emil Krahulik, Beta Epsilon (Nebraska), '23. The installation was held in the ball room of the Los Angeles Elks Club and was followed by a banquet. About 130 alumni attended and more came in later for the initiation. Congratulatory telegrams from the Executive Council and chapters, as well as a letter from Dr. Will Mayo, were read.

The following is the list of men initiated:

Dr. Clarence G. Toland, Professor of Clinical Surgery.
 Internes: Dr. Robert Donham, Dr. William L. Adams, Jr., Dr. Ross A. Goodcell, Dr. Harry E. Kerber, Dr. Edgar L. Mariette, Dr. Ralph Rhind.
 Seniors: Howard P. House, Anton Laubersheimer.
 Juniors: Douglas H. Donath, Richard L. French, Karl H. Houghton, Harold Owens, Gordon K. Smith, Warren A. Wilson.

A BIT OF EARLY HISTORY

Before leaving the account of the installation and rejuvenation of Nu chapter it is fitting to quote this subsequent bit of early history from a letter written by Dr. Palette on January 12, 1934:

Personally I was very sorry that Dr. Will Walter could not come out and represent the Grand Council. I don't know that you are familiar with the circumstance of the founding of the original Nu Sigma Nu chapter. I entered the school in the fall of 1895. I had been at Evanston and was familiar with the high standing of Nu Sigma Nu in the Northwestern University Medical School. At the same time that I entered here, J. G. McLeod entered as a senior from Detroit. A little later I observed McLeod's Nu Sigma Nu pin and it gave me a wild idea. I suggested to him one day that we get a bunch of fellows together and petition for a charter. He said he expected to be here only one year, that he was working pretty hard, that he was not well (he died a few years later of tuberculosis) but that if I would get the crowd together he would endorse it and do what he could for us so I picked out ten men and we also asked a half dozen of our favorites among the faculty members. Among these was Dr. H. Bert Ellis, Professor of Ophthalmology. Now it happens that Bert Ellis, who was active in A. M. A. affairs, a Trustee at the time I think, was very friendly with Dr. Will Walter, who was then in an influential position with Nu Sigma Nu. Dr. Ellis went East and saw Dr. Will Walter, evidently gave our Group a good recommendation and our charter was soon granted. No doubt if it had not been for our contact with Dr. Walter through Dr. Ellis, the petition would have been denied.

NU'S FIRST HISTORIAN'S CHAPTER LETTER

And finally comes the report from the first undergraduate Historian of the new Nu chapter, Brother Warren N. Steele, Jr. Those parts which relate to early history are here reproduced:

612 W. 35th Place, Los Angeles, Calif.,
 January 20, 1934.

January, 1934, finds Nu Sigma Nu once more established in Southern California. The members to a man are happy and proud to be Nu Sigma Nus, and members of other chapters may be sure that their fraternity will be well represented in Los Angeles. The chapter here realizes that responsibility as well as pride goes with membership, and we are determined to maintain our place as the finest medical fraternity here.

NU OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
Installation Banquet, Los Angeles, January 5, 1934

The year started off with a series of rush parties which culminated in the pledging of nine men, easily the cream of the class. These affairs were most pleasant, as those lucky enough to attend will testify. An evening at the home of Dr. E. M. Pallette, one of the members of the old Nu chapter, started things off. A trip up the coast on Anton Laubersheimer's trim yawl came next on the rushing program. The next day was spent swimming and playing tennis at Douglas Donath's country home. Dr. E. M. Pallette was kind enough to grant us the use of his beach house at Balboa, and a day there wound up our rushing. In the past, rushing has been successful in spite of our lack of a charter. We anticipate even greater success now that it has been granted.

Some three weeks after school started, a meeting was held at the home of Warren Wilson. At this meeting plans for installation were discussed, and Dr. E. V. Askey, one of the most loyal of our alumni addressed the new pledges on "The Meaning of Nu Sigma Nu". At this meeting, Frederick Leix, an outstanding transfer from Creighton, in the sophomore class here, was pledged.

At a pre-installation meeting, held at the home of Douglas Donath, the following officers were elected: Secretary, Alva L. Bryant, Jr.; Historian, Warren N. Steele, Jr.; Custodian, Anton Laubersheimer. No changes were made in the other officers, who are: President, Douglas Donath; Vice-President, Warren Wilson; Treasurer, Richard French.

Following the election came an address on the present economic crisis in medicine, delivered by Dr. Clarence Toland, who not only knew about what he was talking, but presented it in a most interesting way. Later Dr. Toland accepted a bid to become a member of Nu Sigma Nu.

Of course the biggest event of the year was the installation of the chapter, which was conducted by the Los Angeles Nu Sigma Nu Alumni Association, on January fifth. This ceremony was beautifully carried out, held as it was in the huge chapter room of the Los Angeles Elks Club. Dr. E. M. Pallette presided, and the thanks of the initiates go to him and to those other loyal alumni who made the installation possible.

Dinner followed in the banquet room, Dr. Pallette acting as toastmaster. The initiation of the pledges, conducted by the alumni, using the full regalia and the revised ritual, was most impressive to the undergraduate witnesses. All the pledges were initiated with the exception of Frank Gallison, who for financial reasons was unable to go through.

Of course the most prominent initiate is Dr. Clarence Toland, Professor of Clinical Surgery and president-elect of the California State Medical Association. Still, in a smaller way, other members of the local chapter have had their successes. Although previous acceptance of an internship appointment at the Santa Fe Hospital made it impossible for him to accept, Dr. William Adams, Jr., of our fifth year class was number one man on the appointment list of the Los Angeles County General Hospital. Dr. Harry Kerber of the same class has been granted a second year internship at the latter hospital. There were over fifty applications for these positions, of which there are but fifteen. Incidentally, Dr. Kerber has been president of the student body for the past two years. Warren N. Steele, Jr., is president of the sophomore class, while Ernest R. Anderson is leading the same class in scholarship.

XI CHARTER GROUP

The material for this history has been collected from the various Bulletins. Missing letters before the 1920's have made gaps inevitable in that part of the story. Late letters have been more informative; we acknowledge in particular the contribution of the 1931 historian, Nicholas A. Bertha. Our thanks are due Faculty Alumnus Samuel A. Brown, '94, for the final reading of this manuscript, particularly with reference to the school history. As Dean of Medicine of New York University, Dr. Brown has done much to raise the standard of the school. His untiring patience and individual interest in the students have been repeatedly and gratefully acknowledged by Xi historians.

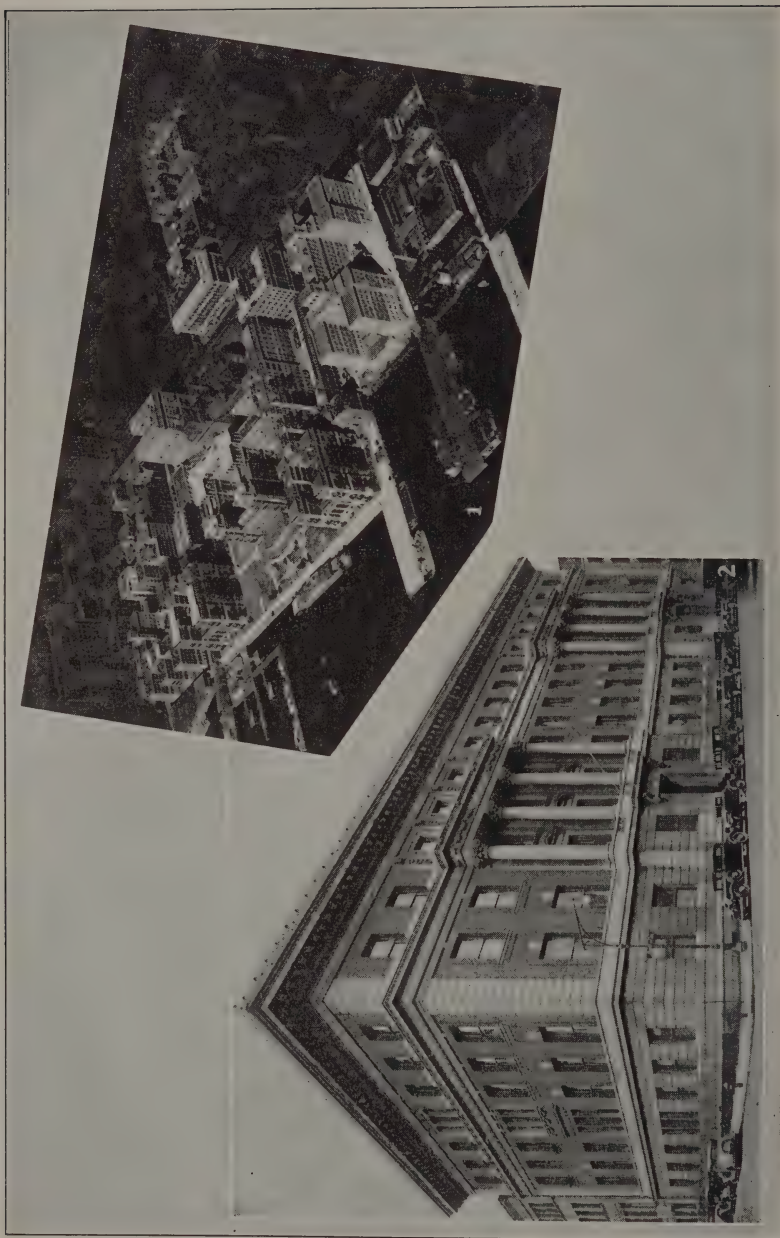

W-W

THE SCHOOL

DOCTOR BROWN

New York University owes its origin to a group of prominent public-spirited citizens who in the early 1830's subscribed to its first endowment and in 1831 secured a charter from the State Legislature. Their broad and liberal plan, anticipating the wide and distinctive service now rendered by the institution which they founded, embraced schools of law, medicine, engineering and graduate studies; departments of fine arts, philosophy and education and teacher training; all in addition to time-honored curricula in liberal arts and humanities. Lack of funds retarded the early development of this extraordinary program, but in the course of years its principal features have been brought to maturity. Originally chartered under the name of the University of the City of New York, the name was changed in 1896 to New York University in order to obviate confusion both with the College of the City of New York and with the University of the State of New York. New York University is privately endowed, nonsectarian and coeducational, including now in the University system twelve colleges and schools and three other major divisions.

UNIVERSITY AND BELLEVUE HOSPITAL MEDICAL BUILDINGS

- (1) Airplane View of Hospital and Medical School.
- (2) College Building at 477 First Avenue.

The University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College was housed entirely in four large buildings on First Avenue and Twenty-Sixth Street, opposite Bellevue Hospital, until development of the new medical center began in 1930. The Medical College was established and became an integral part of New York University in 1898 by the union of the University Medical College and Bellevue Hospital Medical College. Instruction had been first given in the former in 1841 and in the latter in 1861.

The first of the four buildings comprising the old medical group was the College building completed in 1898 by the faculty of Bellevue to meet demands for larger classes and increase in curriculum following the union with New York Medical College. This building accommodated part of the clinic for the ambulant sick poor, lecture rooms, many departments and laboratories, with working libraries for teaching and research in various subjects. The other three structures were: The Carnegie Laboratory devoted to anatomy and surgery, a large teaching auditorium, a student library, and offices; the Carnegie Extension, completed in 1910, which has permitted the extension of work in all the laboratory departments; the New Laboratory Building, providing for a further extension and elaboration of the laboratory work and in meeting other needs. Occupying two floors of this building the college clinic, one of the largest in New York City, has allowed the treatment of about 118,000 cases in a single year (1927) alone, and in addition has served through its social service department, as a community center for education in keeping well, and in supplying food, clothing and employment to the needy.

The college possesses ample facilities for clinical teaching and is pre-eminent as a school of practical medicine, giving abundant material and opportunity to the student for making laboratory examinations of all kinds. The Edward N. Gibbs Memorial X-Ray Laboratory was the first of its kind to be established in this country.

The Egbert LeFevre Memorial Library was established in 1914 to honor the memory of Dr. LeFevre, a former dean of the medical college. Its large collection has been augmented in recent years by gifts from the libraries of many physicians, notable among whom are Drs. Egbert LeFevre, Carlos F. McDonald, A. Alexander Smith, Hermann M. Biggs, Joseph D. Bryant and Edward K. Dunham (Xi).

In 1930 the entire city block south of the hospital was purchased for the University as a site for a new medical center. In the same year an eight-story out-patient department was completed and occupied by the departments of chemistry, anatomy, pathology and the library, with executive offices and the clinic to follow. This building constitutes a much needed and valuable addition to the educational facilities of the medical college.

In recent years the school has been undergoing a gradual change in teaching method; more and more, clinical and bedside experience predominates over the old, exclusively lecture system. Along with the change in curriculum came a great boom to the school when the pediatric wards of Bellevue Hospital, formerly controlled by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, were transferred to the medical school along with the teaching staff, making the pediatric service the largest of its kind in the city.

A regulation adopted in 1932 lengthened the fourth year from nine to eleven months to allow an extra month each for the clinical study of women's diseases and for pediatrics.

Students, faculty and college have subscribed funds sufficient to transform the old clinic into a recreation center wherein space will be available for social and business fraternity meetings, for dancing and other amusements, and for serving refreshments.

Bellevue Hospital, adjacent to the college group, is the great civic hospital. An appropriation of $8,000,000 by the Board of Estimates of New York City in 1911 increased its capacity to two thousand beds. It receives annually over 45,000 patients, treating especially cases of acute diseases. More than 74,000 patients a year are treated in its out-patient department through which many of the great charitable institutions on Welfare, Ward's and Randalls Islands receive their inmates.

New additions are continually being made to Bellevue Hospital, an institution extending over an area of four city blocks. The most pretentious addition is the new Psychopathic Hospital which accommodates about one thousand patients.

THE CHAPTER

In the fall of 1896 a group of ten undergraduates at Bellevue Hospital Medical College organized with the purpose of forming a club which would serve to unite them both in college and in after life. Investigation of various societies led to arrangements with the Grand Council of Nu Sigma Nu to start a chapter in the University, to be known as Xi Chapter.

The installation was conducted by James F. Hasbrouck of Iota, then vice president of the Council. In a letter to John Irwin of Detroit, Michigan, then G. Ae., dated February 15, 1897, and now in the fraternity archives, Hasbrouck wrote in part:

"I have the honor to report that on the evening of February 13, 1897, I installed the Xi Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu here in New York City, at the University of New York. I was assisted by Brother MacGruer who is president of Iota Chapter."

The charter members, the above mentioned ten, were as follows: John A. Holland, Charles E. Carter, Arthur L. Sherrill, Arthur S. Corwin, Ray G. Lawrence, Walter B. Jennings, Francis A. Goeltz, Lucien G. Rice, Ralph J. Hess, William M. Campbell.

This group carried on for a year. Then, realizing that the chapter must soon pass into other hands, they began the search for desirable men, with the result that by the end of 1898 the membership was more than doubled. Xi had many difficulties at first, due to the existence of another society already strong and well established at the college, but through earnest efforts and seriousness of purpose they soon gained recognition. Even so Xi might have suffered an early shipwreck but for the loyal backing of the faculty brothers, Doctors Prentiss, Robertson, Brown, James and Wilson, to whom alone, according to the 1903 historian: "Xi owes its subsequent success."

Our latest information on the ten charter members is that Holland is in Upper Montclair, New Jersey; Carter in Pasadena, California; Sherrill in Chicago; Lawrence in Hammondsport, New York; Goeltz in Salt Lake City, Utah; Rice in Albuquerque, New Mexico; Campbell in Portland, Oregon. Hess died in 1901, Corwin in 1926 and Jennings in 1929.

With the opening of the school year in 1901, a committee was appointed to find a home for the chapter. This was secured at 145 East Twenty-Seventh Street where Tau joined Xi in maintaining rooms, the chapters holding their meetings on alternate Saturdays. In 1902 Xi joined Tau Chapter in renting rooms in the Bennington, an attractive apartment house conveniently located near the school. This suite, completely furnished by the faculty members, provided a daily meeting place. Since the purchase of a home in a large city involves serious financial problems, Xi Chapter chose to maintain conveniently located rented quarters. In 1910 six rooms in the Royal Crown apartments, 144 East Twenty-Seventh Street, were taken and occupied in part as living quarters by some of the fellows, the apartment serving as a meeting place for the group. Here the men felt at home—a helpful feeling in the life of a great city. A piano and other new furniture added to the pleasure and comfort of these rooms. Also, we are told: “Two new pictures hang on our walls,—one, the framed picture of Brother Will Walter, and the other a picture showing the administration of the first anaesthetic by Dr. Morton in Boston.”

At this time the chapter developed its own orchestra to furnish entertainment upon occasion.

In 1913 Xi still occupied these rooms, but due to the loss of a large senior class the prospects of retaining them were not then promising. Information is missing for the next few years, but in 1916 we are told that “the apartments at 201 East Thirtieth Street have been retained by the chapter, and with the kind assistance of some of the alumni have been practically refurnished.” In 1917; “The Chapter is now quartered in more extensive apartments at 125 East Twenty-Fourth Street and we thank the faculty members for their cooperation which enabled us to make the change.” Xi’s occupancy here was brief and in 1918 another move to 152 East Twenty-Second Street provided quarters commodious enough to allow eight of the men to live there. This continued as the chapter home until 1924 when it was thought best to discontinue the practice of engaging a suite of rooms for holding meetings. These were held instead at the Medical Students’ Club where a special dinner was served while the men were entertained by talks upon medical subjects. Here was instituted the custom of semi-monthly informal dinners, one evening being reserved for the Xi group alone, the other for a joint meeting with the Tau men.

Xi has undergone many hardships and difficulties incident to life in a great city. The lack of a chapter-owned or permanent home has made it difficult to hold meetings at definite intervals. In 1931, through the courtesy of one of the workers in the university a small apartment was loaned to enable the chapter to hold meetings once a month.

Another problem is that of enforcing attendance at meetings. Since practically one-half of the members are commuters it is difficult for them to remain in the city for the extra hour or two during which the meeting is held. A definite meeting place and date has helped somewhat to solve this problem. The transformation of the old clinic into a recreation center for the student body now provides a place for fraternity meetings, both social and business, solving the problem of the fraternities in maintaining a home.

Early in her history Xi established the custom of initiating only men of demonstrated ability. According to the 1911 historian, the man who is asked to Nu Sigma Nu must possess certain distinguishing characteristics: he must recognize and grasp his opportunities; he must evince a brotherly and kindly spirit; he must be clean. In the 1917 bulletin we note: "The record of our seniors is one of splendid attainment. All are on the honor roll, Brother Lorenzo still leading his class. The cream of local hospitals has been awarded them." In 1919, out of ten appointments to Bellevue Hospital, seven were given to Nu Sigma Nu.

In 1922 Xi adopted a by-law making the completion of the entire first year's work a requisite to initiation in order that "the pledge should develop a high regard for the fraternity, appreciating that to attain membership he must stand the acid tests of desirability, capability and loyalty; that he might have an additional stimulus to complete successfully the work of the first year; that the standards of the fraternity be so elevated as to merit and demand the respect and admiration of the faculty, students and alumni."

In 1919 the three New York Chapters Xi, Tau and Iota were joint hosts to the National Convention. The association with the visiting delegates and the instructive and interesting business and social events were heartily enjoyed by all concerned. At the following year's initiation Xi conducted the ritual as at the model initiation held at the convention. All "rough stuff" was eliminated, the neophytes instead presenting an interesting entertainment which appealed to all.

A system of faculty supervision was arranged in 1925 whereby certain of Xi's Fratres in Facultate became advisors to the students, giving aid and encouragement when needed.

A new method of selecting pledges was instituted in 1930. Freshmen records are inspected and, in cases where these and the opinion of the interviewing officer are favorable, the prospects are invited to a banquet where two or more faculty men are present as well as the chapter members. Each of the men who become pledged after this event is assigned to a "grandfather", a chapter member who is responsible for the welfare of the pledge and to whom he may turn for help and encouragement. The system worked so well that year that not a single pledge was lost. Xi's policy of not initiating first year men has worked so excellently that over a ten year period not a single initiated man has been lost.

As a stimulus to continued effort toward greater progress, Xi has for years held monthly dinners to which alumni and faculty have been invited, particularly professors and instructors in the first two years. Such social contacts have encouraged students in those most difficult years. Alumni and undergraduates have worked together whole heartedly to maintain the fraternity's high standards of personality and social congeniality as well as scholarship.

Socially, the spring dance held jointly with Tau of Cornell is one of the outstanding functions and an occasion eagerly awaited by the alumni who attend practically en masse to renew old acquaintances and mingle with the active members. Another most enjoyable function is the annual alumni banquet given jointly by the Nu Sigma Nu Alumni Association of New York, to which the undergraduates of Iota, Xi and Tau are always cordially invited. Old grads dine, wine and renew friendships to their hearts' content.

Xi takes great pride in announcing that one of her distinguished alumni, William H. Park, '85, was awarded the coveted Merit Degree of the Grand Council at the Semi-Centennial Convention in Ann Arbor, in recognition of eminence in the field of preventive medicine. Dr. Park has also been honored by being the first appointee to the new chair at Bellevue, the Biggs Professorship of Preventive Medicine.

Xi has furnished the following fellows to the Executive Council: E. K. Dunham of the faculty, who was president 1902-04 and continued in the service of the Council from 1906 to 1910 inclusive; Alumnus R. E. Mathers who also served on the Council 1900-02. H. J. Prentiss rendered distinguished service in various offices of the council from 1906 through 1926, for two decades, the first few years of which he was registered as a Xi alumnus, the remaining years as of the Iowa faculty representing Beta Delta. Three Xi men have been honored by office in the Honorary Council, namely: Theodore Janeway in 1908-10, (died 1917), William H. Park in 1910-12 and Samuel A. Brown, 1926-28.

THE SCHOOL

Albany Medical College was established in 1838 and graduated its first class the year following. In 1873 the college became a part of Union University, since which time it has been known as the Medical Department of Union University. The medical building was located in Eagle Street until 1927. From the current catalog of the medical school, we quote:

"To meet modern requirements for university control and in order to effectuate the provision that the Albany Medical College was the Medical Department of the University, its Trustees in 1915 appointed an Executive Committee of thirteen to control the educational policy of the Medical School, nine members of which are Governors of Union University. Also upon request of the Trustees of the Medical College the Governors of Union University have appointed a similar committee identical in personnel.

"The Albany Medical College has the scientific and clinical direction of all the services of the Albany Hospital by reason of the fact that the heads of clinical and laboratory departments of the medical school are the heads of corresponding departments in the hospital and its dispensaries, and by agreement, identical with that of Columbia University and Presbyterian Hospital, a joint Administrative Board has been established to assure the closest cooperation between Albany Hospital and Albany Medical College."

The first unit of a new medical school building, in direct physical continuity with the Albany Hospital on New Scotland Avenue, was completed and occupied in 1927, the century-old medical building on Eagle Street having been sold and vacated.

Excellent clinical facilities and other aids to teaching are obtainable through affiliation with Albany City Hospital, including pavilion F for Mental Diseases, pavilion G for Contagious Diseases, Albany Hospital Tuberculosis Sanitarium, the Anthony Brady Maternity Home and the Obstetric Department of the Albany Guild for Public Health Nursing, Ellis Hospital, St. Margaret's Home for Children, Ann Lee County Home and General Electric Company Hospital.

"In 1890 the Albany Medical College presented its library to the State of New York to form the nucleus of a large medical library which is now housed in the New York State Education Building (as a part of the State Capitol group). This library, which possesses about 38,000 volumes and receives over 500 current periodicals is open to medical students and to physicians throughout the state."

The minimum entrance requirements at Albany when Omicron was installed (1899) were four years of high school work. In 1913, one year of college was added, and in 1918 the requirement became two years of college, as it has continued. In actual practice, however, no student has been accepted for about five years without an academic degree.

THE CHAPTER

The first professional fraternity in Union University was organized in 1897 through the efforts of a group of '98 medical students. This was a local society known as Sigma Nu Beta.

Desiring admittance into Nu Sigma Nu, and with the aid of Ralph S. Hess of Xi Chapter, application for a charter was made. This being granted, Sigma Nu Beta became Omicron of Nu Sigma Nu. Installed on December 18, 1899, the ceremonies were conducted by Will Walter, G. G., Thaddeus Walker, G. M., representing the Grand Council, and C. C. Lytle, 1900, of Mu at Syracuse, representing the active fraternity.

The following names appear upon Omicron's charter: George Lenz, Reid Gilmore, L. Hayden Humphrey, James Everett Kelley, Thomas Carney, Frederick Cornwall Reed, Fred Lettice, Frank C. Maxon. At the same time, Doctors Albert Vander Veer, Samuel B. Ward, Henry Hun and John V. Hennessey of the faculty, who had been enrolled previously as honorary members of Sigma Nu Beta, also became members of Omicron.

According to our latest available information on the early group, Lenz is now in Gloversville, New York, Gilmore and Reed are in Schenectady, Humphrey in Silver Springs and Maxon in Chatham, New York. Lettice is in Los Angeles, California. Kelley died in 1906 and Carney in 1915. The four faculty members have all joined Omega, Omicron's grand old man, Albert Vander Veer, '62, the last survivor, in 1929. In response to a letter addressed to him by the editor of this volume, his son, Edgar Vander Veer, wrote: "Father passed away December 19th. I shall comply with your request. He was in his eighty-ninth year and was ill less than three weeks. Fortunately he had remarkable health up to that time and we were thankful that he was spared any suffering."

DOCTOR
VANDER VEER, SR.

Albert Vander Veer, Sr., was Honorary President of Nu Sigma Nu, 1906-1908, and was elected president of the A. M. A. in 1916. Dr. Vander Veer was an outstanding surgeon in the Union Army of '61, also chief surgeon of the Albany Hospital for many years, a pioneer abdominal surgeon in the east.

The initial group of eight actives was increased to fourteen before the end of the year, and the season was closed with a banquet which was a thorough success in the promotion of fellowship and fraternity spirit.

Fraternity quarters were first obtained in 1901 at 31 Jay Street and were occupied for four years. R. F. Harris, '08, wrote in a letter dated 1925:

"Omicron Chapter at the time of my initiation was located at 31 Jay Street, Albany. The house was not as large nor as desirable as we wished, so in the fall of 1905 we moved to 211 Hamilton Street, which house we continued to occupy until my graduation in 1908, and for sometime thereafter.

"Our Chapter usually consisted of about twenty-five men. One man acted as buying steward and employed help to clean the house and serve meals. It might be of interest to note that room and board cost, as I remember it, seven dollars per week. This included our fraternity dues.

"We usually slept two in each room and had a large floor for social purposes.

"The Seniors and Juniors had charge, the underclassmen doing what few small duties were necessary.

"Our house was located near the College and on the trolley line convenient to the various hospitals."

The house at 211 Hamilton Street proved adequate for the time, housing thirteen men and providing a place where the Fellows could congregate during spare moments and on meeting nights.

During these years plans were under consideration for moving the college further uptown into a new building. Awaiting this move, Omicron was setting aside a definite sum each year for the permanent home which she hoped to build near the new school building.

In the 1917 Bulletin we find that Omicron gave up the then chapter house at 276 Hamilton Street in 1916, it being too large, requiring twenty men in order to run successfully. It seemed impossible to secure a suitable house, so the furniture was stored. Meetings were held regularly at 25 Lancaster Street, where five of the brothers had rooms, and later weekly meetings were held in the offices of Eugene E. Hinman, who so kindly offered them for use, a privilege of which the brothers availed themselves for a period of over two years.

Other alumni extended their hospitality, particular mention being made of Edgar Vander Veer's dinner and theatre party for the actives in May, 1916. These dinner parties continued as annual, outstanding events until the prohibition enforcement act was passed.

Following the release of all Omicron actives from the S. A. T. C. in December, 1918, a new chapter house was secured at 279 Madison Avenue which was very attractive and created a congenial and homelike atmosphere. All were enthusiastic: The men were at home; the alumni were brought in for "closer relation for enjoyment of good fellowship".

At the Annual Alumni Smoker in 1923 Edgar and James Vander Veer, President and Treasurer respectively of the Alumni Association of Omicron which had been organized in 1918, pledged their support toward a new chapter house for Omicron. The house at 279 Madison having been sold, immediate action was forced. As a fine example of whole-hearted support every active pledged himself to pay $100 into the building fund in ten annual installments. Thirty-eight alumni of the classes from 1913 to 1916 pledged $50 each. At the Alumni Banquet in 1926 Alumnus James Vander Veer set forth a plan for the building of the new house, the new medical college then being on the road to completion.

In 1927 the idea of building was abandoned in favor of buying a house at 731 Madison Avenue in close proximity to the new medical school. This was accomplished through the determined efforts of the actives, the cooperation of alumni and especially through the generosity of Brother James Vander Veer who also helped so greatly in the remodeling and in improvement of the interior. Aside from the need of soliciting the interest of the alumni in reducing the mortgage, the chapter is in excellent financial condition.

Omicron's social and extra curricular activities have been many and varied. The custom of having weekly alumni nights began in 1909 and has been successfully continued. An alumnus speaks upon a medical or other topic of interest, and the gathering being informal, promotes acquaintance between actives and alumni. This practice seems to have been perpetuated and in late years, 1927, 1929, historians mention the custom of entertaining faculty or alumni at Wednesday evening dinners. Conspicuously interesting have been James Vander Veer's illustrated lectures on his war experiences, dinner talks by Alumni Hinman, Campbell, Edgar Vander Veer, Dorwaldt, Glassbrook, Tebbutt, the Dean, Dr. Ordway, and other prominent faculty men.

December 18, 1929, Omicron's thirtieth anniversary was celebrated with a banquet at the chapter house, Eugene Hinman acting as toastmaster and two of the charter members, George Lenz and Frank Maxon, responding with talks.

Spring and fall formal dances have always been a part of Omicron's Social program as have the Alumni banquet and various smokers.

In 1919, after securing the house at 279 Madison Avenue, the spirit in the chapter was for increased social activity, both in holding functions at the house and in entertaining at neighboring clubs. From this movement sprang the chapter orchestra to furnish concert and dance music, filling a long-felt need.

Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving and Christmas parties, inaugurated in '21 and '22, were important steps in enlisting the interest of alumni as well as in providing enjoyable times for all concerned.

The National Convention to which Omicron was host in 1926 was the outstanding event of the year. For the first time in its history the convention had a one hundred per cent attendance of delegates, due to a constitutional amendment proposed by Grand Councillor Walter and Galen Graves, whereby a portion of the annual per capita tax was allocated to a special convention fund with which to pay all expenses of one delegate from each chapter. The Convention created a new spirit of enthusiasm among the members, both alumni and actives.

In the preparation of neophytes for initiation, we find in the 1912 Bulletin:

"A new custom has been established in the chapter which has been very thoroughly tested in the past two years. Each candidate is required to learn the various chapters of Nu Sigma Nu with their respective locations. Also the fraternity songs and a complete history of this chapter and fraternity. A series of quizzes are given on this work during the course of which the candidates are required to show a complete knowledge of all that is assigned."

In 1918, the historian writes:

"At the suggestion of Dr. Hinman, the initiation will be placed in the hands of a committee of Alumni. The present plan is to have our Alumni take the main parts in Acts 1 and 2 in the ritual, while Act 3 will be taken over by the chapter officers. It is hoped that this plan will be even more successful than before, particularly in interesting the Alumni and in securing their attendance."

In winning scholastic and other honors and prizes, Omicron has always maintained a high position. Each year, Nu Sigma Nus have been the recipients of desirable hospital appointments and of awards for excellence in skill and in scholarship. When the honorary Vesalian Club was revived in 1918, a notable number of the brothers became members. The activity of the scholarship committee and the "Big Brother" system have helped to produce these good results. In 1920 we are told that, "of the ten prizes offered by the school each year, eight were awarded to Nu Sigs."

Omicron's bulletin letters abound in references to the many creditable achievements of her alumni, among whom are the Vander Veers, Albert, Sr., Edgar and James, Eugene Hinman, A. H. Traver, Arthur Krida, A. J. Bedell and others.

Besides Albert Vander Veer, who was the fifth Honorary Council President, Omicron alumni who have been honored this way are: A. H. Traver, 1914-16, A. J. Bedell, 1928-30. Bedell also served a term (1928-30) on the Executive Council.

PI (ALPHA KAPPA PHI)

We are indebted to the following Alumni for having responded to requests for information on Alpha Kappa Phi's history: Paul S. Barker, '20, C. E. Colgate, '24, W. L. Daves, '32.

The greater part of Alpha Kappa Phi's history has, however, been gleaned from chapter letters. Our data on pre-Nu Sigma Nu times was found in Selden Spencer's First Annual Record of Alpha Kappa Phi Fraternity published in 1900.

THE SCHOOL

Since its charter had been granted on Washington's Birthday (1853) and since it likewise happened that the first meeting of the corporation for organization occurred on this anniversary date in the year following, the new institution was named Washington Institute. Three years later the name was changed to the present one, Washington University. The formal inauguration of the University, which took place on April 23, 1857, was of particular interest because the principal address was delivered by the famous orator, educator and statesman, Edward Everett.

The University entered upon a period of growth which has been continuous, adding new departments, including medicine, and housing them subsequent to 1894 on the extensive tract of land then recently purchased, just outside the city limits northwest of Forest Park.

The present Washington University School of Medicine antedates the University however, having been founded in 1842 as the St. Louis Medical College, an independent institution until 1891, when it became a department of Washington University.

In 1899 it was united with Missouri Medical College to form the Medical School of Washington University. The official name became The School of Medicine in 1918 when a uniform system of naming the University Colleges was adopted.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY MEDICAL BUILDINGS

- (1) Rand Johnson Memorial Surgical Wing of Barnes Hospital. (2) Edward Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology.
(3) St. Louis Maternity Hospital.

Appreciating the valuable services which a medical school can render, the Corporation of the University, cooperating with the Medical Faculty, reorganized the school in all its departments in 1910, appointing heads who devote themselves to teaching and research, clinical teachers being chosen from the medical profession of St. Louis.

In 1914, the School of Medicine was moved from its old location at Eighteenth and Chestnut Streets to new buildings facing Forest Park. The three new buildings form a part of a medical group which includes three affiliated institutions: the Barnes Hospital, the St. Louis Children's Hospital and the St. Louis Maternity Hospital; also three University-owned institutions all completed in 1931: the McMillan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, the Oscar Johnson Institute for Research and the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology providing radiological service for the hospital group, and containing research laboratories. Special laboratories with facilities for research workers are found in all departments.

Though free and pay patients may be admitted to all the hospitals, every effort is made to prevent pauperization, each individual if able, being expected to meet the nominal rates in force.

In addition to the work of its own group, the Washington University School of Medicine assumes professional responsibility for the care of one-third of the patients in the city's two general hospitals; nominates one-half the staff of the City Isolation Hospital and utilizes the City Sanitarium for Mental Diseases for instruction.

The School of Medicine Library contains about fifty thousand volumes and receives hundreds of periodicals. Valuable private collections too numerous to mention have been acquired. Five other libraries in St. Louis containing literature relating to medicine are available to students, and a loan service is maintained with various outside libraries, notably the John Crerar in Chicago and the Surgeon General in Washington.

The admission requirement to the School of Medicine in 1900, when Alpha Kappa Phi was installed, was graduation from high school or its equivalent or by special examination. In 1910 one year of college was added to the minimal requirement, which was increased to two years in 1912 and to three years in 1927. A college degree or four years of college work, except in cases with unusual aptitude as determined by applying the aptitude test of the Association of American Medical Colleges, became the requirement for entrance in 1931.

The present first year class is limited to eighty-two and, since the number of applicants considerably exceeds the number who can be accommodated, applicants are selected who, on the basis of scholarship and other qualities, appear best fitted for the profession of medicine. The aptitude test is required of all applicants except such as are specifically excused by the school.

THE CHAPTER

Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity, a local organization in the Missouri Medical College, was formed on February 15, 1898, "the same day that the U. S. S. Maine was blown up." The founders were a group of six students, Adrian S. Bleyer, Oliver H. Campbell, John Randolph Graham, William Henry Horine, Francis A. Lane and Selden Spencer; the place, a third-story back room in a boarding house at 2912 Washington Avenue, St. Louis.

Faculty men taken in as honorary members lent valuable aid, notably Judge Selden P. Spencer, in drafting the constitution, by-laws and ritual. Alpha Kappa Phi was an active group, well organized when in 1900 Missouri Medical College merged with the Medical School of Washington University. The feeling of expansion and enthusiasm everywhere felt brought a desire in Alpha Kappa Phi for a national fraternity connection. Upon thoughtful consideration Nu Sigma Nu became the choice. "After some correspondence and a visit to Grand Galen Walter by one of our brothers, in which manner we succeeded in explaining who and what we were, we were favorably looked upon" and Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity became Pi (Alpha Kappa Phi) Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu, on February 25, 1900, with twenty-two charter members, Will Walter, Alpha, '91, officiating. In addition to the original six named above, they were: Gallagher, Drake, Grim, Miller, Bohn, Cummings, Wichman, Wise and Gardner of the class of '01; Brown, Apperson, Whelpley, Walker and Irwin of the class of '02; Simon, '99, and H. N. Spencer of the faculty.

According to our latest information about these men,

Gallagher is now in Rossford, Ohio; Drake in Spokane, Washington; Grim in Kirksville, Missouri; Brown in Hillsboro, Illinois; Apperson in Denver, Colorado; Bohn in Tacoma, Washington; Whelpley in Goldsboro, North Carolina; Walker in Newport, Arkansas; Irwin in St. Augustine, Florida; Gardner in Orleans, Nebraska; Graham in New York City; Selden Spencer, Bleyer, Campbell, Miller, Wichman and Simon in St. Louis. Cummings, now in Emmett, Idaho, and Wise were graduated elsewhere. H. N. Spencer died in 1917, Lane in 1918, and Horine in 1924.

In 1901 the chapter located at 1008 Vandeventer Avenue, where regular weekly meetings were held and the nucleus of a library was acquired through the generosity of Joseph Grindon of the faculty. Already the membership included thirteen faculty men whose advice, help and good will were much valued. So rapid was its growth that Alpha Kappa Phi's membership was doubled in the next two years; from a struggling beginning it had become one of the most exclusive and powerful fraternities in the University by 1903, with an enrollment of eighty-one.

During this period, the Nu Sigs showed particular prowess in athletics, claiming in 1903 three of the last four captains of the football teams, other fellows winning the coveted "W" and an Alumnus being athletic manager.

Alpha Kappa Phi had a fairly steady growth although, following each increase in entrance requirements, first year registration fell to a low point. In 1910, following the two-year college requirement, the entering class consisted of only twelve men: in 1912, following a still higher increase in requirement, the first year class dropped to four. To the fraternities this was a perilous condition, compensated for only through increased registration in the other classes. On the whole the prospects were bright for school and fraternity, with the acquisition of new buildings, valuable additions to the faculty and better prepared entering men. Alpha Kappa Phi reported a period of successful growth paralleling that of the school.

Many war enlistments drew heavily on the chapter membership. On the staff of Base Hospital No. 21 stationed at Rouen, France, Alpha Kappa Phi had five majors and three lieutenants. Four '18 seniors, McKee, Padgett, Mitchell, Lueking, who enlisted in 1917, received their degrees and their commissions simultaneously on the battle front in 1918.

The Bulletin of 1919 contains a list of many Alumni who won distinction in service, notable among whom were Colonels Williamson, '97, Murphy, '01, and Allison, '01; Lieutenant-Colonels Ravold, '81, Crossen, '92, Morfit, '95, Clopton, '97, and Campbell, '99; Lieutenant-Commanders Kress and McAmis, both '05.

Murphy was chief of American Red Cross Hospitals in France and Allison was chief Orthopedic Surgeon, A. E. F.

The Army established schools for the officers of the Medical Reserve Corps at Washington University which brought many pleasurable contacts with Nu Sigs from all over the country.

Though the S. A. T. C. was established at the Medical School it was so efficiently organized by Lieutenant Hanley of the University of Minnesota, who was in command, that none of the regular medical work was interfered with. All told the experience was a pleasant one, the efficient functioning of the unit being largely due to the efforts of two Alpha Kappa Phis, Supply Sergeant Wander and Company Clerk Hashinger.

For several years Alpha Kappa Phi maintained chapter rooms where weekly meetings were held; in 1903 "for the past three years in the Jefferson Avenue Building," in 1907 in the Marina Building on Grand and Lindel Avenues.

Throughout the early years, and until its purpose was accomplished, an enthusiastic Alumni Club led by Selden Spencer worked faithfully to collect funds for a house. Meanwhile the ways and means of getting together frequently were weekly dinners, smokers at various times in down-town hotels, and social and business meetings in the homes of actives living in St. Louis. For some time the annual banquet in the spring was about the only formal social event. The 1917 Historian writes: "We rather surprised all of our friends by giving a dance, something the chapter had not attempted for many years. The experience was such a pronounced success that we intend to give another this year." Subsequent chapter letters bear witness that events of this kind found frequent repetition.

DOCTOR DOCK

From 1910 when Alpha Kappa Phi had given up its then chapter house, the "new house proposition" had been discussed pro and con each year, but with no definite result, until 1919 when a committee on "Ways and Means" was appointed. Under the guidance of George Dock, Alpha, '84, then of the faculty, subscriptions were solicited from alumni, faculty and actives, the results augmenting the house fund to allow the painting and furnishing of a commodious and attractive house. This was located at 4922 Forest Park Boulevard, only two blocks from the medical school. It was a great disappointment that the sale of this house the following year forced Alpha Kappa Phi to vacate. Due to acute housing shortage at the time, the furnishings had to be stored while a search for another house was carried on. During the Christmas holidays a thirteen-room house was secured at 5065 Waterman Avenue.

Through the efforts particularly of two loyal faculty Nu Sigs, Clopton, '97, and Stewart, Lambda, '14, a three-year loan was secured from local alumni to lessen the burden of the men then in the chapter. To amortize the loan ten five-dollar notes were to be signed at the final meeting by each outgoing senior. So many men left without signing, however, that a new rule was made, requiring every man on the date of his initiation to sign five ten-dollar notes, payable with interest one each year. This was part of an efficient system of management which kept Alpha Kappa Phi out of financial difficulties in running their house.

A new and beautiful home, well adapted for chapter use and nearer the school, was leased in 1922, at 4339 Forest Park Boulevard. Here Alpha Kappa Phi lived for five years, plans and hopes for a permanent chapter house being repeatedly deferred until 1927.

Due in great measure to the work of Wilson, '27, and particularly to the generosity of Faculty Alumnus Arbuckle, '09, who purchased the property and arranged a sinking fund whereby the chapter would ultimately become the owner, a permanent home was acquired at 4543 Forest Park Boulevard. A house-warming shower tea held on December 12, 1927, to show the new home to alumni, was a decided success. Alpha Kappa Phi's gratitude to Alumnus Arbuckle for his support, financial and in every other possible manner, is expressed repeatedly. Many other alumni by contributing furnishings and books, added to the comfort of the men. At this time seventeen residents and a total of forty-three actives enjoyed the privileges of the new home: in 1932 the Active Roll numbered fifty.

Due to the skill and splendid efforts of Edward Carman, '31, the house was beautifully redecorated in the summers of '30 and '31.

In the selection of capable men, Alpha Kappa Phi has always exercised the greatest care; to further insure making the best choice among the prospective candidates the chapter in 1919 was "still working towards the establishment of a Medical Pan Hellenic Council at Washington University, with a view to restricting pledging of new men until they have served at least one trimester in the Medical School." The Medical Pan Hellenic Council became a reality in 1924, with its first president a Nu Sigma Nu.

With the aid of Alumni and of Nu Sigs in sister chapters who recommended good men, with intense co-operative effort within the chapter whereby the personality and capabilities of each prospective member were studied and analyzed, and with gradually increasing enrollment in the school, Alpha Kappa Phi has quite uniformly secured men who promise to be worthy of the profession and of Nu Sigma Nu. Before pledges are initiated, they must meet the requirements both of the school and of the chapter.

Numerous honors, prizes and special distinctions have been gained by Alpha Kappa Phi. Election to Alpha Omega Alpha, to Sigma Xi, to fellowships and scholarships, attainment of the highest scholastic standing in the various classes and other rewards for accomplishment, have been of frequent and regular occurrence.

According to Colgate, '24, the honor system was started and attended with success, and student body government was established during his membership. Nu Sigs were prominent in both these ventures.

In 1925 the Washington University R. O. T. C. Unit, of which J. R. Hall, Captain, M. C., U. S. A., (an Alpha Kappa Phi) was in charge, won the silver loving cup at Fort Snelling presented by the Mayo Foundation for efficiency in Military Hygiene. Again in 1928 the same unit succeeded in winning this cup and also the one offered for excellence in military drill and discipline.

In extra-curricular activities such as the Student Body, the Student Council, the Glee Club, the Pan-Hellenic Council, the Nu Sigs have continuously been well represented.

The Pan-Hellenic Council has continued to function efficiently in promoting inter-fraternity good fellowship and in helping to insure the pledging of good men.

Nor did the Council lose sight of the social side, for we find that it has sponsored dances, the one in 1925 described as "the peak of the social activity for the year."

Always at the annual spring banquet it is intended to have as the speaker some Nu Sigma Nu who has gained national recognition. Of outstanding interest have been the 1922 event, when Alumni Allison, Graham and Dock arranged a clinic, in connection wherewith Bertram Sippy of Kappa talked on gastric ulcer; the 1928 banquet, before which William J. Mayo spoke on "The Early History of the Fraternity"; and the very successful 1932 banquet with 250 Alumni and Actives present, when Irons, Kappa, '03, gave the principal address.

Of late years, the practice of having bi-monthly dinners at which one or more faculty members give informal talks, has been introduced.

Among many interesting events in Alpha Kappa Phi's history the twenty-second National Convention held in St. Louis on November 28, 29, 1924, was of outstanding importance.

Historian Theodore H. Hanser won for Alpha Kappa Phi the Tiffany Bulletin Trophy for the best chapter letter submitted for publication in the 1921 Bulletin.

Two Nu Sigma Nu men from the School of Medicine have served on the councils of the general fraternity. Herman Tuholske, Alpha Kappa Phi, was Honorary Sydenham 1904-1906. Dr. Tuholske joined Omega in 1922. Drew W. Luten from Beta Beta, '11, who became a member of Washington University Medical Faculty in 1922, and whose unflinching interest and helpful activity in the local chapter has been frequently and gratefully acknowledged, served from 1919 through 1932 on the Executive Council, and with distinction. He was president of that body 1922-1924.

Acknowledgment of contributions to the history of Rho and of Jefferson is made in the running text. Charter Alumnus R. A. Stewart in a letter enlightened us on the "ceremonies" attending the chapter installation. Most of the story, however, has been abstracted from annual bulletins. From Historian Robert Kemble (1930) we get something of the history and much of the early atmosphere of Jefferson.

THE SCHOOL

Jefferson Medical College was organized in 1825 as the Medical Department of Jefferson College of Canonsburg, Pennsylvania. The first class was graduated in 1826; in each of the subsequent 105 years other classes have received the medical degree—the graduates, including those of 1930, numbering 15,333. In 1838 the Legislature of Pennsylvania conferred upon this institution a separate University Charter, making it an independent corporation, "with the same powers and restrictions as the University of Pennsylvania." A perpetual Board of Trustees administers the educational and financial interests of the college.

The Jefferson Medical College Hospital was opened in 1907 under the management of the Board of Trustees of the College, with the staff composed of members of the faculty. By this arrangement the work is correlated between hospital and college in a manner not possible for two institutions under separate management.

In 1910 one of the trustees of the college, Daniel M. Baugh, presented to the Medical School the building formerly occupied by the Philadelphia College of Dental Surgery, after having remodeled and equipped it for occupancy by the School of Anatomy. In 1914 Mr. Baugh provided for a departmental library which was supplemented in 1928 by the Clarence Hoffman Library Fund.

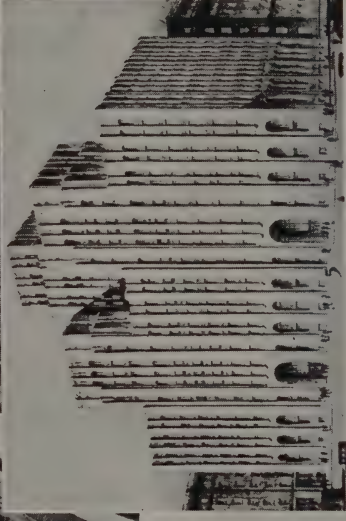

The centennial celebration of the Jefferson Medical College was celebrated in 1925. A fitting memorial to this occasion was the completion of the Thompson Annex to the Jefferson Hospital which greatly enlarged the facilities of school and hospital.

In 1930, when the opening of the new College Building marked "the greatest progressive step in the history of Jefferson," Historian Robert P. Kemble gave an interesting picture of past and present in the 1930 chapter letter from which we have adapted and quoted at length.

"On 518 and 520 Locust Street stood the original Jefferson Medical College. Directly across the street was the Walnut Street Prison for criminals and debtors, and an interesting rule of that establishment was that the yard must be 'Kept free from cows, hogs, dogs, and fowl.' On the east of the College was the burial ground of the Free Quakers; to the west was Washington Square, then used as the Potter's Field. Directly back of the College was a popular ale-house, and within a block or so were several churches. As Dr. John Chalmers DaCosta so admirably describes it, 'There were crime and misery in front, death on either side, and consolation in the rear.'

"In 1828 the College moved to Tenth Street below Sansom. It was here that the illustrious Samuel D. Gross had entered as a student, and George McClellan, Professor of Surgery, inaugurated teaching by public clinics, that is, by bringing cases before the students in the college lecture room.

"As we watch the Old College being demolished, we inwardly feel a great pride to have been in the old brown stone building with the dark class rooms, hard benches and iron stairs. To us who have studied there, there comes a wave of determination such as inspired the elder Gross. It is with great admiration and the highest respect for those who have gone before that we now enter upon our duties in the New College.

"Dean Ross V. Patterson and Dr. Randle C. Rosenberger, '94, were on the Building Committee, and it was through their efforts as well as others that Jefferson has now this up-to-date Medical College, a handsome twelve-story building, completely equipped; a most fitting structure, worthy of the men who have brought Jefferson to its present status. Dr. Rosen-berger proclaims it, 'The realization of a dream come true, in the occupancy of an entirely new College; the third one in which I have had the honor and pleasure of teaching hundreds of men something about medicine.' "

The dedication of the New College took place February 22, 1930. The dedicatory address was delivered by the grandson of the founder, Professor George B. McClellan of Princeton University.

On the site of the Old College a new out-patient department, The Curtis Clinic, has been constructed. It adjoins the new College, and will permit great expansion in opportunities for out-patient work and teaching.

In order to further the investigation of cancer and its treatment, a Tumor Clinic has been founded with funds donated through the generosity of Pierre and Lamont Dupont.

The Department of Experimental Medicine was established in 1930 by a gift of $100,000 contributed by the Alumni Association, created as a memorial to John Chalmers DaCosta, class of 1885.

"The Samuel W. Gross Lectures on Tumors" is a memorial lectureship established through a bequest by Lady Osler, named to honor the memory of the great Professor Gross of Jefferson.

Other memorial fellowships, scholarships and professorships, too numerous to mention, have been established.

Matriculation to the medical course is limited to men only. Three years of college work, including specified basic sciences and laboratory courses, constitutes the present entrance requirements.

THE CHAPTER

When Nu Sigma Nu established Rho Chapter at Jefferson Medical College in 1900, medical fraternities were in their infancy, their place having been taken previous to 1899 by medical societies, usually named for some faculty professor. In 1899 Phi Alpha Sigma entered the field, followed early in the next year by Alpha Kappa Kappa and then Nu Sigma Nu.

ROSENBERGER

The installation of Rho Chapter took place in the Lambda Chapter house in a University of Pennsylvania dormitory on March 15, 1900, with James T. Christison and Will Walter, President and Secretary of the Executive Council, officiating, assisted by Lambda Chapter. Of the ten petitioners who became charter members, three were of the faculty, namely, Albert P. Brubaker, Randle C. Rosenberger and Charles A. Harbaugh. The seven undergraduates were G. C. Kieffer, T. W. Powers, R. A. Stewart, J. A. Topper, Arnold Stovall, L. G. Musser and Leslie McFall. On the same night that the charter group was installed, D. G. Metheney of the faculty and J. B. Jones, '03, were initiated. F. W. Langstroth, of Xi Chapter, who had been instrumental in securing a charter at Jefferson, was immediately affiliated with Rho. Thus the Chapter was launched with four faculty members in addition to nine undergraduates.

R. A. Stewart, one of the charter members recalling Rho's day of installation, wrote in a recent letter: "About noon of that day Powers, Musser, Stovall and I were ordered to Bryn Mawr to act as waiters at the hotel. The ground was covered with a foot of snow, and our evening clothes were none too warm. When we reached Bryn Mawr College one of the instructors who knew Arnold Stovall asked him in, while we stood outside freezing. Finally, he came to say that there was no hotel in Bryn Mawr and that we might as well get back on the train and return to Philadelphia. There we found instructions to go to the Lambda house. Arriving there, we found that John Topper had been shining shoes and playing poker with the Lambda men the whole afternoon and had done very nicely. Considerable horse play had been planned, but the Lambda men were advised that they were to install us, not initiate us, and so we were duly installed."

According to Topper, writing the Bulletin letter in 1901: "The most stormy day of the year saw fit to grace the occasion. During the day we did 'stunts,' which were so kindly suggested by the members of Lambda, the installing chapter. As a fitting closure to the 'stunts,' we were told to be at a certain corner in West Philadelphia at 7:30 p. m., and to await their representative. We were there promptly and, after an hour's wait in the storm, their representatives appeared and escorted us to their hall where we found our faculty members and the installing officers awaiting us.

"Here were imparted to us, in a most impressive manner, the mysteries of Nu Sigma Nu. After the ceremony refreshments were served, and at a late hour we recrossed the Schuylkill River thoroughly alive to the responsibilities that confronted us in maintaining in Jefferson a chapter of the greatest medical fraternity in the world."

A prime mover and spirited worker toward establishing a chapter of Nu Sigma Nu at Jefferson had been Leslie McFall of Mattoon, Illinois. Rho suffered a severe loss in his untimely death which came during the summer vacation of 1901.

Dr. Brubaker is now Emeritus Professor of Physiology and Medical Jurisprudence and Dr. Rosenberger is Professor of Preventive Medicine and Bacteriology at Jefferson. Dr. Harbaugh is Chief Examiner for the Philadelphia Life Insurance Company. Dr. D. G. Metheney, the first faculty initiate, died in 1924. Dr. G. C. Kieffer is practicing in Philadelphia; Dr. Topper, Lieutenant U. S. N., is in the Surgeon-General's office in Washington. Dr. Stewart is Superintendent of the State Hospital at Independence, Iowa. The addresses of Powers and Musser are unknown. Langstroth (affiliated from Xi) is in Danbury, Connecticut. Jones died in 1926. Stovall left school at the end of the first semester and is no longer a member.

Among noted early initiates of Rho (1903) was Captain C. F. Kieffer, U. S. A. then stationed in Philadelphia and Professor of Tropical Diseases at Jefferson. Kieffer died in 1908.

Early chapter meetings with entertainment and refreshments were held in a room in the Odd Fellows Temple. Here plans were formulated for a house when membership justified. During the summer of 1904, the long contemplated chapter house was secured. Historian Foss in 1907 wrote of this house that: "Furniture appeared, the gift of the faculty members. A piano arrived, and a tremendous fern (with linoleum leaves painted green and carefully varnished), which was faithfully watered for some weeks by a dutiful maid. Dishes and silver came, and finally a bulldog. This house, situated at 1007 Spruce Street, was ours but two short years, but they were memorable in the history of the Chapter; the days spent there will always remain happy memories in the lives of the men of that time."

Meetings were again held at the Odd Fellows Temple until another house was secured in 1907 at 919 Spruce Street; this, though "unsurpassed by any fraternity house in the city," was given up after a year's time. In 1910 a house at 1108 Pine Street was taken; here a matron had charge of the table, the men paying her weekly board. This system, proving unprofitable, was superseded by that of having one of the men act as steward, a more satisfactory arrangement. This house was advantageously near the college, "in the residential section of the 'upper classes,'" and here Rho's home continued until 1922 when the expiration of the lease forced the issue with regard to a chapter-owned house. Alumni and actives joined in a subscription campaign under the leadership of Faculty Alumnus W. J. Thudium, to whose efforts was greatly due the success of what seemed an insurmountable task. Every alumnus was canvassed and responded almost to a man. With the additional help of large loans made by Alumni Wheeling and Righter the coveted goal was reached and a fine new home bought at 1106 Spruce Street for $29,000. Through the efforts of the actives and the generosity of the alumni this house had been gradually furnished and decorated and now is exceptionally well equipped. In 1928 a grand piano, in 1929 a basement recreation room were added. Rho's informal social affairs are held in the house and it functions as headquarters for the alumni as well.

A change in the house management was made in 1930, a competent man being hired as house manager, a position which had been found to entail more work than a brother could accomplish and maintain his scholastic standing.

In purchasing the new house, a plan of payment was adopted which has met with admirable success. The revenue from the table paid the taxes, the income from the house met running expenses, building and loan payments and the interest on the mortgage. The mortgage is held by the Alumni Association and has been gradually reduced through contributions from alumni and actives.

Rho's social activities include many informal affairs at the chapter house, occasional formals at down-town hotels or clubs and many other events. A novel annual feature has been the "Osteology Hop." "On completing their intensive two-weeks in osteology, the freshmen pledges were feted amid surroundings of shafts of long bones, skulls and gravestones with unique epitaphs marking the graves of the occupants." In 1933 we learn that "they have discontinued this nightmare of a course." A dance in the fraternity house with autumn leaf decorations was the substitute for the "Hop."

BRUBAKER

The Alumni banquet was established as an annual affair in 1922. Of outstanding interest was the one held in 1930 when Emeritus Professor "Albert P. Brubaker honored us, and his keen wit and jolly smile enlivened the occasion." Dr. Brubaker's wide interests have taken him far afield, and among his many non-medical offices are those of Curator of the American Philosophical Society and President of the Ethical Culture Society.

At these various gatherings Dr. Randle C. Rosenberger has nearly always been present to lend interest with his wit and wisdom. The most cherished and happiest of annual events is the week-end just before final examinations which the whole active chapter spends at his country home at Rahns, Pennsylvania. Dr. Rosenberger's efforts for the welfare of the chapter have been untiring; his personal interest and loyalty to the brothers have won for him a name inseparably linked with the history and the success of the chapter. Every Bulletin letter bears witness to the affectionate regard in which he is held by all Rho men. At the Nineteenth Convention Dr. Rosenberger was elected to office on the Honorary Council, 1914-16.

The class of 1928 presented the College with a portrait of Dr. Rosenberger which is hung in the Auditorium.

In recognition of long and valuable service to Jefferson, the 1932 seniors dedicated their year book the "Clinic" in honor of H. E. Radasch, Rho, '01.

The establishment of the Pan-Hellenic Council of Fraternities in the year 1917-18 brought about a marked change in rushing and pledging rules. A smoker date was assigned each fraternity on which date no other fraternity could entertain a non-fraternity man. In addition, war conditions at this time and the fact that two years of college had just become the entrance requirement limited the field for pledging, but in spite of these restrictions Rho continued to secure her quota of able men.

The Chapter's response to war conditions are mentioned briefly by the 1919 Historian: "The influenza epidemic played its share of havoc in Philadelphia and the members of the senior class responded nobly in helping to stamp it out. School duties were laid aside for a month and all attention was turned toward those who were suffering.

"On November 1, with the exception of three or four men who were physically unfit, the entire student body of Jefferson was inducted into the Students' Army Training Corps. Needless to say, military work and medicine were as incompatible here as elsewhere and our work suffered considerably while rendering this slight service to our country."

We gratefully acknowledge a letter with the story of the formative period of Sigma from Charter Member George I. Bauman, and one from Harold N. Cole, '09, describing the chapter's living conditions during his period. Otherwise the history has been culled from school and fraternity bulletins.

Our thanks are due Faculty Alumnus Torald Sollmann for the final reading of the manuscript and for checking the data in the school history.

DEAN SOLLMANN

Western Reserve University originated as an educational foundation in Western Reserve of Connecticut to which the name of Western Reserve College was given. It was chartered in 1826 and located at Hudson, Ohio. The school of medicine of Western Reserve University came up through the Cleveland School of Medicine organized in 1843 and joining Western Reserve College in 1844. In 1882 Western Reserve College was moved to Cleveland and the name changed to Adelbert College. Two years later the Western Reserve University was incorporated, taking over Adelbert as one of its colleges and its school of medicine "as the first school in the new university."

The first faculty contained the names of men widely known in medicine, headed by John Delamater, the first dean, and Jared Potter Kirtland, a scientist of international repute. Several of the men had previously been on the faculty of a medical college founded in 1834 at Willoughby, Ohio.

All colleges and schools of the University, except Cleveland College, are located in the eastern section of the city on land lying on both sides of Euclid Avenue immediately adjoining the boulevard and park system of the city.

The School of Medicine of Western Reserve as now constituted is the legal successor of all the regular medical schools that have existed from time to time in Cleveland including the above named Cleveland Medical College, the Charity Hospital Medical College, (later the Medical Department of Wooster University) and the Medical Department of Ohio Wesleyan University. The school has given ninety annual courses of instruction, issuing diplomas to 3309 in course in addition to 127 honorary degrees before 1885 and 1218 diplomas issued by the other schools in course before consolidation in 1910.

The latest catalog discloses a list of forty-two on the voting faculty and in addition a teaching corps of 193.

The first building, erected in 1846, at the corner of St. Clair Avenue and Erie Street, now East Ninth Street, was occupied until 1886, when the Perry Payne family gave additions to the site on East Ninth Street, on which Mr. John L. Woods erected a substantial stone building for the school, and for the maintenance of which he created an endowment fund.

When the developments of medical science made this building inadequate and accentuated the importance of close physical proximity to other departments of the University, there evolved the conception of a University Medical Center, situated on the University campus and including the School of Medicine, a group of University hospitals and clinics, and the schools of the allied professions. In 1915 a site of approximately twenty acres was secured for this Medical Center. Through the generosity of Mr. Samuel Mather a large building for the pre-clinical sciences, designed and equipped for research as well as teaching, was erected on this location and occupied in 1924. The Babies' and Children's Hospital and the Maternity Hospital, built by public subscription, were opened in 1925. The Allen Memorial Medical Library of the Cleveland Medical Library Association, a separate but co-operating institution, housing also the Academy of Medicine of Cleveland and the Cuyahoga Medical Society, was opened in 1926. The Institute of Pathology, a gift of the General Education Board to the University, which joins the routine and investigative activities of the University Hospitals in pathology with the teaching and investigative activities of the University, was dedicated in October, 1929. Public subscriptions provided for new buildings for Lakeside Hospital, which had been affiliated with the school since 1892 when the hospital first assumed its present name. The completed Lakeside Hospital and the dispensary have been in operation since February, 1931. The new buildings for Rainbow Hospital for crippled and convalescent children, another unit of the University Hospitals built by public subscription, was opened in 1928 in a suburban location.

The affiliation with Charity Hospital also began with the foundation of the hospital in 1864. In 1878 the Western Reserve School of Medicine was accorded joint clinical privileges at Charity Hospital, and in 1884, the exclusive privileges. The connection with the Cleveland City Hospital began in 1867.

The Babies' and Children's, the Lakeside, Maternity and Rainbow Hospitals for crippled and convalescent children, are organized under the name of The University Hospitals of Cleveland. The Out-patient Department of Western Reserve University and University Hospitals is located at 2065 Abington Road. Adding to these the Charity and the Cleveland City Hospitals, there are altogether 2400 beds and over 40,000 dispensary patients annually available for teaching purposes. This is in strong contrast to the year of the institution of Sigma Chapter (1900) when hospital facilities were limited to the Lakeside Hospital of 1895 on the shore of Lake Erie, St. Vincent's and its Maternity Department, and the Cleveland City Hospital, a total of approximately 600 beds, with one clinic a week for fourth year students at the Marine Hospital.

The requirement for entrance to the School of Medicine of Western Reserve University has been raised from a high school diploma or its equivalent in 1900 to three years pre-medical in 1901, to a college degree by the end of the first year of medicine in 1910, and at this time, graduation from an approved college or scientific school granting a bachelor's degree (or equivalent), following the completion of a course of at least three collegiate years. Admission to the School of Medicine is restricted, so that the number of students in the upper classes ordinarily will not materially exceed sixty. A somewhat greater number is admitted to the first class to allow for presumptive withdrawals. The selection is competitive, based upon evidence of scholarship and estimates of the desirability of the applicant as a member of the class and as a future physician. Applicants are required to take the aptitude test of the Association of American Medical Colleges, except where specifically excused by the school.

The school is private in nature, being supported largely by endowment and special contributions. The income from tuition and fees covers but a minor part of the current budget.

In 1900 there were 136 students and a staff of forty-six—a staff to student percentage of thirty-four, as against ninety percent at this time.

THE CHAPTER

In a recent communication, George I. Bauman, a charter member, has given us his recollections of the events and conditions which led to the founding of Nu Sigma Nu. From this source such excerpts have been made as seem pertinent to this story.

“In 1900 Reserve was a well established medical school with an excellent national reputation. Nu Sigma Nu was a national medical fraternity of eighteen years standing and also of excellent national reputation. No chapter of this nor any other fraternity had ever been established in Western Reserve University Medical School. The school contained no club or other organization to care for or improve the social activities of a body of active young men.

“A few years previously a group had petitioned Nu Sigma Nu for a chapter. The rumor was that they had entrusted this petition to a few convivial members of their group who carried it in person to Detroit or Ann Arbor—or somewhere; just where was not certain. According to report, conviviality was carried to such an extreme that the receiving committee or officials thought best to postpone at least temporarily the establishment of a chapter in Western Reserve University. There is no proof that any of these bibulous individuals became members of the group whose names were later recorded as charter members.

“Through the interest of an intimate friend of Paul Carlisle’s and mine who was so certain that no national medical fraternity could compare with Nu Sigma Nu that he assumed the role of advocate and sponsor for this fraternity and even probed the sentiments of one or two officers of the national organization toward granting a chapter to our group, the investigating committee was finally convinced that Nu Sigma Nu should be the fraternity of choice.

"After many conferences, usually headed by Paul Carlisle, the meeting of March 24, 1900, was called and the petitioning body organized, consisting of fifteen men of meticulous behavior, backed by eleven faculty men. The petition having been favorably acted upon, the installation banquet was held at the Colonial Hotel April 4, 1900, with Dr. Thaddeus Walker, G. M. officiating and Dr. A. L. Tintsman of Delta assisting. The profound and perplexing questions propounded to us all by the Most Worthy Aesculapius were just as poorly answered by the faculty as by the student initiates. In spite of our halting and faulty answers we were all passed."

DOCTOR ROBB

The undergraduate charter members were: William H. Phillips, Edwin A. Weeks, Paul P. Carlisle, John Dickenson, Jr., Charles Vasey, Edward M. Ickes, Clarence D. Selby, Charles V. Garver, J. Browner Austin, John H. Weber, Nathaniel M. Jones, Jr., John F. Lindsay, Carlos E. Pitkin, George Bauman, John A. Sipher. Associated with them in their application were the following members of the faculty: John H. Lowman, Hunter Robb, William H. Humiston, Charles F. Hoover, Carl A. Hamann, George N. Stewart, Frank E. Bunts, William T. Howard, Jr., William R. Lincoln, John M. Ingersoll and William E. Bruner.

At a preliminary meeting on April 3, Paul Carlisle, who had been the most active in establishing Sigma Chapter, was elected its first president. His untimely death in the following year was a severe loss to the brothers.

Of the remaining charter members of the then undergraduate group, Pitkin and Dickenson are now on the Reserve medical faculty, Phillips, Vasey, Austin, Jones and Bauman are also in Cleveland; Weeks is in Akron; Ickes in Fremont; Selby in Toledo; Lindsay in Youngstown; Sipher in Norwalk, Ohio.

Of the original group of faculty initiates, Lincoln and Bruner are in Cleveland; Howard is in Baltimore; Robb in Burlington, New Jersey; Ingersoll in Miami and Humiston in Vero Beach, Florida. Lowman died in 1919, Hoover in 1927, Bunts in 1928, Hamann and Stewart in 1930 and Garver in 1932.

Because Western Reserve had raised its entrance requirements to three years of collegiate work as early as 1901, Sigma Chapter had her choice of well prepared entering men. With a strong membership and splendid faculty backing, Sigma's affairs were early in good running order. Meetings were held quite regularly, usually in some hotel room. The Stillman, which stood on the present site of the Statler, was the favorite for the first year or so. Many enjoyable evenings were spent also at the homes of various faculty members. By 1902, each member was required to present a paper on some assigned topic at the weekly meetings; faculty talks on medical ethics and kindred topics added to the interest. At this time Sigma occupied rooms at the Ellington.

From Harold N. Cole, '09, we have a lively description of the domestic life of the Sigma brothers during the next few years.

"Sigma Chapter first took a chapter house in 1905, an old tumble down affair next to the Garlock and Frazee Laundry. Any of the brothers who resided in this domicile at the time will remember their enjoyment when about five o'clock in the morning the horses were fed and the laundry wagons started work for the day. With all the clatter, the clamor, the smell of the horses and the smell of the laundry soap, it was an ideal place for a fraternity house. Nobody but medical students could have stayed there very long. In addition, the house had an old furnace, the smoke and odor from which permeated every corner of the building, mixing itself with the other smells. Coal smoke from outside sources added to the general sedimentary deposit.

"These unbearable conditions resulted in the demand for a change in 1906. After some consideration and hunting, the men stored their belongings until in the fall of that year they moved to Prospect Street, into the former home of Dr. C. A. Hamann. This was a great improvement over the old lodgings; this portion of Prospect Street being in a pleasant part of the city made us a nice home accommodating thirteen men. The house was hardly prepared for fraternity use, nevertheless our crowd seemed to be happy and we distributed ourselves so as to take up all the space.

"It was during these years that we had old Mary with us, the good old Irish soul who did our cooking and acted as a mother to everybody. What a pleasure it was to come back in the fall to find old Mary on the job. And how we enjoyed her cooking! She disappeared in 1908, and many of us have wondered what became of her.

"Another character in the chapter whom we all remember and whom we all enjoyed hearing in those good old days was old Dan. How many times actives and alumni gathered to listen to Dan give some of his inimitable shows!

"Our chapter was a happy family in those days, at the same time managing to get much work done. It was a rare year in which Sigma Chapter did not add two or three or more members to Alpha Omega Alpha. In one of two years, we had practically all the men who joined this scholarship fraternity."

Alumnus Cummer, '07, had it: "The chapter has high standing but no competition. It was almost moribund."

In 1910 the chapter was comfortably located in a ten-room house at 1762 East Twenty-Third Street, in an ideal location conveniently near Lakeside and St. Vincent's Hospitals. The house was filled with ten men in residence, three more as boarders, and town men for lunch about every day. At the meetings held every second Monday, in addition to the usual chapter business, a member of the faculty was invited to talk on some topic of interest. In this year only one meeting passed by without a faculty speaker.

A spacious new Nu Sigma Nu house affording quarters for eighteen fellows was acquired in 1912 at East Twenty-Third Street off Payne Avenue, in the middle of the "Payne Pastures." Here a large dining room proved convenient for banquets and smokers. A large supply of furniture purchased by the manager made the house attractive. To the efforts and business sagacity of brother Brigman who obtained the house on a five-year lease, the chapter owed its good fortune.

At the expiration of this lease, the house having become inadequate for chapter needs, Sigma moved in 1917 to 2343 East Fifty-Fifth Street to a house accommodating twenty-three men with living quarters. In 1923 another move took Sigma to a home at 1827 East Eighty-Second Street where, due mainly to the work of Actives MacLeod and McGaw, with alumni cooperation, an attractive home was provided. The group moved again in 1927, this time to 2060 East One-Hundredth Street, near enough to the new medical school so that noon meals could be served, which had been impossible in some of the previous locations due to greater distances. In 1930 the present Sigma home at 2121 Abington Road in the new university center district was secured. Meals are taken in a private dining room in the university dining hall directly across the street. The house, a large brick with colonnade and beautifully landscaped grounds, provides adequate and comfortable study and sleeping quarters, lounging and card rooms, and a place for holding smokers, dances and other functions.

The earliest records of Sigma's social activities testify to the generosity and helpfulness of her alumni in promoting and making interesting the various functions. As told by Carlos E. Pitkin in the 1901 chapter letter, "faculty and students were brought together by the kind invitation of Dr. Hunter Robb, to hold a meeting at his home, where they were delightfully entertained." At the first initiation banquet, the inner man having been satisfied, "Dr. Lincoln as toastmaster proceeded to dish up nourishment for the inmost man." Dr. Lowman spoke on Aesculapius, the Father of Medicine; Dr. Stewart with customary wit, discussed Benedict, the Married Man; Dr. Ingersoll, The Bachelor in Medicine. Edward Ickes responded for the chapter. At this time a literary and musical program followed business meetings.

Since this time and throughout Sigma's career her social functions have been too numerous to mention in detail. Faculty talks at meetings, banquets and smokers have offered much in wisdom, original thought and variety. In 1930 we find a Social Committee arranging Sigma's social program which includes annual events such as banquets, spring and fall dances and smokers, with added functions at the chapter house at various times. The pledges present an annual pledge theatrical.

In stimulating interest and promoting contact between alumni and actives, initiation banquets have been potent factors. As typical of these functions we submit the following from the 1930 and 1931 bulletins.

"At the initiation banquet in 1929 held at the Hollenden Hotel, G. I. Bauman presented H. N. Cole, Professor of Dermatology, who made the address of the evening, and also Torald Sollmann, P. E. Kellogg, and D. M. Short. As a token of regard and appreciation for a brother, teacher and physician, the active chapter presented Dean Torald Sollmann with a graduate badge. This was the second time Sigma had recognized one of her prominent alumni in this manner." The notable achievements of Brother Sollmann in his chosen field are known throughout the medical world, and his textbook on Pharmacology is a standard authority in all medical schools.

"At the 1930 initiation banquet held at the University Club, following other introductions and speeches, Dr. George Bauman gave the story of the founding of the chapter and Dean Torald Sollmann gave one of his favorite talks entitled 'Rags', made interesting by many humorous excerpts from ancient medical literature. We might add that the Dean is an inveterate collector of ancient medical works."

Although the war had scarcely any direct effect upon the active chapter, it wrought extensive changes in the faculty and the movements of the alumni. In the Lakeside Unit, Base No. 4, the first American medical unit to go to the theatre of war, over two-thirds of the staff officers were Nu Sigma Nu, many of whom were members of the teaching staff, so that the school suffered no little loss by their absence.

Practically all the students enlisted in the Enlisted Medical Reserve Corps. In October, 1918, this corps and all new students were inducted into the Student Army Training Corps, but since it was deemed inadvisable to quarter the members in barracks' boarding and rooming arrangements were unaffected. The three under classes had military drill as their schedules permitted, while the seniors substituted externe duty at the S. A. T. C. Hospital. All were paid off and discharged from the army on December 21.

In spite of extensive losses in the hospitals and teaching staff, this school suffered as little as any which was active in the service of the country.

In 1921 a Medical Reserve Corps Unit was established at Reserve under the supervision of Major T. L. Ferenbaugh, M.C., U. S. Army. These courses are given credit in the curriculum and at the end of a fourth year entitles the student to a commission in the Officers Reserve Corps of the Medical Units.

In an attempt to place Sigma's scholastic requirements on even a higher basis, it was decided in 1921 to postpone the annual initiation until after the complete reports for the first semester's work had been received. Sigma has carefully watched the progress of her pledges in their various courses in Medical School. The Scholarship Committee continues its policy of weekly symposiums in anatomy and chemistry in the hope that it will lighten the burden of the freshmen.

As a result of careful selection and systematic aid to neophytes, Sigma has maintained a scholastic standing which has brought her many honors, prizes, fellowships and desirable appointments. As an example of honors won for the chapter, we find in the 1930 letter that a Sigma man, H. A. Williams, attained the highest average in the Ohio State Medical examination, the Garvin prize, the first position in his class and election to Alpha Omega Alpha. In 1930 several undergraduates secured Crile fellowships and John Drake made the highest grade in his class, was elected to Alpha Omega Alpha and stood second in the state board.

Sigma has been honored with many faculty appointments, her Fratres in Facultate numbering forty-nine in 1932.

DOCTOR HAMANN

Dr. Hamann, a charter member of Sigma, was a member of the Honorary Council of Nu Sigma Nu. The departure of "The King," as he was known to the members of the medical profession and students, has brought a deep sense of loss to the fraternity, students, medical profession, and to former patients throughout the world. From a professorship in anatomy he became Dean of the Medical School in 1912, continuing until his resignation in 1929. He established the Hamann Museum of Anatomy and Anthropology which is world famous.

Western Reserve School of Medicine and Sigma Chapter lost an esteemed member in the death of George Neil Stewart. It was largely through his influence that Sigma Chapter was founded, and his name heads the list of those signing the charter. After extensive studies abroad he became Professor of Physiology and Histology at Western Reserve in 1894, remaining until 1902 when he accepted a similar post at the University of Chicago. In 1908 the H. K. Cushing Laboratory of Experimental Medicine was organized to bring about Dr. Stewart's return to Reserve. He remained director of this department until his death. Many honors came to Dr. Stewart for his distinguished work in experimental physiology. The most personal of these was on the occasion when Sigma Chapter at their annual banquet in 1930, presented him with the honorary alumni pin, bestowed upon faculty brothers whose accomplishments had been outstanding.

Sigma alumni who have served on the councils of the general fraternity are the following: Torald Sollmann who was the Seventh Honorary President, honored at the Seventeenth Convention in 1910; Carl A. Hamann who was elected to the Honorary Council at the Twenty-fifth Convention in 1910; Hunter Robb who served on the Executive Council 1904-06, and H. N. Cole 1916-19.

TAU

This history of Tau Chapter has been compiled mainly from the various Bulletin letters. We acknowledge gratefully the contribution of Dr. R. Knapp, Tau, '21, covering his years with the chapter—the war period.

For the final reading of the manuscript we are greatly indebted to Faculty Alumnus George Canby Robinson whose familiarity with the history of the school enables authoritative review.

DEAN ROBINSON

Cornell University Medical College has been in existence only since 1898—and in its present relation with New York Hospital, under the name of The New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College Association, only since 1927.

The college was established in New York City by the Board of Trustees of Cornell University on April 14, 1898, when they elected Dr. William M. Polk Director of the college and Dean of the Medical Faculty, and appointed a small faculty of six professors. The Medical College was made possible by the munificence of Colonel Oliver H. Payne, who provided funds for the erection of the first building and for several years for its support. Later he made generous provision for permanent endowment.

In October, 1898, instruction began in temporary quarters. As the Medical College had admitted a number of students with advanced standing, Cornell University granted the degree of Doctor of Medicine at the end of its first college year.

In order to link the Medical College in New York City with the University of which it was a part, instruction in the medical sciences was begun at Ithaca the same year that the Cornell Medical College came into being in New York City. The first two years of medical studies could then be pursued either at Ithaca or in New York, all students joining in New York City the last two years, mainly for clinical study. As it came to be felt that the medical students should come earlier into the atmosphere of clinical teaching, the plan providing instruction at Ithaca was changed in 1909, to allow only an optional first year of medical study at Ithaca.

From its foundation the avowed purpose of Cornell University Medical College has been two-fold: the development of physicians of the best type, and the extension of knowledge by means of research.

New York Hospital with which the college is associated, has an historical background of great interest. It was founded by Royal Charter on June 13, 1771, in the reign of King George III, and was the city's first hospital. The chapter historian for 1930 recites that "in this hospital, treatment was given American soldiers wounded in the bombardment of Manhattan by the British eight days after the Declaration of Independence. Here was administered the first treatment of mental cases in New York State (1792); here the first vaccination for small pox in America took place (1799); the first standard pharmacopoeia for the medical pharmaceutical profession of America was here devised (1816), and in 1832 one of the hospital staff doctors, Francis U. Johnson, led the attack against blood-letting for fever. Between 1818 and 1828, when typhus fever was epidemic, the hospital cared for nearly three thousand persons stricken with this disease. In 1832 it cooperated with the Board of Health in setting up special hospitals to deal with an outbreak of malignant cholera. When the plague of typhus returned in 1847, it cared for more than one thousand persons who fell prey to that disease.

"Many of the hospital's early patients were Continental soldiers. In 1812 it cared for a large number of the victims of that war."

For many years New York Hospital and the Medical College had been only partially affiliated, but in June, 1927, an agreement was entered into between Cornell University and New York Hospital by which the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical College Association was formed. To harmonize the interests of Hospital and of Medical College, a Joint Administrative Board was formed.

A group of buildings has been erected along the East River, covering three city blocks between Sixty-Eighth and Seventy-First Streets, fronting on New York Avenue and adjoining Rockefeller Institute. The new plant affords separate buildings for each department, with approximately one thousand hospital beds, arranged in clinical units. Mr. Payne Whitney made large bequests in order to make this medical center possible. The General Education Board also contributed largely to the University for this purpose. Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., Mr. J. P. Morgan and Mr. George F. Baker were also contributors to the New York Hospital at the time the Association was formed.

The college faculty and the hospital staff function jointly on a university basis, all under the directorship of Brother George Canby Robinson, Tau, '03, who has been in full charge of the project as director of the association since 1929.

The new plant was completed for the opening of the 1932 session.

Since 1907 a university degree has been required for admission except that men who have completed three years in university may combine their fourth year with the first year in medicine, receiving the bachelor's degree on the satisfactory completion of the first year medical work. The maximum number of students to the first year class is seventy-five and in order to better spread the advantages of the medical college, not more than five students are admitted to the first year class from any one college except from Cornell.

The students of the Cornell University Medical School have at their disposal the cases in one division of Bellevue Hospital. Still another contact is with Memorial Hospital which has been affiliated with the Cornell School since 1914— a research hospital made possible through the generosity of Dr. James Douglas, who provided endowment for the study and treatment of cancer and allied diseases. This work includes pathology, bacteriology, chemistry and biology, all under distinguished men. Other institutions affiliated for teaching are the Berwind Maternity Clinic, the Woman's Hospital, the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, St. Luke's, and Willard Parker.

From a modest beginning with a faculty of six, the college has grown to large proportions, having now a major faculty of 122 and a total teaching staff of 400.

THE CHAPTER

During the winters of 1899 and 1900 a few sophomores of Cornell Medical College at Ithaca decided to form a fraternity to promote closer friendship, both in student and after years, with the best men in their own and other colleges. After looking up the various medical fraternities they concluded that Nu Sigma Nu was their choice. An application for a charter was accepted by the Grand Council.

A dilemma presented itself because the work was divided between Ithaca and New York City. Since the full course could be, and the last two years had to be, taken in New York City, the chapter was located there with only a pledge society at Ithaca. A special constitution was therefore provided for them, expressing as the object of the society the selection and organization of men from the freshmen and sophomore classes at Ithaca in anticipation of full initiation in their junior year at New York City.

On June 15, 1900, Will Walter of Chicago, the then Galen, assisted by Dr. Ralph Hess, Xi, '97, installed Tau Chapter at the new Ithaca Hotel with the following as charter members: Veranus Alva Moore and Paul Richard Brown of the faculty, and undergraduates F. L. Everett, G. W. Bauder, B. H. Searing, J. K. Quigley, Amos Canfield, M. A. Losee, R. M. Brown and T. C. Pounds.

Our latest information on this first group is that Moore is still in Ithaca; Quigley is in Rochester, Searing in Newburgh and Losee in Livingstonville, New York; Canfield is in New York City and Everett in Springfield, Massachusetts. Pounds left college in 1901. Paul Brown died in 1907. Ralph M. Brown is chief of the Library and Archives Section of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, Washington, D. C. After one year of medical work, not finding it congenial, he returned to the Arts Course, graduating in 1901. Brother Brown has a warm place in his heart for Nu Sigma Nu, although his connection with the Fraternity was of short duration.

With no other medical fraternity there at the time, Nu Sigma Nu had the pick of the college. The first two years initiations were held at Ithaca. On these occasions fellows of the pledge society who were ready to enter the junior class in New York were given the full vows of Nu Sigma Nu. These initiations were followed by banquets which were singularly enjoyable.

Tau entered her fourth year well established in New York as a strong and prosperous chapter with a chapter roll of sixty.

Owing to the small number of men in each class brought about by increased entrance requirements the original pledge chapter (Tau Epsilon) was discontinued in 1910. No men were to be pledged until they had registered in the New York division. This was by agreement with Omicron Epsilon Phi, the only other pledge society, and left no medical fraternities in Ithaca.

When the New York Chapter began to function, rooms were rented jointly with Xi and these served as a meeting place for both chapters. In 1903, an apartment was taken in the Bennington at 242 East Twenty-seventh Street, also with Xi, which though small, was an ideal home for the sister chapters. Relations with Xi were productive of fraternal good feeling, the younger chapter receiving valuable assistance from the older.

DOCTOR DUNHAM

On April 18, 1903, at the Hotel Manhattan, Tau held her first New York banquet. Tau was honored by the presence of Dr. E. K. Dunham of Xi, then President of the Executive Council, and Dr. I. L. Hill, a Beta alumnus. Dr. Charles Loomis Dana presided as toastmaster, and no evening in the history of Tau is recalled with greater pleasure.

At a banquet for alumni and active members of Xi and Tau held in December, the first steps were taken toward the formation of an alumni club in New York City.

In 1912 Tau affiliated with the Students' Club, a branch of the New York Y. M. C. A. which several fraternities made their headquarters. This large house on Lexington Avenue with rooms for eighteen men, and board for fifty, was within a few blocks of the college. Twelve out of the eighteen roomers were Nu Sigma Nu and about thirty Tau and Xi men boarded there, a satisfactory arrangement in promoting acquaintance. Fraternity meetings were held in the room of Nugent and Rolph at the Students' Club.

At this time, social activities were mainly confined to rushing parties and a unique initiation party and banquet. At monthly dinner and business meetings, faculty men gave talks or active members discussed some subject of general interest.

The 1917 historian reports joint Nu Sigma Nu functions at the time. "We have had several successful smokers during the year (1916). One with Iota and Xi was unusually good, the entertainment being provided by talent from each of the three chapters. At another smoker we were entertained by the Mecca Club, a vocal and instrumental musical organization made up of Nu Sigs from Iota and Tau who are internes at New York Hospital.

The history of Tau Chapter in his, the war period, has been so interestingly written by Dwight E. Knapp, Tau '17, that we quote his letter almost in its entirety.

"The very special place of Nu Sigma Nu in Cornell during the war years, could hardly have been surpassed by its place in any other institution. Fraternity life, scant as it usually is in a professional school where there is no fraternity house, held a value that we failed to appreciate from our brief participation.

"Cornell Medical College is blessed (or cursed) with a completely dual first year at Ithaca and New York City. At Ithaca the medical students are largely from the Cornell undergraduates or graduate body and the background of university life carries them along in a familiar collegiate atmosphere. At New York there is a more professional atmosphere and with the scattered rooming arrangements and with the going to and fro life assumes a business rather than an academic attitude. There are also the more diverse attractions of a large city with the resulting lack of cohesion between class members. The natural difference in the attitude of the men of Ithaca and of New York City is also intensified by the differences of methods of instruction natural to the two corps of instructors. Generally men from outside colleges must cut their clothes to the style they find upon entering a medical school, but in New York the heterogeneous body of entrants determine their own style. Into this group the men from Ithaca are precipitated to begin their second year and they tend to segregation. The two sections develop arguments and antagonisms such as are common to over-grown children such as we are at this stage.

"In this situation were two unifying forces, the Y. M. C. A. Students' Club and Nu Sigma Nu. But Nu Sigma Nu was the potent factor, since the Y. M. C. A. was under war pressure, and changing neighborhood which had made for loss of the student prestige. The club vacated in 1920. The only other going fraternity had died when we entered and none was again organized until our senior year. Nu Sigma Nu, which had used the Students' Club building for its meetings, thrived even better under the pressure of close quarters in students' lodgings; when men use the same floor to sit on and hang their hats on there can be little enmity remaining. We literally did this for a year, and had the best gatherings of our four years. From this center which was at once a battleground and a friendly home, a spirit of unification was spread through the school, making both classes and clinics a pleasure. I do not deny that this would have come anyway, but came earlier and more strongly because of Nu Sigma Nu's presence.

"There are other side-lights, interesting only to that generation, such affairs as the raiding of our usual meeting place as a counterfeiter's den because of the blue lamp with daylight glass which was then a novelty. There were the raw meat dinners at Allaire's when we impressed our neophytes with our virility until the war caused a waning of the popularity of such an essentially German feast. Then there were chop house smokers, so called because we thought we got more food for the money under such a name; and once or twice a year invitations to join the dances which Iota held. Many of us really wanted to go but Iota always seemed to find nights when we were all busy. We regretted seeing so little of another chapter in the same city; but the National Convention of Nu Sigma Nu brought us together as it did all three chapters. We who were active at the time of the convention were given a vision of that fraternity feeling we should like to see generally manifested—a spirit that must come if the medical profession is to advance. It was a marvelous treat for us.

"During the war many of the men in the classes ahead of us were in active service. Our own class had reached the point where it was agony to hold on any longer. The war department had fed out small inducements now and then in the way of promises, and we were all convinced that we should stay at work to be of better service if the war lasted, but when finally we were all enlisted we had nearly reached the breaking point. For a brief period we drilled in front of the gas tanks on First Avenue every morning and did all the rest of our work until midnight. The two men who left (not Nu Sigma Nu) didn't get any service and we are now satisfied that we did right. I think if one of our group had broken all would have followed. In the other classes, some, especially the seniors, saw service. Those early morning drills will never be forgotten; with a major who wondered how intelligent mortals could leave their intelligence so completely in bed when they got out; with many men jumping and dodging the puddles, or stumbling over the cobbles; with left hand salutes and all the other rookies' tricks we were but beginning to smooth out when armistice day arrived, and that episode ended.

"Nu Sigma Nu is inseparably bound up with Cornell's progress, for many of the faculty are its honored members although none who are not already members may be elected from the faculty. This gives a faculty body, interested, but realizing that favoritism is not beneficial. This is a splendid attitude, although it occasionally cramps by preventing the election of those who might be active in the fraternity.

"The men of those years are now scattered to China, The Straits Settlements, India, and over the United States. The chief contact of several with the college is through the fraternity. It is still a force among us and I am satisfied that the friendly spirit is even stronger than many of the chapters of Nu Sigma Nu.

"We may summarize briefly by saying that the fraternity meant most to us in the years when it was most needed."

An interfraternity agreement in 1915 specified that rushing should be limited to one week during which each fraternity could have but one entertainment. Written invitations were to be sent out by all on a given date, asking replies in writing within a specified time. At no time either previous to or during rushing week were members of any fraternity allowed to approach new men, except at the entertainments. By these rules the objectionable features of the rushing system were believed to be eliminated.

It had been decided in 1919 that no man failing at the end of a year might repeat that year.

In 1920 when a ruling was passed by the college limiting the entering class to sixty, Tau Chapter incorporated a clause into the by-laws, the purpose of which was apparent:

"Article 1, Sec. 3: No candidate shall be initiated into the chapter until he has completed successfully the work of at least one year in Cornell University Medical College."

By this legislation the chapter insured the selection of men of scholastic ability as well as of character and personality. The objections to this regulation, that new men might think it unfraternal in spirit and therefore take offense, were controverted by the results of the first year of operation. Candidates accepted invitations eagerly and the record showed not a single turn-down. They got the spirit of the legislation and made themselves proficient so that they might be a credit to the fraternity. The effect was decidedly wholesome. Indirectly this plan had a tendency to raise the reputation of the fraternity above a competitive basis. Men were willing to hold off other invitations in the hope of being bid by Nu Sigma Nu.

Pledged candidates were invited to a social meeting once a month to get something of the spirit of Nu Sigma Nu, and to become acquainted with those who were to become their brothers.

Under the auspices of the Inter-collegiate Branch of the Y. M. C. A., the Medical Students' Club was reopened in 1921 in the block between Cornell and Bellevue Medical Colleges. The Y. M. C. A. hoped to make this the center for the social activities of medical students in that part of the city and to provide physical recreation to counteract the sedentary life otherwise imposed upon undergraduates in medicine.

In 1923 a house was rented for a time but was soon given up as impractical.

Though continually handicapped by the lack of a private home due to conditions in New York City, Tau has been compensated in other ways. The New York Nu Sigma Nu Alumni Association is among the largest and most active in the entire fraternity, and the social events in which alumni and actives join as well as the interfraternity social activities of Iota, Xi and Tau, are interesting and profitable diversions.

The annual banquet of the New York Nu Sigma Nu Alumni, arranged especially to acquaint the undergraduates with the New York Alumni, is always greatly enjoyed by those who go and, when the reports are brought back, lamented by those who did not.

The National Convention was the outstanding feature of 1919 for the New York Chapters. Tau shared with Xi, Iota, and the New York Alumni Association in providing entertainment for the visitors. Quoting the 1920 historian: "It was inspiring to have the convention here, to meet the officers, the many delegates, and to get their ideas. It resulted in the complete revision of the chapter by-laws and the alumni list."

Tau's most interesting and profitable social feature is the series of monthly dinners at which some faculty member is invited to speak. At the beginning of the school year each alumnus and active receives a card announcing speakers and subjects for the year. At times, the Columbia and Bellevue Chapters are invited to join in these meetings. Occasionally some fraternity member gives a brief talk on such topic as The History of Nu Sigma Nu, History of Tau Chapter, etc.

To illustrate the value of these meetings, we quote the speaker list from the 1923-24 program. "Dr. Harold C. Bailey, Medical Ethics; Dr. Charles L. Dana, Some Features of Medical History; Dr. David F. Barr, Medical Research; Dr. Charlton Wallace, Human Reconstruction; Dr. Charles R. Stockard, Biology in Medicine; Dr. Phillip M. Stimson, The Young Practitioner; Dr. Malcolm Goodridge, The Personal Equation in Medicine."

Cornell Medical College at present can give its students no opportunity to take part in the various college activities and athletics. Student organizations with the exception of the Phi Club, Journal Clubs and class organizations, do not exist. The Phi Club is a student-faculty organization, with the purpose of furthering the best interest of Cornell. Membership is elective and limited to thirty. Nu Sigma Nu has yearly been represented by a predominant number; in 1922, by eighteen.

The Journal Clubs are individual class organizations, with membership based on scholarship standing. The Vesalian Society is the aggregate of the Journal Clubs of the various classes. The clubs meet once a month for the presentation and discussion of current medical literature. The fourth year club has been augmented to include the whole class. In these clubs the Nu Sigs are always well represented.

In election to other honor societies such as Alpha Omega Alpha, Tau has fared well as also in receiving appointments to desirable internships in Bellevue and New York Hospitals.

A faculty ruling forbids the acceptance by any member of the faculty of a bid to an undergraduate fraternity. There are many who were initiated by Tau before this ruling was made or who have affiliated from other chapters so that at this time Tau has an outstanding faculty list of thirty.

In the councils of the fraternity Tau has had three distinguished representatives, namely; on the Honorary Council, Charles L. Dana, 1912-14; and George Canby Robinson, 1922-24. On the Executive Council A. T. Kerr served as Historian in 1902-04, as President in 1906-08, remaining on the Council thereafter continuously until 1915.

UPSILON AND PHI

JOINT INTRODUCTION

There has been but one birth of twins in the Nu Sigma Nu family in the half century and these were named Upsilon and Phi at the "bornin." Because they are twins and because I delivered and christened them I shall make an exception and indulge in personal reminiscences of the event, considering their conception, their development in embryo and their parturition jointly. The mother was Pi Sigma Tau, and Upsilon and Phi her only offsprings.

My memory of the installation is more vivid than that of any other associated with my many years of active service.

It has been said that in the normal and usual conditions of our lives, pain predominates to such an extent that our relatively rare experiences of pleasure stand out in memory. The craving of hunger makes notable the joy of dining; the ills of life the boon of restored health.

Upsilon and Phi were born in great travail; not the travail of parent but of doctor. Boarding the train at Chicago with a temperature, I crossed the continent in a semi-delirium, nursed and fed by a kindly porter, to be greeted at Oakland on the third evening by a hospitable committee who put me in a hotel bed. Sufficiently revived by morning, I rehearsed the ceremonies, installed the chapters in the afternoon and attended the formal banquet in the evening. Nearly every detail is still clear in memory except the speech I was reported to have made at the banquet. Of that I recall nothing except the faces at the table and the manifest enthusiasm. Never having succeeded in attempts at wit or humor on such occasions, it was a surprise to me to read in the history of the chapters published in 1901 the words of the historians: For Upsilon: "Dr. Walter spoke under trying circumstances, having almost lost his voice from the grippe and his enforced speaking at the installation in the afternoon, but his terse, witty speech made the hit of the evening." From Phi: "The only cloud that threatened to chill the enjoyment of the evening was the sickness of Dr. Walter; but even that was forced from our minds by the jovial doctor himself, who with his strong vein of dry humor and good fellowship, kept us laughing till we almost forgot his illness." Which seem to indicate that humorists must be more or less unconscious generally. Humor has been described as "a consciousness of the incongruities of life", and it has been said that "tragedy and comedy are ever close neighbors. It is ludicrous for a man to expend great effort to no purpose, it is likewise tragic. * Thus, while it is true that humor is a realization of incongruities, it is equally true that tragedy is born of the same purpose." To those boys what I said may have seemed comic; to me it was quite the reverse.

Memories of distress have long since faded, having been supplanted by a feeling of pride in the progress the twins have made, knowing too that I contributed my bit to their start. They soon took and have since held their places as outstanding chapters in the fraternity.

Upsilon and Phi were the only two chapters of a local fraternity known as Pi Sigma Tau, the first chapter of which had been organized in Cooper Medical College on March 8, 1893 by a group of ten students. The little fraternity had grown rapidly in numbers and influence aided by the association of faculty fellows in the persons of Drs. Stanley Stillmen, the surgeon, and William Ophuls, the pathologist, both of whom are now on the retired list of the faculty. Except for these two men the inception of a medical fraternity did not meet with much encouragement or aid from the school. The men nevertheless brought the society to such a position of influence that in due course a second chapter called Beta was founded at the medical school of the University of California. Both medical schools being in San Francisco, their relations were close and mutually advantageous so that, when developments made it desirable to affiliate with a national organization, cooperation was natural and easy, and both active and alumni fellows of Pi Sigma Tau joined in the petition to Nu Sigma Nu for charters.

At that time, as now, the rule was that when a local fraternity was absorbed, any alumnus could become a fellow of Nu Sigma Nu merely by taking the oath, paying his degree fee and obtaining a badge of the order. Of the original group of ten charter members of Pi Sigma Tau who took the oath, only one is now living namely, Dr. Oliver D. Hamlin, '94, who is in Oakland, California. The two others who joined were Bruce Foulkes and Joseph Mora Moss, both of whom have since passed to Omega. Brother Moss presided at the installation banquet in a memorable way, as I well recall.

September 7, 1900, was the date set for the installation, the home of Upsilon in Webster Street the place, and I was delegated by the Council to conduct the ceremony, with the assistance of a Delta brother then living at Oakland.

The two chapters were installed together up to the point of naming them, after which the officers of each were separately instituted. The proceedings closed with the above mentioned banquet which was held at the famous Poodle Dog restaurant. As the Upsilon historian wrote in 1907: "It was a veritable christening feast, the greatest enthusiasm prevailing; an event to be always remembered as one of the golden milestones in the history of Upsilon"; and the Phi historian: "Enthusiasm was unbounded, the hall rang with song and laughter and cheers for everything and everybody  till the very atmosphere trembled with the impulse of our voices."

Upsilon was installed with thirteen and Phi with eleven charter members, following which Upsilon initiated one fellow and took the oath of sixteen members of Pi Sigma Tau, making an initial group of thirty; Phi initiated three and took the oath of ten men for a total of twenty-four in their first chapter group.

Similarity in behaviour of identical twins is a subject which has interested investigators.

We shall see, as we read the stories of their individual growth from this point on, how strikingly similar have been the experiences of these brother chapters; how in like environment, though under different university control, they have attained equally high standing individually and collectively in their respective schools.

It has never been possible to use men from remote chapters on the active Councils of the fraternity since, for the sake of efficiency, officers on the Executive Council must be within easy reach. The fraternity has been proud to elect fellows of Upsilon and Phi to the Honorary Councils, each chapter having been recognized twice. Faculty Fellow W. W. Kerr of Phi was honored in 1916-19, Dr. W. I. Terry of Phi in 1922-24; Dr. A. L. Porter of Upsilon in 1928-30 and Dr. William Ophuls, of Upsilon, one of the six members of the present Honorary Council.

UPSILON

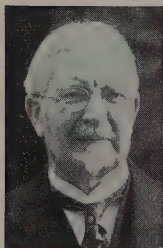

The material used herein for The School was derived in the main from the current Medical School bulletin and from Historian Jenkins, '33.

Charles Mooser, number one charter member, wrote a biographic account of the charter fellows as of January, 1930, which we have used and gratefully acknowledge. We thank Alumnus Donald Cass, 1917, for his account of the critical period of transition from Cooper to Stanford. The historians' contributions to the bulletins also deserve praise.

The history of Upsilon's beginning has been combined with that of Phi in a joint introduction, a story supplemented with personal reminiscences (vide supra).

DEAN OPHULS*

The first medical college on the Pacific Coast, the Medical Department of the University of the Pacific, was founded in 1858 in San Francisco by Dr. Elias Samuel Cooper. The college had a varied history, was even discontinued for a period of six years, until 1882, when it was reorganized by Dr. Levi Cooper Lane, and named in honor of his uncle, Dr. Elias Samuel Cooper. In this year Dr. Lane built the first of the present buildings with money earned by himself in his profession, on land donated by himself. Further gifts of Dr. Lane included an addition to the original building (1890), Lane Hospital (1894), the Lane Medical Lectureship (1896), and provision for a library building.

Under permission granted by Dr. Lane, the properties and equipment of Cooper Medical College were transferred to Stanford University in 1908, on the sole condition that a school for the training of students for the degree of Doctor of Medicine be maintained and that certain memorials of the founders be preserved.

*Deceased.

It was in Cooper Medical College therefore that Upsilon was installed in 1900.

The school is now an integral part of Stanford University, controlled in the same manner as are the other schools.

Additions have been made to the properties transferred in 1908 as follows: The Lane Medical Library Building in 1912 to house the Lane Medical Library comprising about 75,000 volumes; the Stanford University Hospital adjoining the college and Lane Hospital in 1917. In anticipation of the new wing which is scheduled for construction beginning in 1932, the adjoining site has been cleared. In 1933 Historian Kenneth Baxter Jenkins tells us that: "The plans for the proposed new Stanford Medical School have been completed for some time, but await just one thing—$4,500,000. To be exact, we need one-half that sum, an unknown donor having pledged $2,250,000 with the stipulation that we raise a like amount within a reasonable length of time." The proposed plan is to wreck old Lane Hospital and on the site erect a modern hospital and clinic. The plan includes also a building solely for laboratory purposes, and extensions to Stanford Hospital and the Nurses' Home. That Stanford Medical School is in dire need of these changes may not be doubted after reading Historian Jenkins' (1933) humorous account of a modern medical student's reaction against the shortcomings of an out-moded building.

Under present arrangements the School of Medicine controls in addition to its own group, over 450 beds in the San Francisco Hospital; an out-patient department caring for about 12,000 patients a year; the Tuberculosis Clinic in co-operation with the San Francisco Department of Public Health, and a dental clinic in connection with the out-patient clinic.

Splendid buildings and equipment for classroom and laboratory teaching in the basic sciences are located on the Stanford campus in Palo Alto and the first one and one-quarter years of the course are given there. The remaining time is devoted almost entirely to ward and dispensary work obtained through the clinical material and hospital facilities offered in San Francisco.

The Stanford Clinics Auxiliary, now a unit of the University Hospitals, serves the community through medical extension, social service and education. Its roster of officers include such distinguished names as those of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, President of Stanford, and Dr. Loren R. Chandler, Dean of the medical school, the latter a loyal alumnus of Upsilon. All in all Stanford Medical School affords exceptional facilities for the teaching of medical students.

The transfer of Cooper Medical College in 1908 marked the beginning of a great many changes in the course and the faculty as well as in the equipment. Provision was made for the classes then enrolled to go on and complete their course under the conditions upon which they had entered, and the last class of the old Cooper Medical College was graduated in 1912. For all later classes and new students the requirements for admission were raised to three years of premedical work at Stanford University or its equivalent elsewhere. This resulted in a marked decrease in the entering classes, a regrettable fact in some ways and yet an advantage in that each student received more attention and greater opportunity for clinical work.

There were only seven students enrolled in the class of 1913, with approximately the same numbers in the classes of 1914 and 1915 at the University at Palo Alto. Year by year, enrollment has risen in spite of high entrance requirements. In 1918 Stanford made a hospital interne year prerequisite to the degree of M.D., thus lengthening the course to eight years. In 1928 the number in each class in the medical school was increased to fifty.

Admission to the University may be granted with Graduate, Upper, or Lower Division standing, the number admitted being limited by the facilities available. Applicants for admission must present satisfactory recommendations as to personal character, must offer the approved credentials required for the division concerned, and for the Upper and Lower Divisions, must pass the college aptitude test.

In the Graduate Division, in groups where admission is limited, selection of applicants is made only on the basis of superior preparation and fitness for the work to be undertaken.

In the Upper and Lower Divisions, selection is made on the basis of superior fitness, taking into account scholarship, personal qualifications, and score on the college aptitude test.

In the Lower Division preference is given to approved candidates who pass the examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board.

The sons of graduates of the University, and of members of the faculty, will be given priority in admission to the Upper and Lower Divisions until January, 1934.

Special cases are given consideration when it is deemed advisable.

The total number of women attending Stanford at any one time is limited to five hundred by the terms of the Founding Grant of the University.

The total enrollment in 1931-32 was 240 and the faculty numbered 207.

THE CHAPTER

Following the installation, Upsilon continued to occupy the Webster Street house which was only one block from the school. But after a time and due to the fact that so many members lived in the city, the house idea was abandoned, its place being taken by rented rooms at 1941 Webster Street. In fact, after the affiliation of Cooper Medical College with Stanford University and because of the division of courses between Palo Alto and San Francisco (1908) the chapter was of necessity dormant. A new group had to come up through the Palo Alto School and that took time. In a letter, Alumnus Donald Cass, '17, writes that "there was a lapse of several years when there was no active chapter in the new (Stanford) medical school. Then a group of active alumni got together and decided it would be a fine idea to revivify the Chapter in the new Stanford Medical School. With this in mind, W. W. Boardman and Rollo Tupper came to the pre-medical department at Palo Alto and interested six men in becoming members of the Nu Sigma Nu, Upsilon Chapter. I was one of those men. We were all initiated in San Francisco and took our places as the new active Chapter and immediately set about to increase our membership and establish the Fraternity more firmly. These six men were John Frye Chapman, John Philip Strickler, Merton James Price, Donald Cass, Clyde Timothy Wetmore and Karl Ludwig Schaupp.

"Our Alumni were smart to get the Nu Sigma Nu nucleus before any other fraternity was established in the medical school.

"The history of the Chapter from then on is one which is more or less the story of all Chapters with a small beginning. We gradually increased our membership and became the leading fraternity in the Stanford Medical School."

The 1912 Bulletin is the first sign we note of renewed life for Upsilon and that was only flickering since there were but seven entrants each to the 1913-1914 and 1915 classes of the medical school (see school history).

The 1913 Bulletin recites that the upbuilding of the physical equipment and the growing personnel of the faculty many of whom—seventeen in fact—were Nu Sigma Nu, gave the group new courage to hang on so that by 1916 they were going strong. Too much praise cannot be given the alumni who kept the flame burning through these thin years, and be it said alumni from the brother chapter Phi aided in this. Several alumni reenlisted as actives to supply the chapter quota and give support. The 1916 Bulletin shows increasing numbers and interest, more social life and attempts to contact alumni and so stimulate interest. In 1917 they had re-established the chapter house; there were get-together meetings between the brother chapters with all local alumni in the picture.

The chapter was then hit by the war and again had to abandon its chapter house, but retaining fifteen men, they still carried on, maintaining too their always high scholastic standing. In 1919 they reported fratres in facultate to the number of twenty-four and an active roll of fourteen men, almost two teachers to a man. During these years they continued their gatherings with Phi Chapter, and reported occasional cheer from other social functions.

But with the return of the men from service real chapter life was again resumed, the 1920-21 Bulletins announcing return to the prewar status. But chapter news is still scarce, meager reports of talks from faculty men, notably Alumni Stillman, Spaulding, and Cowan, and of an increasing number of social functions. The 1921 bulletin summed up their whole year's story on one page of the bulletin. In 1922 they did a little better, reporting an active membership of twenty-three and news of several meetings with alumni present both at initiations and for dinners, also continued accomplishment in scholarship and in honors attained by their fellows in Phi Beta Kappa and in Sigma Xi.

From 1923 on, the Bulletins of Upsilon expand. They are getting into their stride. They tell of increasing social relations between the Palo Alto and the San Francisco groups; of continued high scholarships; of cooperation between Upsilon and Phi socially, particularly in the entertainment of over 400 Nu Sigma Nu fellows in attendance at the American Medical Association meeting held in San Francisco in 1923, "greeting each brother at the registration booth at the Civic auditorium where the convention was held, and aiding the entertainment." A novel banquet was the social event of that week. "Costumes were provided so that in every sense the party was a revival of the days of '49. The informality and good-fellowship that prevailed among the four hundred brothers present went a long way toward renewing the bonds of the fraternity. Through the efforts of Brother J. Wilson Shiels (Phi) a fine entertainment was presented featuring many famous Bohemian Club artists. The climax of the evening was the presentation of Bret Harte's story, 'Tennessee's Pardner', in playlet form, Brother Shiels playing the lead, supported by active members of the two San Francisco Chapters."

That year "a new rushing system was inaugurated whereby pledges are made only after the successful completion of the first quarter in medicine. A group of alumni and active members make it their duty to go to the campus at Palo Alto once a month in order to form a closer association with the freshman and sophomore men and pledges." Alumni of Upsilon have since been increasingly active in passing on information about promising men, which has been a distinct aid. In addition there have been frequent informal smokers for them, attended and enjoyed alike by alumni, faculty fellows and actives.

Since 1925 and the shortening of the time at Palo Alto to the first one and one-half years, the rushing has been left entirely to the sophomore class there.

Socially the chapter has always been active and some events have become fixed, to wit: The rush parties at Palo Alto—usually at some academic fraternity house, an annual dinner dance; the locale varying with the years—once at the Hotel Mark Hopkins, once on the roof garden of the Clift Hotel, once at Tait's at the Beach. Occasionally there are "feeler" dinners at Palo Alto "sizing" up men for "spiking" to be repeated later "with lines more sharply drawn." On one occasion the rushing season ended with a banquet at the Clift Hotel in San Francisco, with an attendance of fifty. This event was preceded by an "open house" at the Bohemian Club where they were guests of Alumnus Harry Alderson. Plans are afoot for an annual Upsilon-Phi banquet with a "free for all" program, with combined initiation gatherings and joint smokers. There have been some country parties and on occasion, faculty alumni have entertained the chapter.

Upsilon is justly proud of her contribution to war service—Lane Hospital equipped and furnished most of the personnel of Naval Base Hospital No. 2 that left in December 1917 in command of faculty alumnus Dr. Stanley Stillman. Of the seven graduates of 1917 six were in service, three in the army and three in the navy. Of twenty-two actives, eight left to join the colors as did several pledges on November 1, 1918, all remaining actives in the Medical Reserve Corps were transferred to the S. A. T. C. as part of the Stanford Corps.

Alumni too numerous to mention, served in various capacities and with distinction.

As yet no house project for Upsilon has materialized. They are still hopeful for a windfall.

The letter from charter fellow Charles Mooser, acknowledged in the introduction to this story follows:

"Good old Pi Sigma Tau, of cherished memory. We had the reputation of being exclusive and tough and tried to live up to it.

"College work consisted of an eight months' course of four years.

"And what became of our plans and ambitions? Briefly I will tell the little I know of the charter members.

"A. Bonner McConnell: A whiter boy never lived. He served two years as a resident in a private hospital, became associated with a specialist in gynecology with whom he remained in San Francisco until he formed a partnership with Dr. Sample of Fresno. The combination of Bonner's surgical skill and Tom's medical skill and alluring ways made a big success of their hospital venture. Bonner in prime condition and youthful still, was operated on for an inflammation of the gall bladder in San Francisco by Dr. Terry (a fraternity brother). He died on August 8, 1924, on the fourth or fifth day after the operation.

"George Cushing, died in Oakland prior to graduation.

"Thomas Sample—'Red Top' genial Tom, who did not want to go back to his country home in Fresno, but had to because Dad stopped his allowance, served a year as interne in the German Hospital, then went to Fresno where he has been operating a hospital for years, eminently successful not alone as a physician but also as an agriculturist, being a very large land holder.

"Francis Pache settled in the wilds of Nevada, close to the mining district and practiced successfully. The call of his country caught him and he has remained in the service with high rank. When last heard from he was with the Navy stationed at San Diego.

"I have heard that Harvey Ross passed away years ago. As he is not in the California directory, perhaps it is true.*

"Gideon Freeman has neither been seen nor heard from since college days.†

"William Hatteroth, Billy, went with Dad after graduation. The latter was a well-to-do dealer in surgical supplies. After his father's demise Bill settled in Oakland and pioneered in industrial medical and surgical work. He has built up a good fat practice and stowed away a good deal more than his share of worldly goods. We meet occasionally and talk about the now old fellows.

"Llewellyn Johnson, 'Lou', handsome and the favorite with the girls, has been lost to me ever since, except for an occasional reference by someone who has seen him. I believe he went to his home town, Chico, then went with one of the older fellows in Stockton where he now is. I am told that he has exceptional ability and has been very prosperous.

"William Downing was last heard from in Rio Vista but his name does not appear in the California directory.

"William Circe has spent his time since graduation between Paris, France, renowned for its gay life, and Carson, Nevada, as dead as a door nail. Peculiar combination, but it had seemed to agree with him when I last saw him, about 1923.‡

"Philip Abbott was our real student. He practiced in San Francisco, then in Nevada. Later he inherited a large fortune from his uncle and returned to the old home town, Oakland. He devoted most of his time to charitable work amongst T.B.'s and died in 1929 of that malady, I am informed.

*Deceased Sept. 28, 1921. (Ed.) †2734 W. 9th St., Los Angeles. (Ed.)

Route 7, Box 2834, Sacramento. (Ed.) ‡Died Nov. 21, 1925. (Ed.)

"Carl Lehnners' good looks, charming personality and too much money for a lad, made a pretty stormy ten years for Carl after graduation. Broke, he settled down to hard work in Fallon, Nevada, and finally had the whole country as a following. Wanting a large field, he drifted into Reno in 1924. I am told he is the intimate of Nevada's 'King'. Be that as it may, he is established at the famous Riverside Hotel in a magnificent suite, has the cream of the divorce colony for patients and is making money at a very fast clip.

"As for myself (Charles Mooser) after a year's interne-ship I engaged in practice and in executive, hospital, and public health work for twenty-three years and then retired to Oakland. But I was caught in the avalanche of 1929 and am now back in practice there in order to 'eat'."

PHI FRATRES IN FACULTATE

PHI

From the catalog of the University of California School of Medicine, supplemented by various chapter letters, we have abstracted the salient features of the school history.

Our sources for the Chapter story are the publications of 1901 and 1907 supplemented by the more recent bulletins, particularly that of 1924. We regret that more details have not been forthcoming from the men of Phi.

The pre-installation period of Phi has been combined with that of Upsilon in a joint introduction, with added personal reminiscences (vide supra).

THE SCHOOL

The foundation of the Medical School of the University of California was laid in 1862 when Dr. H. H. Toland erected a building subsequently known as Toland Hall, to serve as the nucleus of a medical school. In 1872 this was transferred to the Regents of the University of California as a department of the University. For many years the affiliation continued merely nominal, the medical faculty being in entire control of the policy of the school and its support derived from students' fees.

In 1895 the then existing three year course was extended to four years. In 1898 the school was moved to its present location on Parnassus Heights, a tract of land of thirteen and one-half acres donated to the University by the late Adolph Sutro. The legislature provided funds to erect buildings for law, medicine, dentistry and pharmacy; at a later date the law building was transferred to the medical school.

In 1902 the Board of Regents adopted a resolution of vital importance, whereby, instead of the former loose affiliation, the medical department became an integral part of the University. The properties of the school were transferred, students' fees were turned into the general University fund and support of the school was assumed by the Regents. The first two years of medicine were placed on an academic basis and suitable laboratories equipped.

CALIFORNIA MEDICAL BUILDINGS

- (1) Out-Patient Department Adjoining the University of California Hospital.
- (2) Medical Center: (1) Power House.
- (3) Old Medical Building.
- (4) New Clinic Building.
- (5) Hospital.
- (6) Nurses' Home.

With the destruction of the Out-Patient Department by the earthquake and fire of 1906 it became necessary to transfer the work of the first two years to Berkeley and to transform the main building of the school into a hospital and out-patient clinic. A recommendation of the President of the University was adopted which provided a plan of reorganization for the clinical years.

The four main departments, Medicine, Surgery, Pediatrics, and Obstetrics and Gynecology, are in charge of vocational teachers; it is contemplated that other departments be placed upon the same basis.

The Regents of the University agreed to take over the Hahnemann Medical College of the Pacific in 1915 and to include electives in Homeopathy in the curriculum of the Medical School.

In 1917 the University Hospital building was erected and equipped by friends of the University at a cost of about $750,000. Located on Parnassus avenue, adjoining the Medical School, it overlooks Golden Gate Park, the Bay, and the Ocean. It is a seven-story building with four wings to accommodate each of the main departments. In connection with the Hospital, a Nurses' Home was completed in 1919.

DEAN PORTER

The Regents' decision first made as long ago as 1912, had been to consolidate all departments of the school in San Francisco again as soon as possible. A divided school presented a situation which was unsatisfactory in many ways. With the advent in 1927 of the new Dean of the medical school, Dr. R. Langley Porter, Phi '96, the desire to establish the school as a single unit seemed at last near realization. In 1928, instruction in the first half of the second semester was moved from Berkeley to San Francisco. A number of changes in curriculum, faculty personnel and geographical location of classes were made in the next year. The sophomore class became established in fine new laboratories for pathology and bacteriology on the third floor of the medical school building, the entire course of study for the second year having been transferred to San Francisco.

The new regime tends to greater stability of the Medical School as a whole, and to closer cooperation throughout.

Dean Porter's interest in both students and faculty as individuals, and his recent appointment of twelve experienced graduates conversant with the problems of the various medical specialties and of general practice bids fair to iron out many remaining difficulties.

The event of the year 1932 was the construction of the new million dollar Out-Patient Department Building, to be ready for occupancy by August of 1933. This marks the realization of the first step in Dean Porter's plans. The building adjoining the University Hospital and facing the Golden Gate, will house both the Medical and Dental clinics. Each department is to have its own quarters and each will retain complete autonomy while at the same time fostering fullest cooperation between the various units.

An exceptionally fine Post-Graduate School of Surgery is being developed by Howard Naffziger and H. Glenn Bell.

In 1930, the departments of Anatomy, Physiology and Biochemistry were housed in the new Life Sciences Building on the campus at Berkeley, where the instruction of the first year is carried on.

In affiliation for purposes of clinical teaching, the San Francisco Hospital affords service in medicine, surgery and the specialties. Additional wards are under construction and when plans now under way for new buildings to house a Psychopathic Institute and a Cancer Research Institute are completed, the hospital will have a grand total of 1500 beds. The Children's Hospital and the Hooper Foundation for medical research are other aids to teaching.

When Phi was installed (1900) a high school diploma was the minimum requirement for entrance to the medical school. In 1905 two years of college became the requirement; this was increased to three years in 1922. A preliminary collegiate preparation is now required for the course in medicine except that the school receives students eligible for senior standing whose preliminary work has included the three-year premedical curriculum. Men and women are admitted on equal terms.

When Phi was installed there were 73 on the faculty; the 1932 catalog lists 350. The enrollment in 1900 was 183; in 1932 it was 288.

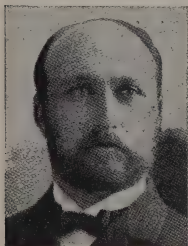

THE CHAPTER

The first two years, meetings and initiations were held in halls rented for the purpose but the absence of a home resulted in lack of interest and loss of prospective members. The remedy seemed to be a home and through concerted effort, a house near the college was rented and furnished by voluntary donations from faculty, graduates and active members. Here Phi entertained freshmen, the faculty and her twin chapter, Upsilon. At the suggestion of Dr. Kerr a library was begun with contributions from faculty and alumni.

Until April, 1906, the fraternity house had been located near the college but the earthquake so demoralized school affairs that no house was operated for a time. It became an immediate necessity to remove the first two years to Berkeley after the earthquake; because of this and small entering classes (due to introduction of the premedical course), Phi's forces were divided and progress retarded. Meetings were held in the homes of various members.

Frank S. Baxter, '14, gives as the outstanding event of his time: "The reincarnation of Nu Sigma Nu from one active member, Frank Kelly."

E. P. Cook, '16, writes: "During my active membership the chapter advanced from a very small one, to the foremost, due to the efforts of Dr. Frank Kelly."

DOCTOR KERR

The low point was evidently reached before 1912 because then Phi was on the up grade with thirteen active members. Her real strength however rested with her alumni. Their interest in the welfare of Nu Sigma Nu was manifested in many ways. At spring and fall dinners Alumnus William Kerr usually acted as toastmaster; among those responding were Drs. Fitzgerald, Lennon, Lewitt and others.

No further mention of housing appears in the chapter letters until 1917 when: "We are still living at 1251 Second Avenue, two blocks from the hospital, and although we do not own the place, we are comfortably situated. With the aid of Doctors R. W. Harvey and Frank Kelly, two of our most ardent alumni, we have formulated a plan by which we hope soon to have a house of our own. The plan is that each member upon graduation pledges himself to give fifty dollars or more, payable in five yearly installments, to a building and furnishing committee. With these payments as a nucleus we are calling upon older graduates for such assistance as they see fit to give. We have already received pledges from the members of the 1916 class and some from the 1915 class though this plan was initiated since the graduation of the latter."

A house was taken at 1356 Third Avenue in 1915. Here Phi continued until 1921 when another was rented at 1249 Seventh Avenue. During the Christmas vacation active members working with Alumni William J. Kerr, Richard W. Harvey and J. H. Woolsey of the faculty, got the house in readiness. A house warming was held on New Year's Day to which many alumni and faculty came. Among many gifts made to the house were some choice French pictures, given by Dr. Woolsey. Rather definite plans for a new chapter house and a real financial program were announced at a meeting with the alumni, the University having practically promised a building site.

In 1924 Phi's new and permanent home at 1495 Fourth Avenue became a reality. Through the work of alumni of the Nu Sigma Nu Association, of which Dr. Harvey was president and Dr. Kerr secretary, the house was completed.

The enthusiasm of the actives was feelingly expressed by the 1924 historian. "Imagine a Colonial house set on a rolling lawn. Gray shingles, green shutters, a welcoming door opening into a spacious living room with its wide-mouthed fireplace, and its view of the ocean and the Golden Gate, where sunsets dazzle one with their brilliance and by their vividness making one realize one's insignificance. It is a comfortable, homey place and adding to its attractiveness is its proximity to the Medical School.

"On December 15, alumni and actives foregathered in true Western fashion to dedicate this new home. This was an auspicious occasion and its spirit propitious for the success of the chapter and the glory of the fraternity. When two such men as Dr. W. I. Terry and Dr. J. Wilson Shiels drop their respective thyroids and hearts and spend their efforts on a house-warming, dull care will not be found among those present."

Each year more enjoyable parties, and formal and informal dances are held in the house. To each of these functions a limited number of alumni and faculty members are invited. On several occasions Tau Beta senior social organization has used the house for informal and formal parties.

A radio helps to foster the present-day social life of the chapter and has been the occasion for many dances and other affairs, the spontaneity and informality of which have only added to their charm.

Following the establishment of Phi's permanent house a Mother's Club was organized and helped to solve domestic problems by giving benefit bridge parties in which mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts of the brothers took part.

In the 1927 letter we are told that: "The Mother's Club, which was organized last year, has developed into a thriving and interested group. Two very successful afternoon bridge parties have been held. The proceeds of one purchased an Orthophonic Victrola for the house; proceeds of the second were donated in a lump sum. The Mothers certainly have the interest of the chapter at heart and it is especially gratifying to see wives and mothers of alumni of years back joining with those of today in helping to make things easier for the active chapter members."

The Alumni Association of Nu Sigma Nu of the University of California was formed in 1923, a year in which events conspired to consolidate Nu Sigs, old and new, in the San Francisco region.

Alumnus W. J. Kerr, acting head of the Department of Medicine, arranged for various alumni to return to the Medical School for periods of one week, there to present to faculty and students the problems of the practice and of the art of medicine.

The event of 1923 which led to the greatest enthusiasm was the A. M. A. Convention, bringing as it did, brothers from all corners of the country. The then Historian, beginning with Bret Harte's lines, continues: "Truly, all things small or great were drawn to the Western Gate this past summer by the American Medical Association convention. At the first annual 'Nu Sig Jinks', Upsilon and Phi chapters were highly honored in being hosts to the great.

"If all could have seen that boisterous, noisy group of three hundred miners, desperadoes, Mexicans, and native Californians harking back to the days of '49, suddenly silenced by the magic strains of the violin in the hands of that master craftsman, Alexander Saslavsky, the scoffer might have said, 'It is even so. Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast.' But one who gazed with understanding at the faces around would have been struck anew, and forcibly with the fact that here was a kindred group, here was fellowship and appreciation and the joy of living, not as a thing apart, but contained within the same breast that nurtures the high ideals and the will to serve mankind that goes to make our fraternity what it is."

To Alumnus J. Wilson Shiels was due great credit for his contribution to the success and enjoyment of this gala event.

Notable in Phi's program, combining the social with the educational, were the bi-monthly seminars, begun in 1916, and continued with marked success for several years. Two nights each month were reserved for talks by a Nu Sigma Nu faculty member. The group gathered about the fireside; an informal talk was followed by discussion, a few good stories and later refreshments.

In 1921 the seminars were spoken of as bi-weekly and were being continued with success. The initiation of Dr. Hans Lisser at the January seminar, was an event long looked forward to and enjoyed. Speakers at various times included Drs. Lynd, Fleishner, Franklin, Briggs, Woolsey, Terry, Rusk and others, each providing a pleasant and instructive evening.

Regular alumni faculty talks before the chapter have become an established custom in later years, and are considered a definite and necessary part of medical education. A random glance at the list of speakers and subjects is proof of the value and the broad scope of these talks. We note Dr. Herbert Moffit on the History of Medicine, Dr. Frank Lynch on Backache, Dr. LeRoy Briggs on Practical Advice, Dr. Daniel Sooy on Arteriosclerosis; many others including Dean Ophuls of Stanford, have given inspiring and helpful addresses.

Phi seems to have held a continuous high scholastic standing as witnessed by records in chapter letters, of election to honor societies such as Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Omega Alpha. We are assured that the good work is being continued, for the 1930 letter relates that, "Scholastically the chapter has maintained its usual high rating during the past year, though not through any organized system for we adhere to a strictly individualistic policy. We wish to thank our faculty members for their willingness to participate in extemporaneous seminars."

Soon after this country entered the war the school organized Base Hospital 30, the officers and personnel of the unit coming almost entirely from this source. Brothers Woolsey, Rehfish and Fleming, recent actives, were with the unit as lieutenants. The unit was transported to France and sent to Royan establishing a base hospital in small hotels granted for that purpose. It was there that they worked until after hostilities ceased. Brother Woolsey on Surgical Team No. 1 of the unit saw early service with the first American division to enter the Marne fighting under the flag of this country.

Brother Naffziger's outstanding accomplishments in brain surgery led to his commission as Lieutenant Colonel in charge of a brain hospital in France. Brother Lucas had charge of refugee women and children who entered France. Major William Kerr was on the heart board at Camp Lewis.

Whatever were the circumstances during these trying years, Phi men young and old, did each his part in rendering service to his country.

A most cherished brother, J. Wilson Shiels, passed away on December 29, 1929. He was initiated in 1906 as a faculty member and all who knew him through the years now join in paying tribute to one whose kindly interest in the chapter was ever active and unfailing.

All of the eleven charter members of Phi chapter are living and none have left the state. Four remain in San Francisco, namely: Lennon, Stafford, Woolsey, and Topham. Dickie and Goodale are in Berkeley, Lendrum is in Oakland, Moulton in Chico, R. C. Hill in Exeter, Foster in Hanford, and O'Donnell in Hollister.
